Planning

Throughout our lives we've been advised to get an education and to plan for the future. Our high school years have taught us to excel in many different areas of focus. As we contemplate plans for the future, we begin to realize the responsibilities of growing up.

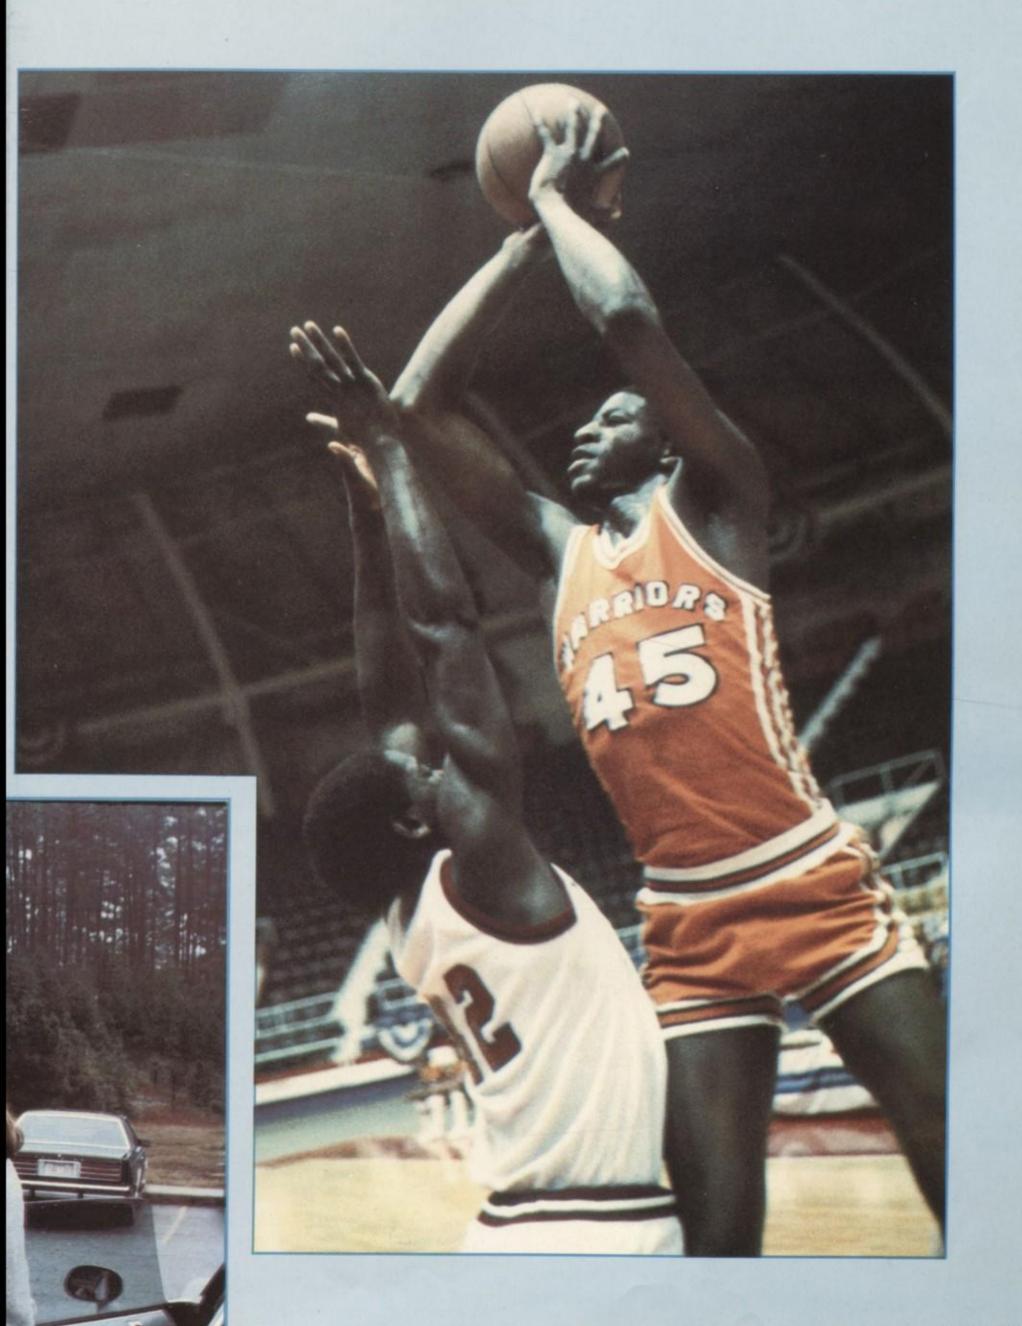

Setting goals is the first step in planning excellence. Some goals are short-range, such as passing a Chemistry test or getting a part in the school play, while getting accepted into medical school or running for a public office would be examples of long-range goals.

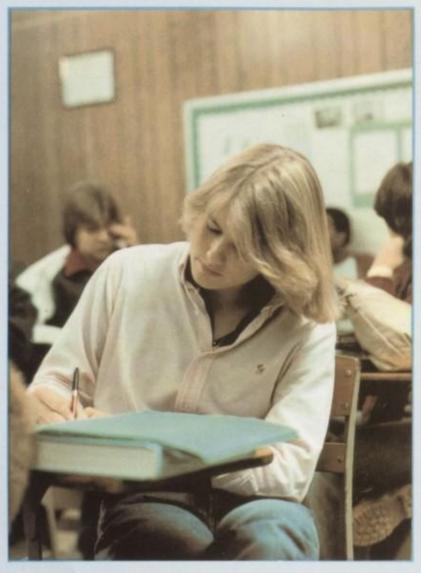

Sometimes our goals and values seem to conflict because of the relative amounts of time we are able to devote to them. But with careful planning, tomorrow's fulfillment need not be accomplished at the expense of today's responsibilities.

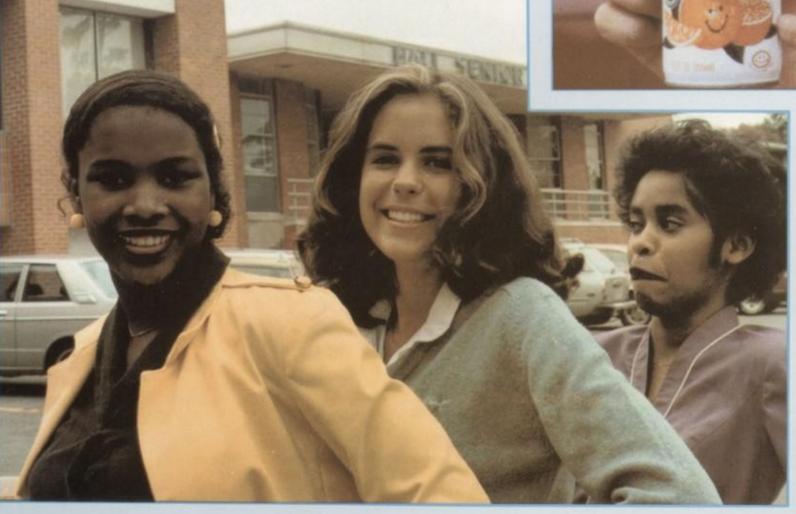

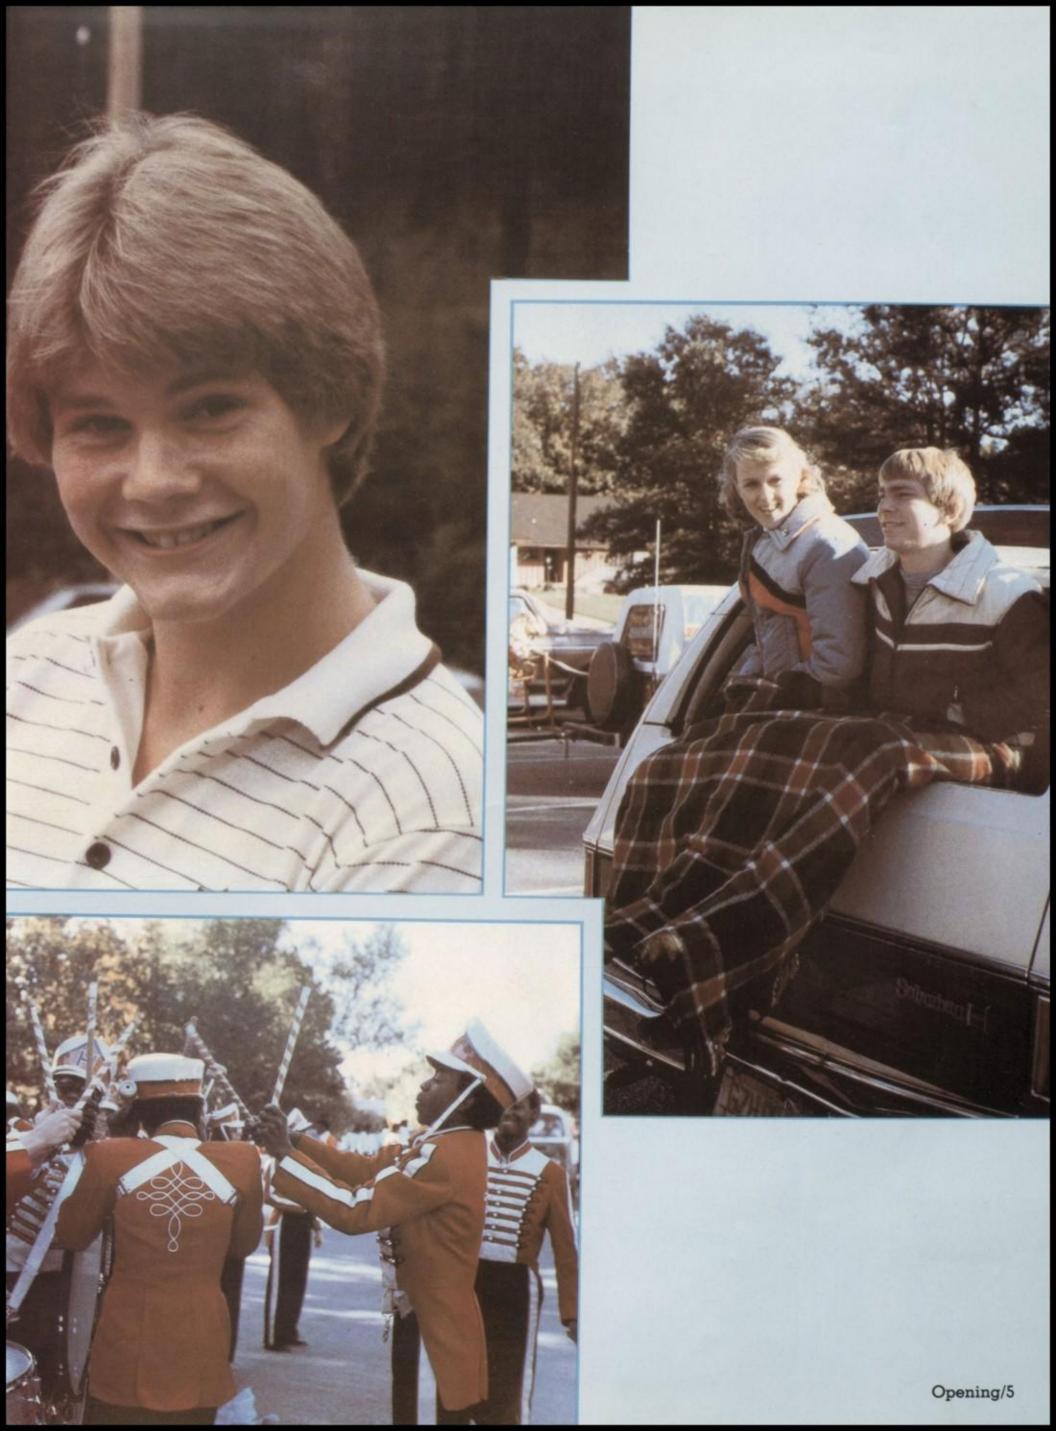

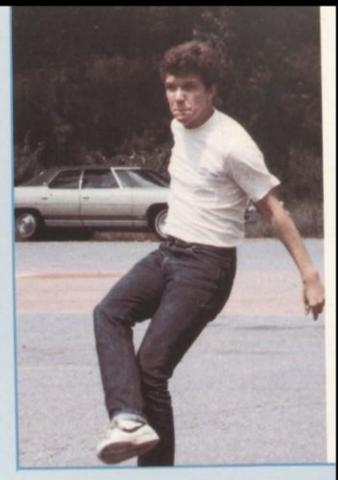

Striving

Nothing is more invigorating than working hard to fulfill a noble and worthwhile purpose. Whether it be in academics, sports, service, or any other area, it is necessary to deal with the challenges that face us in everyday life.

Each of us has our own area of interest in which we strive to improve. For example, each year our football team spends numerous hours practicing and developing their skills with the desire to honor their school with the title of State Champions.

Although at times we may get discouraged as we encounter difficulties, endurance and an honest desire to succeed must be present. The success of our pursuit is dependent upon diligence, a serious effort, and a positive attitude in all aspects of life.

Achieving

It has been said that success is its own reward, and nothing succeeds like success.

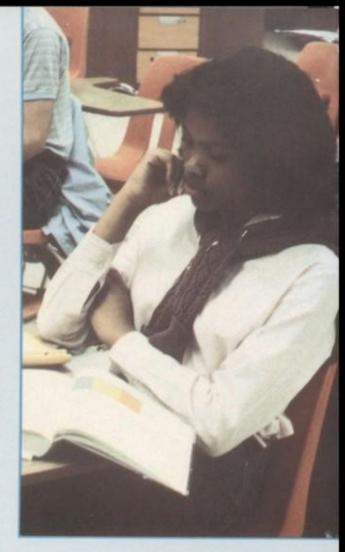

There is a certain feeling of accomplishment and personal satisfaction that comes with knowing that you have done your best.

Bringing home a praiseworthy report card, running the fastest mile, typing 60 words a minute, or scoring a touchdown elevate our self esteem. Positive experiences such as these provide motivation to keep us reaching and planning for the future.

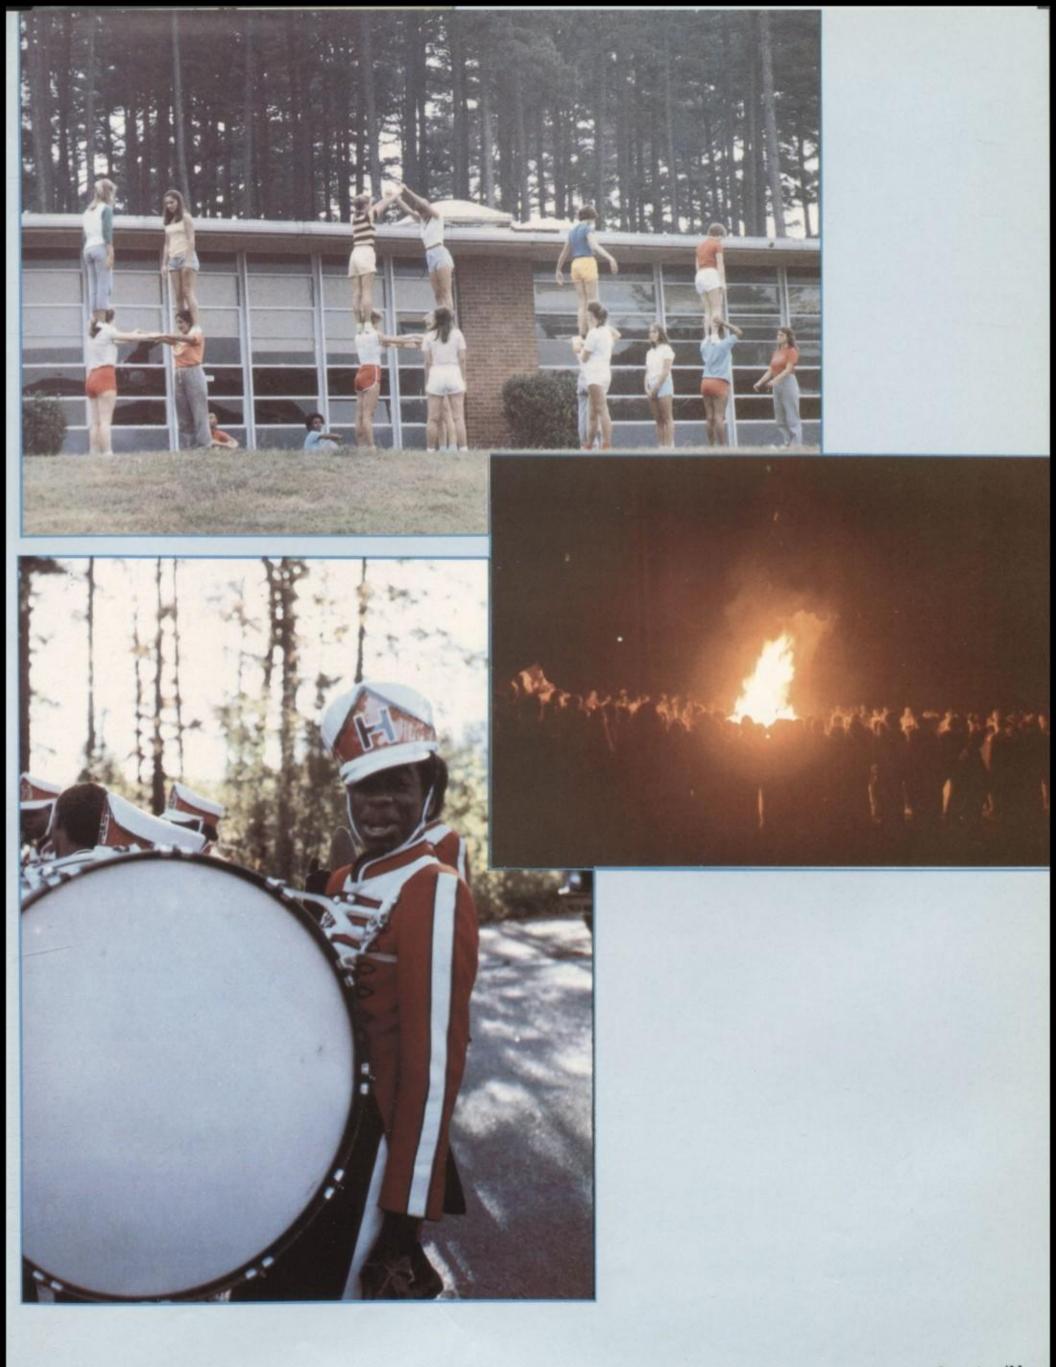

Our high school years are full of opportunities to set and reach goals and achieve excellence. If we use them wisely, these three years can prepare us and benefit us in our lives ahead.

Hall High School first opened in September of 1957 and was dedicated in October of the same year. This year was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the school's opening. In 1958, however, the school was closed temporarily during the integration crisis in Little Rock.

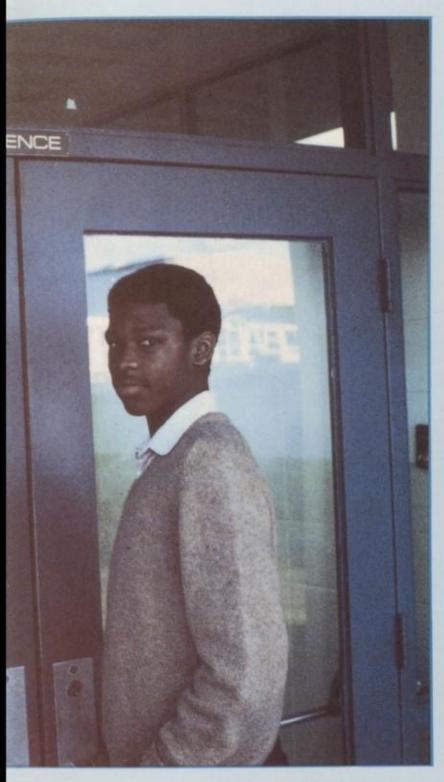

Hall was named for Robert Cleveland Hall, who was known as the "Father of the School Board." He served as superintendent of the Little Rock School District from 1909 to 1941 and during this time exemplified the highest goals in education.

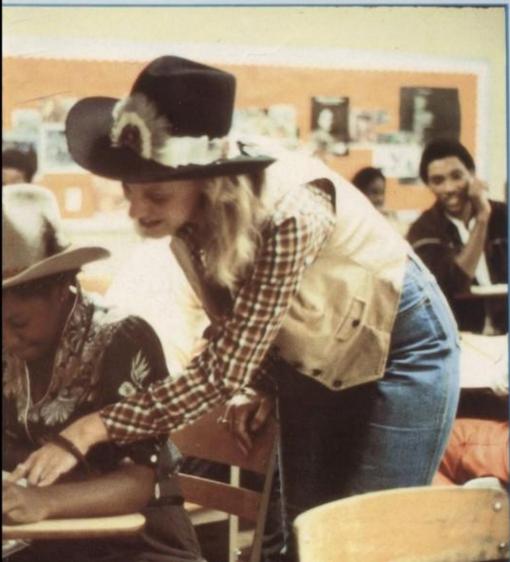

Maintaining

Many of the jobs we will hold as adults currently do not exist. Mechanization continues to replace manual labor at both the skilled and unskilled levels. Changes in technology require a lifelong pursuit of excellence so that we do not become obsolete.

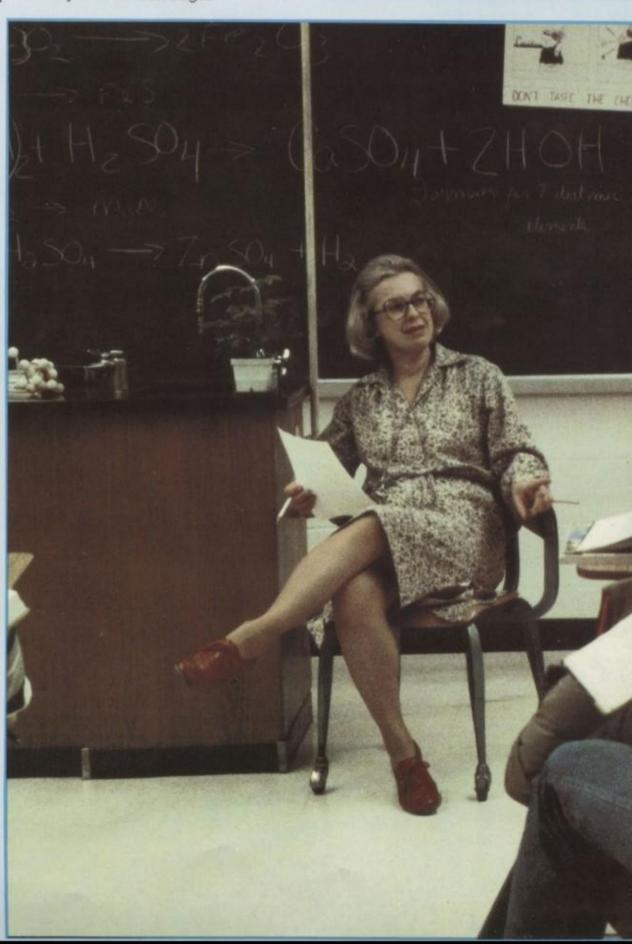

The courses that we take in high school are intended to better equip and prepare us for various careers. Whether we plan to enter a college, a trade school, the current work force, or another area, we will be expected to continue learning new skills and to improve our current ones.

Just as the high jumper raises the bar higher than he has ever jumped before at each track meet we should look for similar ways to elevate our sights in maintaining excellence. This is what our teachers strive to do for us as we progress through our three years at Hall High.

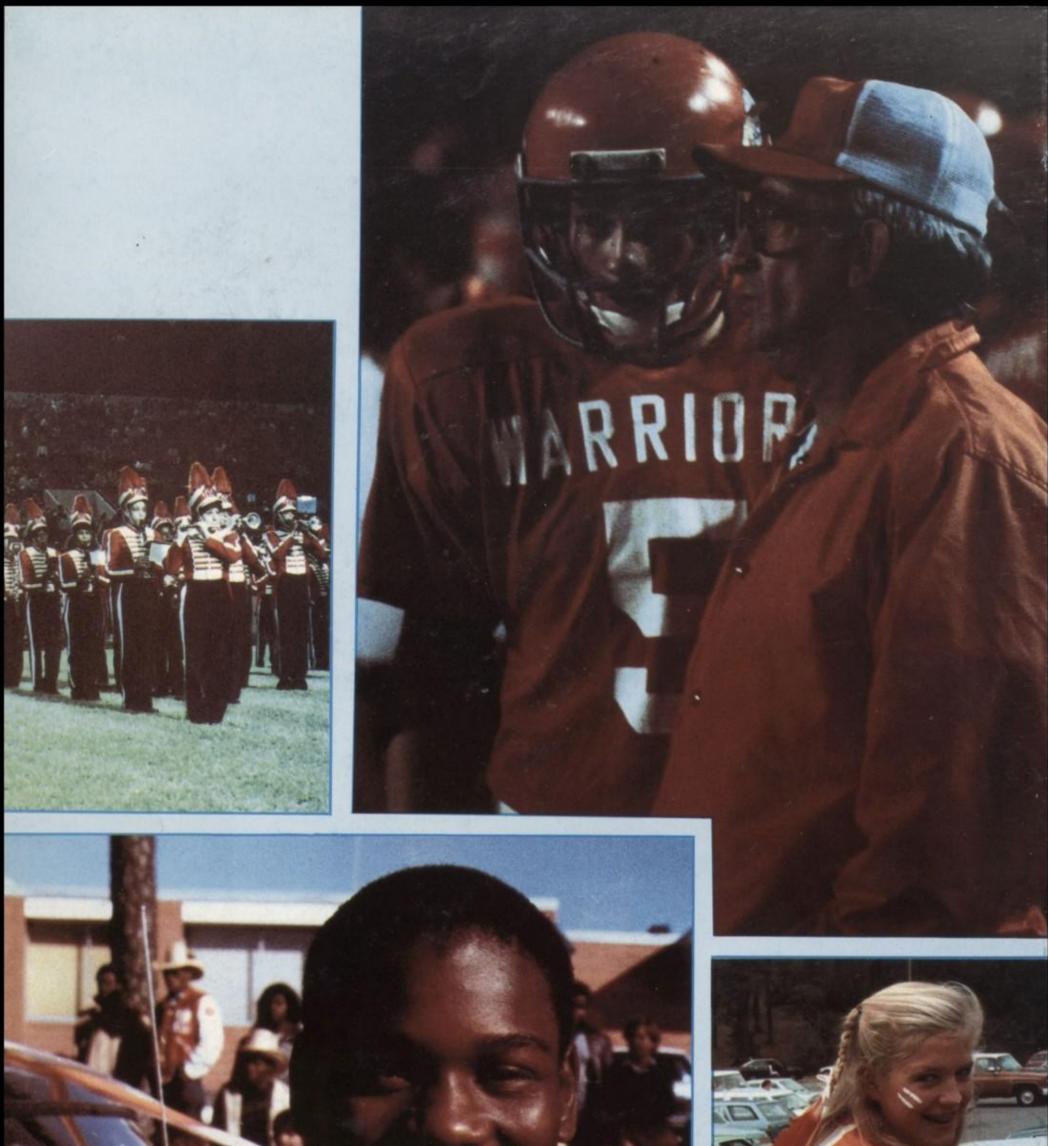

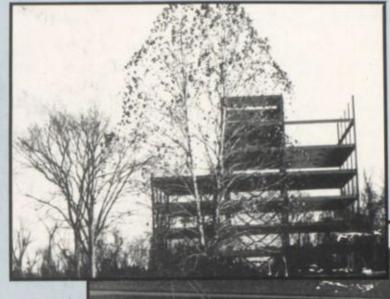

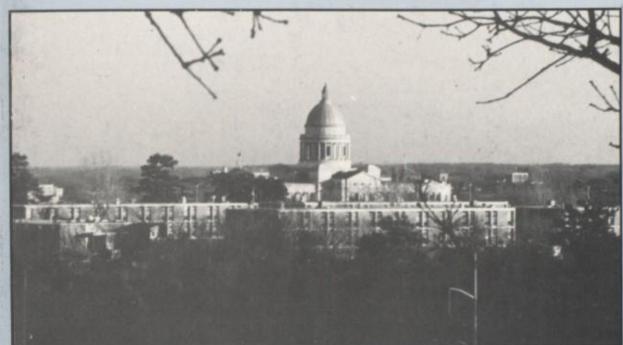

The Genesis Of Excellence

Hall High School and the city of Little Rock both celebrated anniversaries during the 1981-82 school year.

Hall first opened in the fall of 1957, closed in 1958 due to the integration problems in Little Rock, reopened in September of 1959 and has continued open since then.

Throughout these 25 years, Hall has grown in size, enrollment, and in academic quality.

Little Rock celebrated its sesquicentennial during the year 1981. In 1722 French explorers named two nearby rocks in Arkansas La Petit Roche and La Grande Roche, which means the Little Rock and the Big Rock. The site was permanently settled in 1820 and was chosen as the Territorial capital the following year. Little Rock was incorporated as a town in 1831 and as a city in 1835. Little Rock became the state capital in 1836.

The Capitol building in Little Rock is said to be one of the most beautiful in America. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the Capitol were held July 4, 1899, the cornerstone was laid Thanksgiving Day, 1900, and the building was completed 16 years later in 1915.

During these 150 years, Little Rock has progressed immensely. Many things have changed while others have remained the same.

Modernization has taken over tradition in many cases. For example, the Marion Hotel which was built in 1907 and served as a landmark in downtown Little Rock for many years, was imploded along with the Grady Manning Hotel on February 17, 1980. The demolition made way for the construction of a new convention center projected to be completed in 1983.

Little Rock's 150 years of progress have definitely made Hall's 25 years of progress possible. A wide range of activities made up Hall student life this year. In the summer, students were busy with Jobs. vacationing, and enjoying the summer sun.

The commencement of fall also brought the beginning of the school year. Even though school brought on homework and studying, it also brought many fun activities. A few of these were varsity football games on Thursday and Friday nights, pep assemblies, dances, and homecoming.

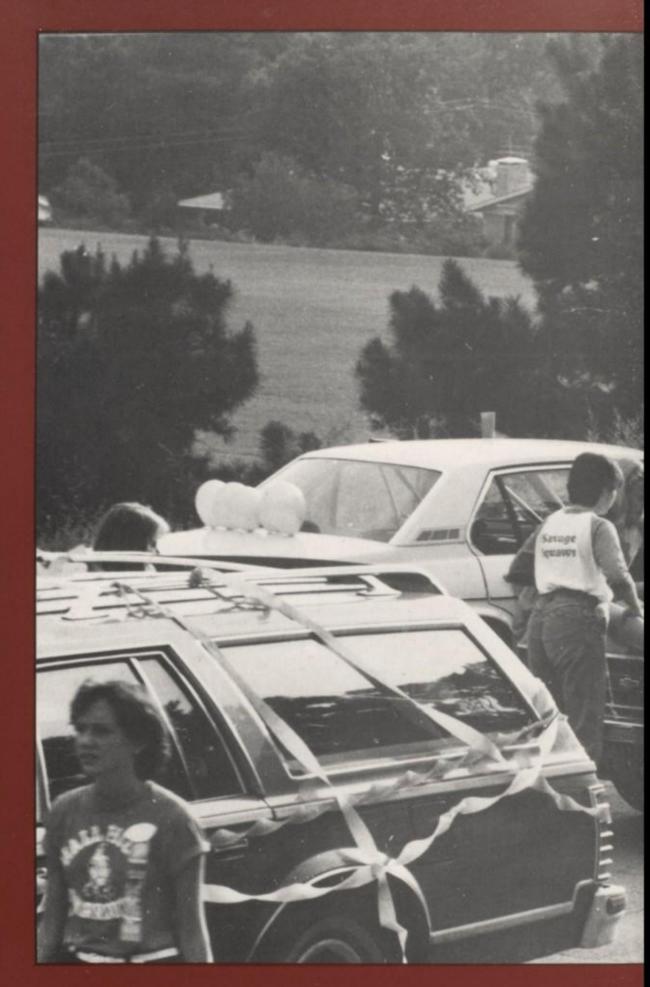

Wintertime brought the long awaited Christmas vacation which provided students with time for lelsure and fun.

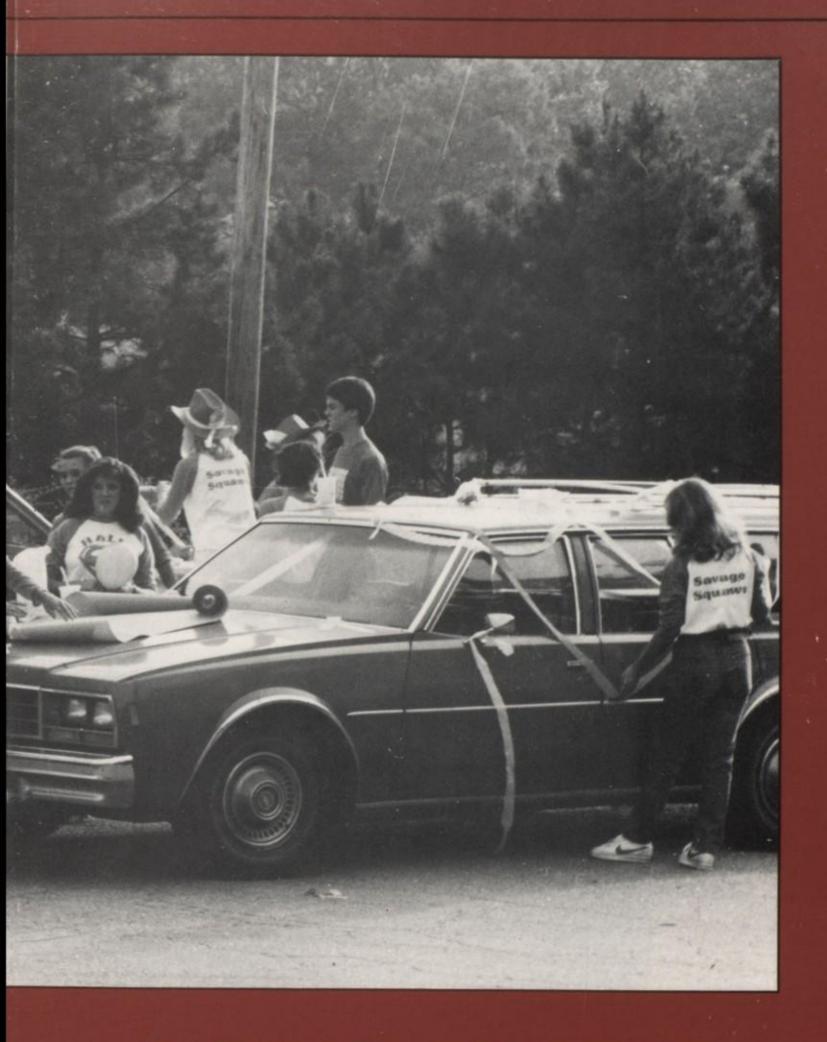

As spring rolled around, so did test time, but most students managed to find time to go to the horse races in Hot Springs at least once.

Throughout the year, hobbies such as playing frisbee in the parking lot and a light game of football, gave students time to have fun together.

Weekends for most consisted of parties, dances or just 'hanging out' at McDonald's.

Through the school, many students had opportunities for awards and honors. Students from Hall were chosen to attend Girls' and Boys' State. Governor's School, and other events such as Student Congress.

STUDENT LIFE

Summer Fun Keeps Kids Active

Summer is always a favorite time of the year and last summer was no exception. This was due to activities happening throughout the vacation

Some students spent their summer traveling and went to such far-away places as California and Florida. Others attended various summer camps and retreats, a few of which were offered by the Young Life Association. Some students also participated in Girls' or Boys' State, or attended the Arkansas Governor's School.

Several students from Hall participated in competitive sports going as far as New York to try for the Junior Olympic World Team in Canoeing and Hawaii to try for the World Team in Gymnastics.

Students continued to enjoy their favorite pastimes - going waterskiing, hiking, canoeing, swimming, or just lounging by the pool.

Temperatures were relatively cool compared to the blistering heat of the previous summer. The average temperature was 80 degrees, however, it fluctuated into the high 90's at times.

The football team held their summer practice two weeks before school started along with the cheerleader and Cheer-o-kee practices in the morning. The yearbook and newspaper staffs also had their workshops at this time.

Enrollment Figures Show Decline

Enrollment figures this year showed a decrease in the number of students attending Hall. During the 1980-81 school year there were 1,223 students compared to the 1087 for 1981-82.

The sophomore class was the largest with 378 students. The juniors were close behind with 369, followed by the seniors with 340.

Registration for school was held August 17-19. During registration, students received their class schedules, locker assignments, busing information and other materials needed to start the new year. This was the third year the computers have done the schedules and a few difficulties arose, but were straightened out during the first few weeks of school.

Mrs. Mildred Bracey, attendance secretary, did not feel the computer's mistakes were the major problems of registration.

"I wish all students would come to register during registration instead of waiting until school begins," Mrs. Bracey said.

Orientation was held August 27. Its goal was to give sophomores and new students an introduction to Hall. They were greeted by Principal Weldon Faulk, and by Student Body President Russ McDonough. The cheerleaders and Cheer-o-kees also participated in the program. Student Council members served as guides.

Sophomore Marigaye McWilliams said, "Orientation was very helpful in introducing me to Hall."

Council Officers Attend Meetings

Student Council officers met each week during lunch and discussed plans for annual Student Council events.

Russ McDonough, student body president, presided over the meetings which were held each Wednesday, apart from regular council meetings. The officers discussed such major events as Homecoming, Spirit Week, the annual Turkey Trot Dance, and Tri-Council Dances.

The Tri-Council consisted of Student Council officers from Central, Parkview, and Hall. Every year the Tri-Council holds meetings to plan events between the schools and to keep up the school spirit, discussing such important issues as vandalism between school rivals.

Jeff McNeil, Student Council vicepresident, was also president of the Inter-Club Council. This council was comprised of other club presidents around the school.

Each month, Russ, Jeff, and the other council officers and class representatives met along with Principal Weldon K. Faulk at the Principal's Cabinet meetings. At these meetings, ideas and suggested changes in the school and Student Council were debated.

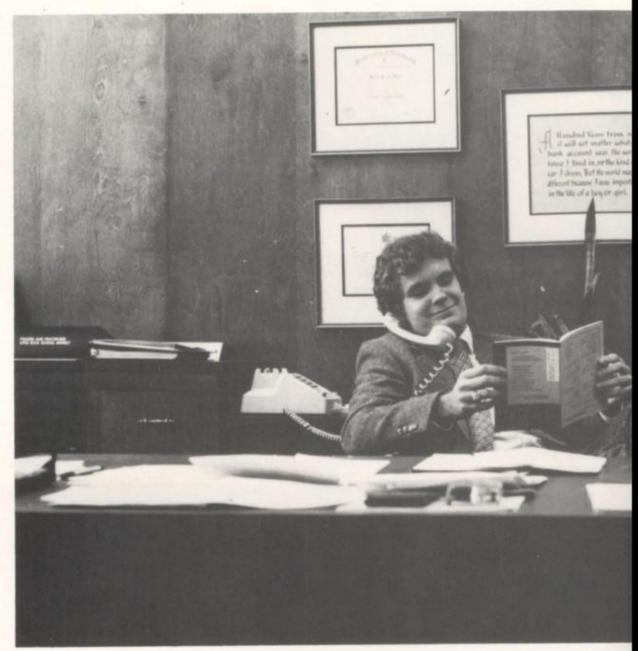

One important issue resolved at the Cabinet meetings concerned changing the newly installed assigned seating policy in the auditorium back to the original policy of letting students sit where they chose. Of course the sophomores were still in the balcony, the juniors in the back of the auditorium, and the seniors were in the front.

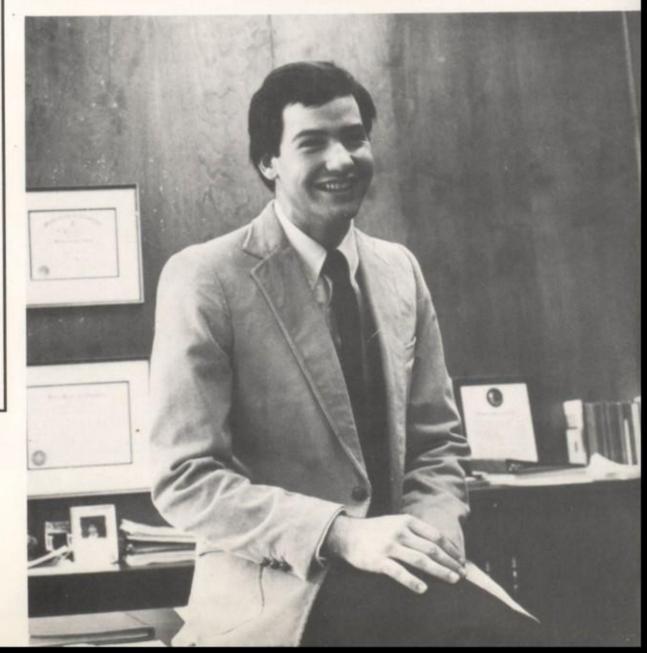

Council secretary was Deana Ashworth and the treasurer was Mark Lavey. Class representatives were Linda Blackburn, senior; Felicia Webster, junior; and Vicki Shaw, sophomore. Mr. Charles Thompson was the adviser to this year's Student Council.

School Spirit Shown By Students

School spirit rose to an all-time high this year. Students displayed spirit by supporting athletic events and attending pep assemblies.

Students displayed spirit by wearing school colors. There was an assortment of spirit items sold by the Student Council throughout the year.
This included ribbons, buttons, pins,
t-shirts, and orange and white cowboy hats.

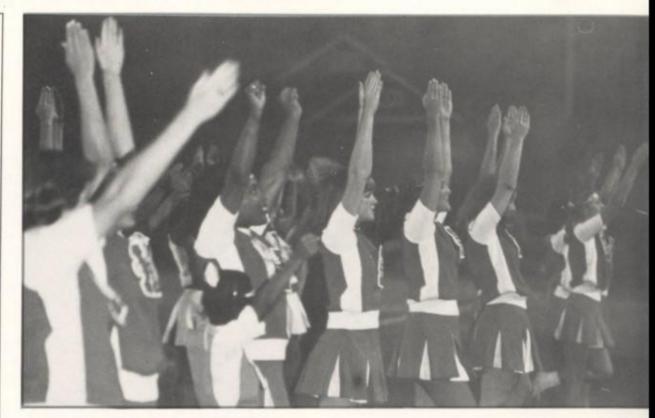

The week preceding the Parkview game was Spirit Week. There were different spirit raising activities and different themes each day. "Chargers are Punks" was the day that students dressed as punk rockers. "Wrangle the Chargers" was the day students wore their cowboy boots and hats. "Turn the Chargers Backwards" was the day students dressed backwards. "Face the Chargers" was the day students wore warpaint on their faces. "Orange and White Day" was the traditional day where students wore school colors to show spirit.

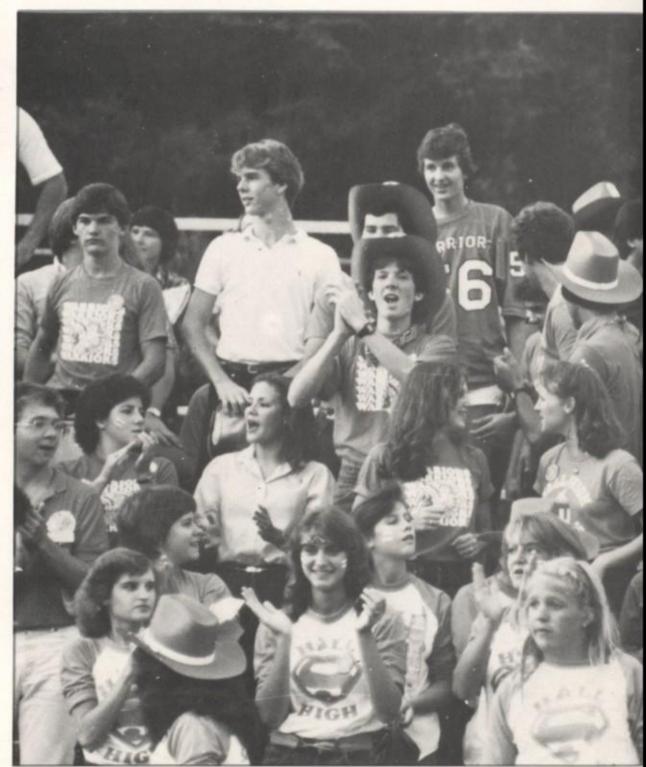

The cheerleaders and Cheer-okees promoted spirit at both games and assemblies. The Warriors were well supported by fans attending games and assemblies, and by pregame activities including caravans and bonfires.

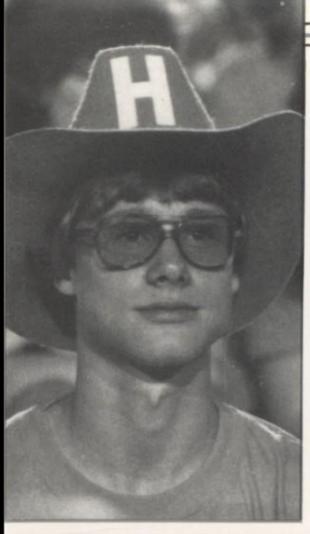

Throughout the year, students engaged in competitive spirit towards other schools and displayed pride for their own school.

Assemblies Raise Spirit In Pupils

Assemblies brought a welcome change to otherwise slow-paced school days. The assemblies ranged from Pep Rallies to the all-time favorite — the Talent Show.

Theatrics, music, athletics, information, and entertainment headed the agenda of assemblies held in the auditorium. At the first of the year, there was an assembly for each class to provide general information.

Russ McDonough, student body president, presided over pep assemblies and other assemblies presented on special occasions.

Most assemblies were sponsored by the cheerleaders and the Student Council. Assemblies took place during a rotating schedule of second through fifth periods. Assemblies held in the latter part of the day were not as successful as those held in the morning because so many students had left to go to work in the afternoon.

During athletic season, the Cheer-o-kee Club sponsored assemblies to introduce the players and raise spirit for that night. During Christmas season as well as spring, the band and the choir gave some separate and some combined performances. The Jazz band sponsored an assembly in January. The pep band played in all pep assemblies.

During February, a Black History Assembly was held. Special guests included Darrell Coleman, former student; Sherman Steward, graduate and modern dance student of UALR; Deborah Tharpe Parker, actress; Dee Bennett, Fisk University Counselor; Lencola Sullivan, former Miss Arkansas and anchor-person for KARK-TV; and the Philander Smith College Chamber Singers. Black Perspectives and Perception, was the theme of the assembly.

Movies were presented at pay assemblies. The Inkwell presented the movie, "Black Sabbath," the Senior Class selected and presented, "Greased Lightning," and the Student Council sponsored, "Young Frankenstein."

HOMECOMING

Deborah Pope was crowned 1981 Homecoming Queen by Weldon K. Faulk, principal, during half-time at the Hall-Northeast football game October 23. She was presented with orange and white carnations by Mr. Faulk and with a white robe by Russ McDonough, student body president. Students chose Deborah as queen in an election held October 23. Deborah, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norton Pope, was on the Homecoming Court for two years.

Football team members nominated ten girls from each grade to be on the court. From these 30 names the student body elected six seniors, five juniors, and four sophomores.

Senior David Briggs was elected Homecoming Chief.

During the week of homecoming, the Student Council sponsored Spirit Week. Orange and white carnations were sold by the Latin Club and delivered the day of homecoming.

The theme for this year's event was "Homecoming years of 24 — We love you Hall forevermore." Third period homerooms participated in a class cheer contest. The winner, chosen by the student body, was Mr. Randy Erwin's choir class.

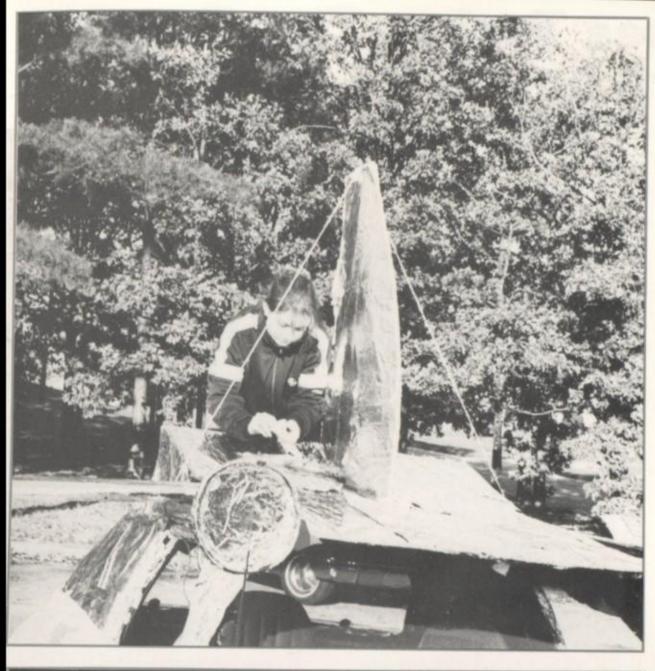

On Homecoming Day, 16 clubs and organizations participated in the annual parade. Floats were judged by a panel of mothers, teachers and administrators. The float competition was won by the Math and Science Club.

After the parade, students reported to the auditorium for a homecoming assembly. The court was introduced with their football team member escorts. The cheerleaders and Cheer-o-kees also performed.

Following the homecoming game, a dance was held in the Hall cafeteria. The band for the dance was Portrait.

Tribe Loses Turkey Day Fracas

For the second year in a row the Warriors were defeated by the Central High Tigers on Thanksgiving Day. The final score was 15-0. The big difference this year was the weather. The temperature was in the sixties this year, compared to the cold snowy Thanksgiving day of 1980.

Various activities were held during the week preceding the game. Third period classes collected food and decorated baskets for the needy. This was sponsored by FBLA and Mrs. Jane Arthurs' class won first place and was rewarded with a Coke party.

The day before the game was Fifties Day and everyone dressed up in leather jackets, poodle skirts, slicked back hair, and pony tails. The annual Turkey Day Pep Assembly was held 6th period and the cheerleaders and Cheer-o-kees danced to songs of the fifties. The student body president from Central, Rob Bass, and the 1st vice-president, Leslie Darwin, came to the assembly and recited a poem in response to a poem that student body president Russ McDonough had recited at Central's assembly earlier in the day.

The traditional Turkey Day Tea where Hall's cheerleaders and Cheer-o-kees and Central's high-steppers and cheerleaders had entertained each other was not held this year due to mutual agreement made by both school's sponsors.

At the game the cheerleaders were introduced during a pre-game show and both Hall and Central bands performed at half-time.

Dances Popular Among Students

Olivia Newton John's pop single "Let's Get Physical" and Earth Wind & Fire's "Let's Groove" rocked the Warrior's dance floors several times during the school year celebrating Warrior victories.

Students enjoyed the popular dance movements such as: The Gigolo, New Wave, Skating Rink, Jordache, and the Freak. Albums were given to the best dancing couples. Music was played by KHAL with student disc jockeys in charge, except for Homecoming.

Student Council sponsored several dances. The school opened with a Back-to-School dance following the Mills game where newcomers to Hall were welcomed. The traditional Homecoming Dance was after the Northeast game. The Homecoming queen and court reigned over the dance. Music was by the band Portrait, and dress was semi formal.

Central's and Hall's councils gave the annual "Turkey Trot" dance the Wednesday night prior to Turkey Day. Other popular dances were the Tri-Council Toys for Tots Christmas dance, where the funds were donated to the Little Rock chapter of Toys for Tots, and the Valentine TWIRP dance held at Central after the Warriors defeated Central Tigers.

The Warrior basketball team also sponsored several dances after their victories. Hall's Senior Class and the cheerleaders each sponsored one dance.

Disco, soul and rock ranked high at these dances, while New Wave music proved to be not so popular among Hall's students this year.

First Snow Brings Arctic Temps

Little Rock's first snow fell on a Sunday morning, January 10, but blew away as quickly as it came. The snow, accompanied by recordbreaking temperatures of zero to 4 below, was part of the coldest air mass to hit the U.S. in a decade.

Two days later and only a week after the Christmas holidays, a veritable blizzard blew its way into Arkansas bringing with it more arctic temperatures.

Little Rock and other parts of the state got as much as seven inches of the fluffy white stuff, closing schools for four days.

The month of January was the 12th coldest in Little Rock's history since the National Weather Service started keeping records in 1879. The average low temperature was 25.1 degrees, 7.4 degrees colder than normal. The month's coldest temperature was one below zero on January 11, tying the record set in 1886 for the same date.

Semester tests had to be rescheduled because of the ice and snow for Thursday, Friday and Monday — January 21-25.

More major snow storms entered the state in February, and schools were closed again. Classes were dismissed several times when light mists caused hazardous driving conditions on many Little Rock streets.

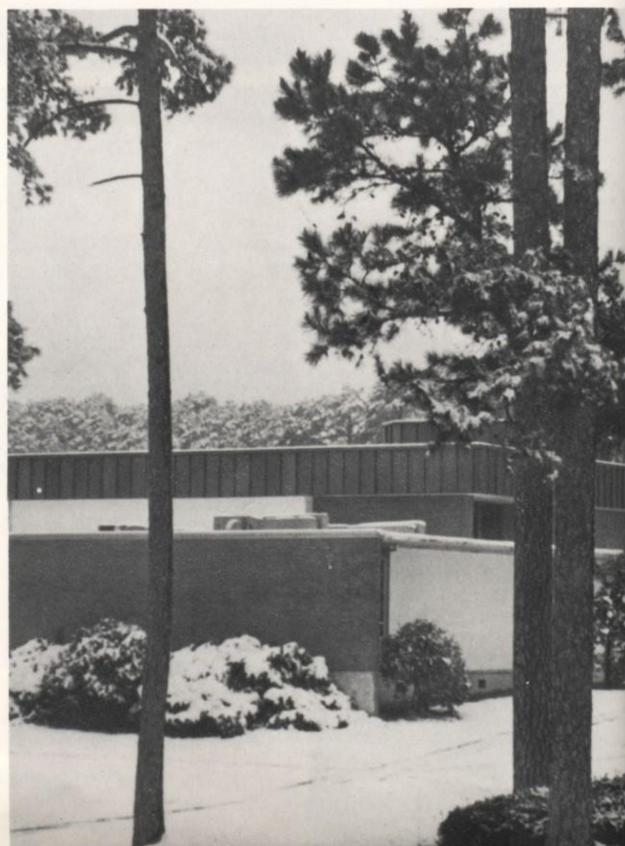

While schools were dismissed several students spent their time in the snow having snow fights, building snowmen, sledding, and fourwheeling.

Snow or no, the winter of '82 will be remembered as one of the coldest in years for Arkansas as well as the rest of the country.

Students Juggle Jobs And School

Juggling schoolwork and a job was routine for some students.

The rising rate of inflation and the cost of living increase made it necessary for some students to get jobs. They earned spending money and money for college.

The closing of Hall's campus posed a problem for some job-holders, while others who obtained work permits could leave campus early to go to work.

Senior J. D. McCay who worked at Sportstop, Inc. said, "I got my job to help pay for college and for the upkeep of my car, and so I could earn extra spending money."

Hall's students became gas station attendants, animal keepers, ice cream scoopers, clerical and clothes store workers and cooks. Many students acquired their own jobs while others obtained needed jobs through one of Hall's work programs.

Current Fads Enhance Wardrobe

Current fashions and fads were worn daily by Hall students during the past year. Clothes were not chosen to match, but to compliment.

For the casual look, girls often wore button-down-the-back sweaters and shirts, knickers, large leaf earrings, and metallic shoes. Socks were selected to compliment skirts and pedal pushers. Jordache and Gloria Vanderbilt jeans headed the list for girls. High heels were replaced with low heels for the more casual and intelligent look.

Guys sported khaki pants, and V-neck pull-over sweaters worn with button down shirts. They were often seen wearing Yves Saint Laurent and Polo jeans.

Calvin Kleins, Izods, penny loafers, Polos, and Topsiders were seen on girls as well as guys during the year. Button-down polos and oxfords were worn by some every day, while other students sported Fox brands and basic cotton shirts. Blue jeans were as popular as ever during the year. Lee's and Levis were worn by both girls and guys. Boots which usually were worn during the winter were brought out of the closets during the fall.

Pleated coats were among the winter fashions. For the fourth year, down jackets and vests were popular.

Clothes containing the colors orange and white were most enjoyed by fashion-conscious Warriors. Everyone was seen wearing the two popular colors at least once a week!

Hall's own shoe store. Various shoe styles such as these were seen on many students during the year.

Aren't we chic? Carla Vault and Greg Armstrong dress in casual school-day attire.

Hobbies Popular Among Students

Hobby time for students had to be planned around school, work, and activities.

Students at Hall showed an interest in such activities as swimming, skating, horseback riding, and fourwheeling driving.

Art designing, golfing, playing musical instruments, singing, and playing board games were some of the popular hobbies year round.

Giggles Roller Cade provided skates and space for the outgoing disco skater.

Electronic games were popular with the guys and they could be found every day at Aladdin's Castle in the University Mall, Taco Kid, and at all pizza places and grocery stores.

Parking lot favorites were photography, football and frisbee, since there was available space for everyone to participate in the fun at lunch and after school.

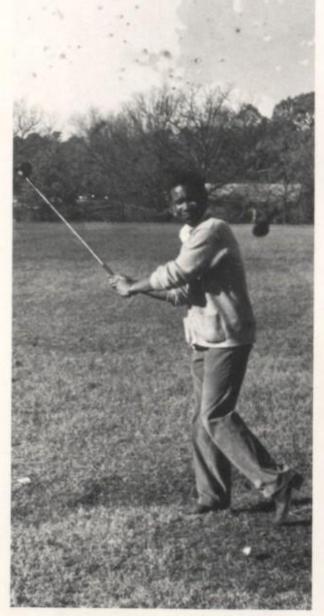

While some students practiced their hobbies in public places, others relaxed in the privacy of their own homes while dancing or listening to their favorite style of music whether it was disco, punk rock or soul.

"My hobby is playing and beating anybody who is ready to lose a game of backgammon," Lisa Nooner, senior, said.

Spring Fever Hits Hall Students

After one of the coldest winters in Arkansas history, students welcomed the arrival of spring.

An increase in absenteeism was quite common when "spring fever" hit Hall.

Students spent sunny spring days in such activities as flying kites, playing frisbee, golf, visiting Oaklawn, fishing, hiking, sailing, taking trips to Pinnacle Mt., and riding horses. Regardless of the type of activity chosen, the outdoors was one thing they had in common.

School related activities in the spring included cheerleader and Cheer-o-kee tryouts, student body elections, and speech tournaments.

This year was the fourth year for the Student Council to sponsor the spring carnival. It was held after school in April.

Some students spent beautiful spring days practicing for the school play. This year, Harlequins put on a musical rendition of "Our Town."

Four different athletic seasons began in spring: track and field, swimming, tennis, and golf.

For seniors, spring meant graduation from high school. Along with this came anticipation of the prom to be held at Teamsters' Hall and the graduation ceremony to be held at Barton Coliseum.

Top Ten Seniors Are All Female

Hall's Top Ten Senior List was slightly different this year from previous years because all the ten positions were held by females.

Carol Foster and Anita Heil were tied for the number one academic position among members of the 1982 graduating class with a cumulative grade point average of 4.0 — the highest possible average.

Close behind were Johnita Norman and Gayle Luber who were tied for the third highest position of the Top Ten.

Completing the list were Kathy Moore in fifth place, Binky Martin in sixth, Erin Fergusson in seventh, Debbie Petty in eighth, Kathryn Rosenbaum in ninth, and Martha Ferguson in the tenth position.

Class rank was determined by each senior's cumulative grade point average from the ninth grade to the first semester of her senior year.

Regarding her number one position, Carol Foster said, "It's taken a lot of hard work and I'm glad it has finally paid off."

For the most part these seniors were enrolled in honors classes where maintaining their superior academic records was quite an achievement. In addition, they were active in various extra-curricular activities.

Brainy but beautiful! Erin Fergusson, seventh, Binky Martin, sixth, and Kathy Moore, fifth, received top honors for their scholarship.

You'd smile, too ... Johnita Norman and Gayle Luber were just a few tenths of a point behind the number one spot and tied for the third ranking.

We know we're Tens! Kathryn Rosenbaum ranked ninth, Debbie Petty ranked eighth, and Martha Ferguson ranked tenth in the senior class.

Hall Students Win Many Honors

As they have in the past Hall students distinguished themselves this year by winning a variety of honors in local, state, and national competitions.

These honors included superior, first place, and championship awards in contests at state conventions, at tournaments, and at meets. Categories in which students competed were music, academics, athletics, writing, and art.

Special recognition for students who won awards was given at the annual Honors Night ceremony held in May. Certificates, plaques, scholarships, medals, and trophies presented at the ceremony brought honor to the school as well as the recipients.

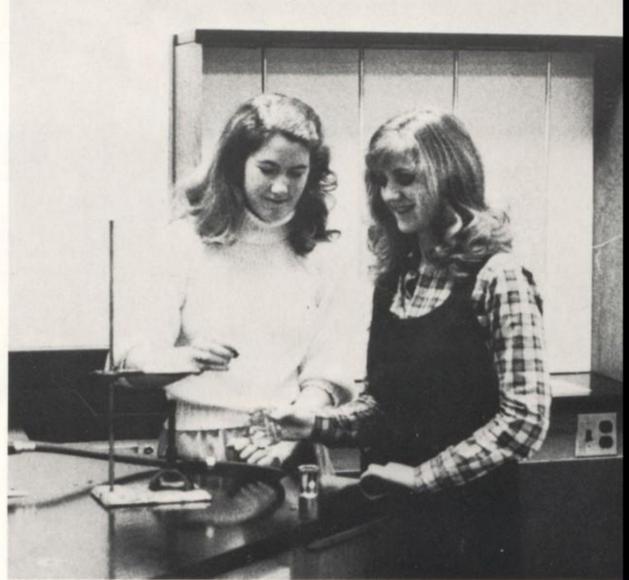

Each award reflected dedication, hard work, and superior achievement in some field.

Hugh O'Brian Youth Award. Peter Alexander was Hall's 1982 Hugh O'Brian Youth Award winner. Peter represented Hall at the state seminar in Pine Bluff.

Engineers for a day. Carol Foster and Binky Martin were selected by a panel of science teachers as students who were outstanding in both science and math. They represented Hall during National Engineers Week. Carol was given a tour of Blass, Chilote, Carter, Lanford, and Wilcox Company. Binky toured the Public Works Department.

National Merit Finalists. Seven Hall students were named National Merit Finalists. They were Jane Zachritz, Katie Warner, Russ McDonough, Andy Winston, Martha Ferguson, Linda Blackburn, and Carobeth Glasscock.

Twenty-one delegates from Hall attended Boys' and Girls' State this summer. Eight boys went to Boys' State at Henderson State University and 13 girls attended Girls' State at Ouachita Baptist University.

Delegates to Boys' State were John Bodenhamer, David Briggs, Brian Harrison, Jeff McNeil, Leslie O'Neal, Scott Tanner, Donald Wheeler, and Chuck Workman. Boys' State was sponsored by the American Legion. To represent Hall at the conference delegates had to be nominated by their teachers and voted on by the faculty. The eight boys who had the most votes attended.

Girls' State delegates were Stephanie Bonnick, Martha Ferguson, Erin Fergusson, Anita Heil, Terri Hollingsworth, Laura Lecky, Kathy Moore, Johnita Norman, Lisa Robinson, Jo Webber, and Jane Zachritz. Girls' State was sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary. Delegates were selected the same way as Boys' State representatives were. Binky Martin and Carol Foster attended the session independently.

Boys' and Girls' State featured guest speakers including former Governor Bill Clinton and Governor Frank White. They lectured about elections, parties on the local, state, and national level, and their political careers.

Both programs were highlighted by visits to the Capitol, where representatives observed officials at work. They also learned about the roles of legislators by drawing up bills and laws.

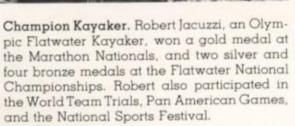

Jeff McNeil, a delegate to Boys' State, said he had a fun and memorable experience. "I learned a lot about government and elections," he said. Little Rock's Junior Miss. Debbie Petty was named Little Rock's Junior Miss in the pageant in November. In January Debbie was named first runner up in the state Junior Miss Competition.

Organizations were an important part of Hall High this year. An average of about 35 students were enrolled in each of the clubs.

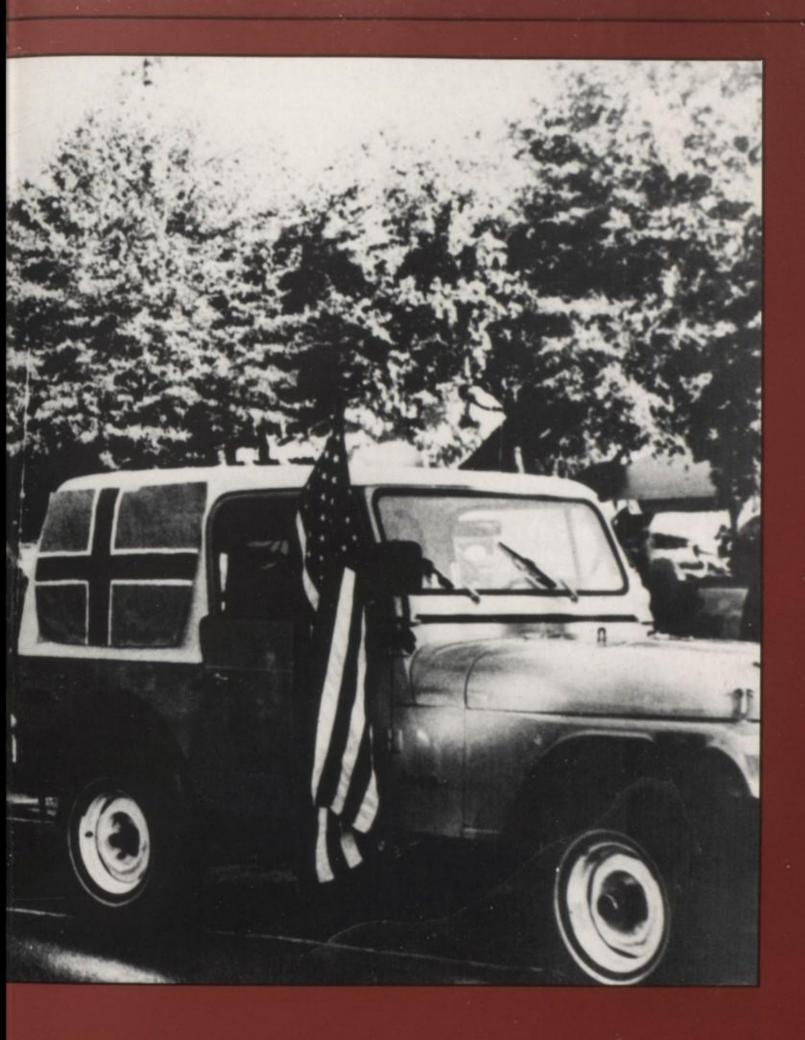

Club meetings were held during the lunch hour for the second year in a row. This schedule seemed to work well in most cases.

Clubs were especially active in the areas of service projects and money raisers. The Red Cross Club had another successful year with their annual Blood Drive. The Latin Club sold and delivered orange and white carnations during homecoming week. The Student Council sold spirit items such as new orange and white cowboy hats and Warrior pins. The Harlequins sold magnetic note pads. The FBLA sold candy bars, and the list goes on.

The War Whoop staff put out its weekly publication for the third year in a row and the 24th volume of the Warrior was published.

Jeff McNeil, vice-president of the student body, served as president of the Interclub Council which was made up of vice presidents from all the clubs at Hall. The purpose of this club was to help coordinate all club activities.

ORGANIZATIONS

Three Tri-Council Dances Given

In an effort to involve students and promote a better relationship between schools, Hall's Student Council participated in the organization of three Tri-Council dances with Central and Parkview.

The Turkey Trot, TWIRP dance, and Spring dance were Tri-Council activities. Hall's Student Council also sponsored various victory dances, the Homecoming dance and the Christmas dance. All the proceeds from the latter were given to Toys for Tots.

The Council began the year by sponsoring Sophomore Orientation.

During football season, the Council sold spirit ribbons, t-shirts, and hats to promote school spirit.

All Homecoming activities were organized by the Student Council. In addition to the dance, the Council sponsored the Court elections, an assembly, and the parade.

In October, the movie Young Frankenstein was shown to raise funds for Council activities. In February, the Council sponsored Hall's annual TWIRP week.

A new committee was set up in conjunction with the Art Club to beautify the cafeteria and gym. Art Club members painted murals and the Student Council funded the project.

In the spring the Fourth Annual Carnival was held on the practice field. A live band provided the music and clubs set up booths where they sponsored different contests and sales to raise money.

Student Council officers were Russ McDonough, president; Jeff McNeil, vice-president; Mark Lavey, treasurer; and Deana Ashworth, secretary.

War Whoop Is Published Weekly

For the third consecutive year, the War Whoop published a weekly paper.

Eleven staff members, headed by editor Andy Winston, produced one of the few weekly high school newspapers in the nation. This was accomplished despite the fact that Hall's journalism department was the only one in the District which did not have phototypesetting equipment. The printing was done by students at Metropolitan Vocational Technical Education Center.

All of the money needed to publish the paper was raised by the staff, who sold advertising during the summer and the school year to businesses and interested citizens in the community. Advertising revenues made it possible for the newspaper to be distributed free of charge to all students, faculty, advertisers, and patrons.

During the summer staff members participated in a workshop which prepared the students for meeting the demanding weekly deadlines and taught them more about writing for a newspaper.

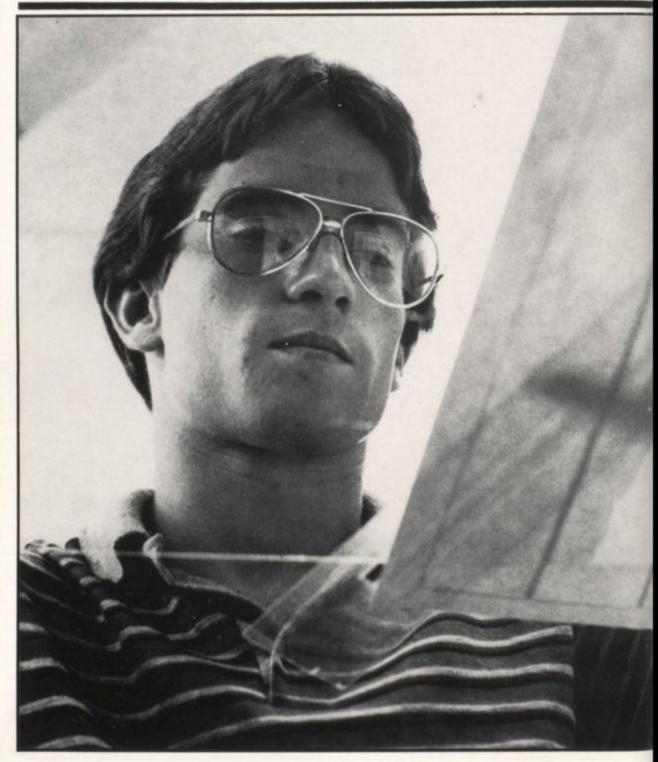

Staff members and their sponsor, Mrs. Tom Christie, attended the Arkansas Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists Sigma Delta Chi High School Journalism Workshop in December at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. Professional newspaper and television personalties lectured.

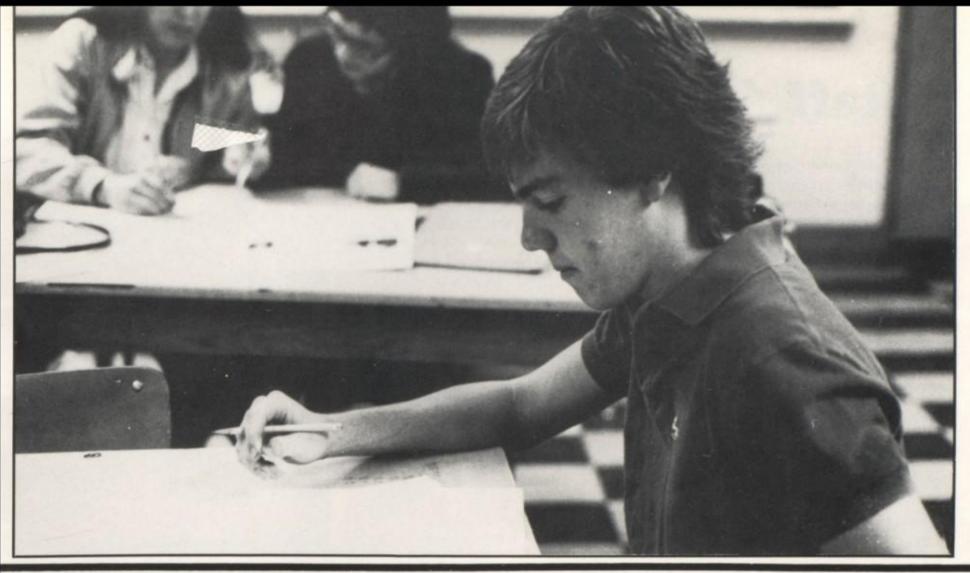

In the spring the staff attended the annual Arkansas High School Press Association Convention in Hot Springs. Once again, Superior awards in such categories as news story, editorial feature, advertisement, and column were won by members of the War Whoop Staff.

Staff Assignments Start In June

Work for the yearbook staff began early last spring when the new members were chosen for the 1981-82 Warrior.

Staff members attended meetings in June and, because Hall's yearbook is entirely self-supporting, members remained busy during the summer selling yearbook ads. Each person was given 15 ad contracts to sell in order to raise money for the funding of the yearbook.

During the year, staff members worked hard to meet five major deadlines. Writing headlines, captions, and copy for the pages, and making sure pictures were taken and cropped for layouts are just a few responsibilities a staff member must take care of.

In August, staff members attended a preschool workshop for three days, learning the basics in headline and copy writing, and how to do layouts for the yearbook pages.

Charles Johnson, Patricia Kelley,

For the first time since the Warrior has been sold with the Inkwell and Student Directory in the yearbook package, the price was raised from $16 to $20. The price increase was due to inflation and rising printing costs of yearbooks.

However, the Warrior has more pupil pages (pages with pictures of students), and is the largest and least expensive of any yearbook in the Little Rock high schools. The format of this year's yearbook is much the same as last year's, which won a First Class rating from the National Press Association. Only one dominant picture to a layout and better captions were concentrated on.

"I tried to modernize the book by adding more color and cutting down on gray shadowing and ghosted pictures," Marilyn Lucas, this year's editor, said.

The book, which was presented to the student body at the annual yearbook slide show in May, was published by the Hurley Publishing Company of Camden, Arkansas. This was the first year that Hurley, which publishes both the Central and Parkview yearbooks, has published the Hall High Warrior.

Black Sabbath Is Inkwell Movie

Hall's Inkwell staff sponsored a movie to raise money for the publications costs of the literary magazine. The movie, a scary thriller, Black Sabbath, was first planned for January 13, but due to snow had to be rescheduled for February 1.

Along with the proceeds from the movie the Inkwell received money from the publications package, consisting of the Warrior, Inkwell, and Student Directory. Interested students, parents, and teachers could also support the Inkwell by donations.

During the first semester the staff studied poetry so that they would be able to decide whether a poem was acceptable for publication.

Poetry, prose, photographs, artwork, and cartoons were accepted by the staff. The entries were judged by an editorial board, made up of members of the staff. Mrs. Sue Maddison, who was sponsor for the second year, let the staff make most of the decisions concerning the content of the magazine and intervened in the decisions only when necessary.

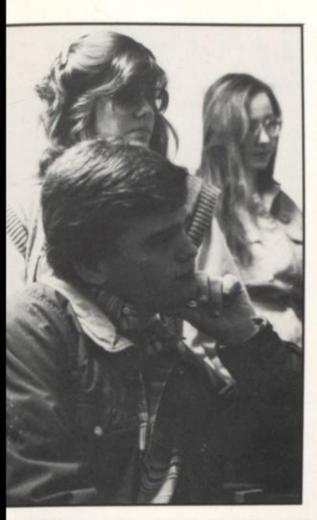

The staff worked to produce a literary magazine which represented all of the students instead of just the creative writing class.

Club Induction Held In February

Quill and Scroll, the international honorary journalism society held their annual induction ceremony in February at the home of the club's sponsor, Mrs. Tom Christie.

Following the candlelight ceremony, there was a tea in honor of the 20 new members.

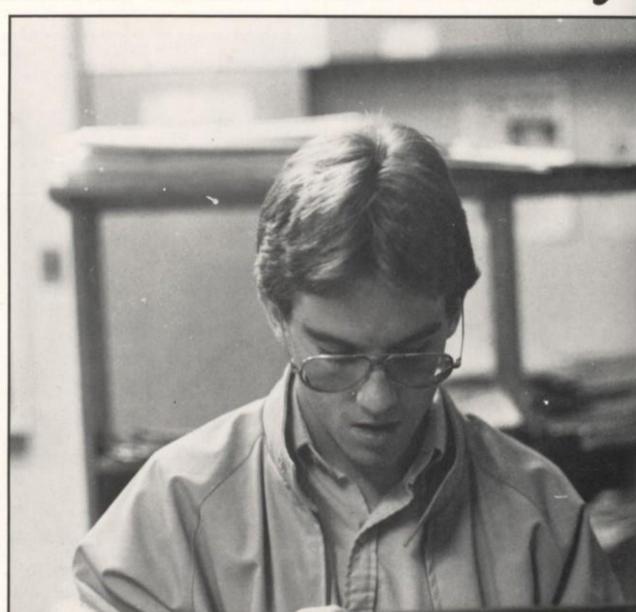

Membership in Quill and Scroll was by invitation only. Students had to be either juniors or seniors, have a "B" average and have done superior work in a particular area of journalism. All members of Hall's chapter were on either the Warrior or the War Whoop staff.

"The club's regular meetings were often devoted to getting the publications ready for the student body," Mrs. Christie said.

Andy Winston, War Whoop editor was president of Quill and Scroll. Marilyn Lucas, editor of the Warrior was vice-president; and David Briggs, Warrior staff member, was treasurer.

Each new member received a pin with the official Quill and Scroll insignia on it, and a year's subscription to the Society's magazine.

Club Assists Arthritis Foundation

Beta Club members worked closely with the Arthritis Foundation this year. The affiliation between the two started with a program and speaker at the club's meeting in October.

In December, Beta Club members sold cookbooks for the Arthritis Foundation and also did volunteer work for the Foundation. In January, club members helped with follow-up work at the Arthritis Foundation Telethon.

The Beta Club also held their annual Talent Show, participated in the Spring Carnival, and held the inductions for new members in May.

In spite of all their work, the Beta Club also managed some play time. In addition to participating in the Homecoming parade, Beta Club members got together for a cookout in the spring.

Officers of the club included Carobeth Glasscock, president; Kathy Moore, vice-president; Kathryn Rosenbaum, treasurer; Karen Ronnel, secretary; and Erin Fergusson, assistant secretary.

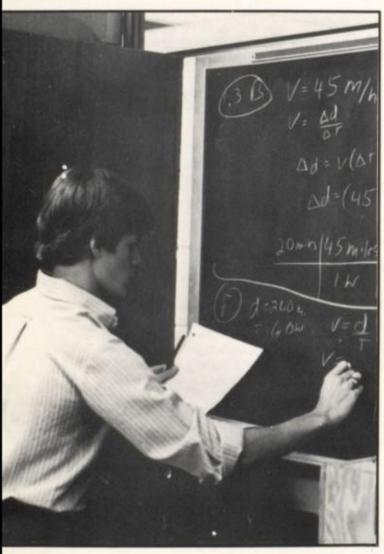

Requirements for Beta Club membership were maintaining a 3.0 grade point average and having no more than two 2's and no 3's in citizenship.

NHS Stresses Service In Area

Serious business. National Honor Society officers Kathy Moore, John Bodenhamer, and Erin Fergusson check their agenda.

Group participation was stressed in the National Honor Society (NHS) this year.

Close ties were maintained with United Cerebral Palsy in connection with their annual telethon. Due to the inclement weather, members of the NHS were not able to help in manning the telephones during the telethon.

Students helped with the office work by collecting and recording the money from the initial pledges. Mrs. Linda White, a spokeswoman for Cerebral Palsy, came to a meeting and presented a slide-show about the work of United Cerebral Palsy.

Officers elected to leadership positions this year were: John Bodenhamer, president, Erin Fergusson, vice-president, and Kathy Moore, secretary-treasurer.

For active membership within the NHS, a member had to maintain a 3.0 grade point average and have no more than one '2' in citizenship. Failure to attend two meetings resulted in expulsion from the club.

For a second service project, money was collected from members to aid Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson and family in the refurbishing of their home which was destroyed by fire January 18. Mr. Johnson is the director of the alternative classroom at Hall.

Final activities of the NHS included the initiation of the members from the junior and senior classes who were qualified for induction into the organization.

Sponsors were Mrs. Leola Norman and Mrs. Martha Crosby.

German Club Writes To Pen Pal

Members of the German Club corresponded with a Pen Pal who lives in East Germany several times during the year. "We would like to have a class exchange some day," Mrs. Olivia Griggs, club sponsor said.

Two of the meetings during the year featured guest speakers. They were Mrs. Trudy Gollsby, a former German resident who spoke on pre World War II Germany, and Udo Freyhofer, a 1981 graduate, who is a native of Dusseldorf, Germany.

Some of the club members attended a language festival at UALR in December. Members also attended the Tri-State language festival in Fayette-ville in the spring. German I and II took the German National Exam in January. "The first place winners in both categories win a trip to Germany," Chick Wells, president, said.

Latin Club Donates Two Dinners

The Latin Club, also known as the Junior Classical League, was a great service to the community. At both Christmas and Thanksgiving, a dinner consisting of turkey, ham, vegetables, drinks and desserts was donated to a needy family in Little Rock.

In order to obtain the money to buy the food for the dinners the Latin Club officers sold orange and white carnations during Homecoming week for $1.75 each. The sale was very successful and more money was made than originally expected. This extra money was used to have two pizza parties at a local pizza parlor for the officers, sponsor, and members. The club also had a Christmas party at the home of Diane Johnson, a sophomore.

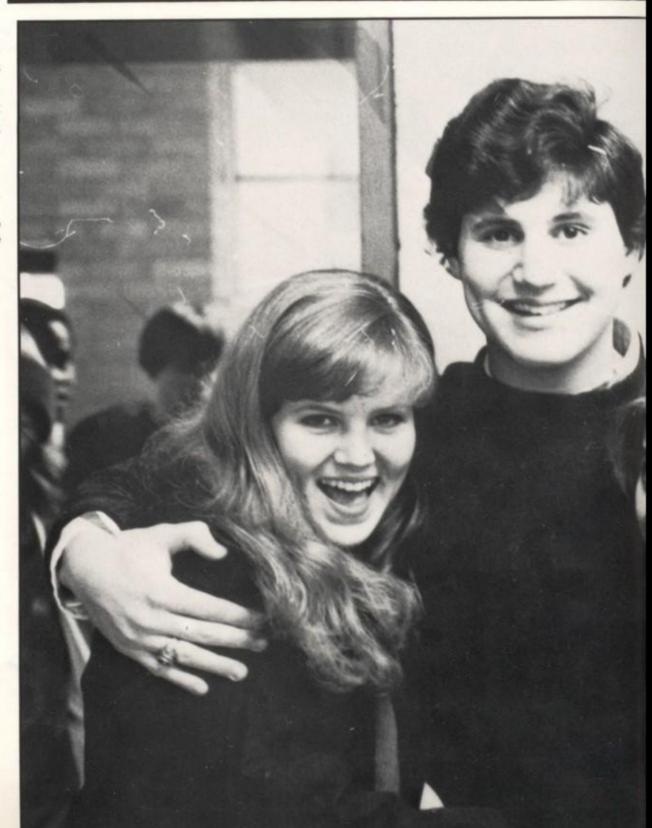

Later in the year, a Roman banquet was held and each club member was required to dress in ancient Roman attire.

The Latin Club sponsor was Mrs. Margie France. The president was Robin Gordon, the vice-president, Gene Jacobson; the secretary, Lisa Holiman; the treasurer, Deborah Pope; and the historian, Kristi White.

"Hey, watch your language!" Ricky Underwood responds to a member speaking in Latin.

Spanish Club Attends 3 Contests

Spanish Club members attended three different contests at various times during the year.

In November they participated in the language festival at UALR. In April they attended the Tri-State Language Festival and took the national Spanish exam.

Various speakers came to club meetings during the year. Two of these were Mary Yancey, former student of Hall, and Mrs. Cynthia Dabney, previous Spanish teacher. At the end of the year the Spanish members had a banquet and a party.

"The club's organization was great this year! Kris Adams and Mrs. Short should be commended," Karen Ronnel, secretary, said.

Other officers besides Karen were Kris Adams, president; Mary Ann Miller, vice-president; Lisa Holiman, treasurer; Vicki Mitchell, program chairman; Rae Warren, publicity chairman; and Christine Laney, historian.

Mrs. Deborah Short was the Spanish Club sponsor. While she was out on maternity leave during December and January, Mrs. LaVon Yepez, former Hall Spanish teacher, substituted for her, and served as the club sponsor.

Drives Are Held By Red Cross

Hall's chapter of the Red Cross sponsored two blood drives this school year. The first drive was held in November and the second was held in the spring. Both blood drives were very successful.

Many students donated blood to the Red Cross Club. In order to donate blood a student had to be at least 17 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds. Around 100 pints of blood were collected during both blood drives.

The club's Homecoming float won third place in the annual parade. The float was made under the direction of Margaret Glasgow. It featured club members collecting 24 pints of blood. The float was pulled by a Red Cross Mobile.

The club sponsored other activities besides the blood drive, such as a picnic at the river during spring. "We were really successful this year," said Mrs. Kathy Spitzer, sponsor. "Our club did a real good job."

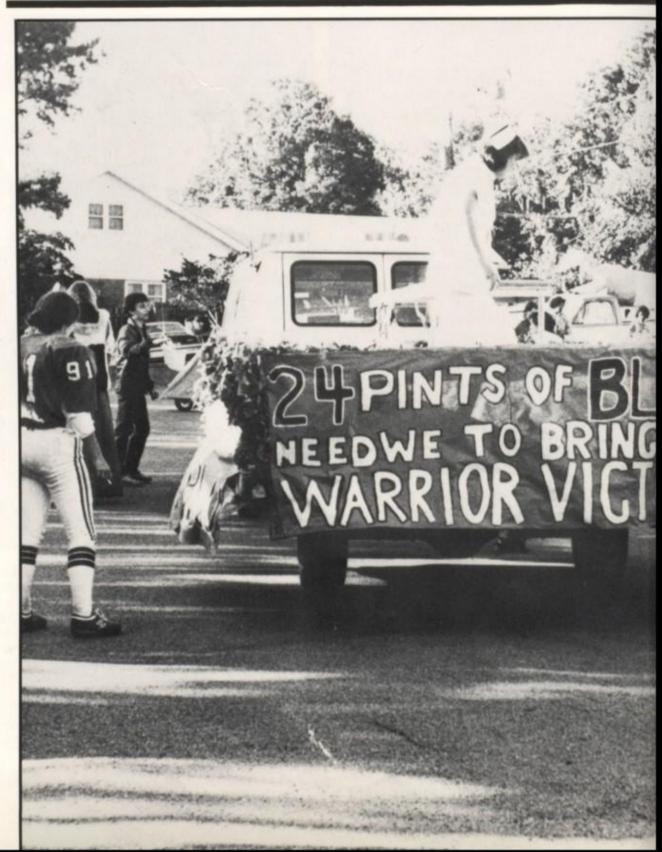

Club officers were Will Webster, president; Rebecca Davis, vicepresident; Leslie Lewis, secretary; and Stephanie Foti, treasurer.

Members of the Young Democrats participated in various projects and activities throughout the year. In February, club members stuffed envelopes and sorted mail for Senator Ben Allen. In April, club members were busy working as volunteers in the primaries for the state Democratic Committee.

"I'm really glad we volunteered to work in the state primary," Marilyn Lucas, president, said. "It helped us understand how a political committee functions."

Young Democrats were also involved in the annual Homecoming Parade and the Spring Carnival sponsored by Student Council. For Homecoming, the Warriors faced the Northeast Chargers, and the Young Democrats' float was entitled "Flush the Chargers," complete with its own automatic toilet bowl.

Democratic politicians including former Governor Bill Clinton, former United States Representative Jim Guy Tucker, and State Treasurer Julia Hughes Jones were speakers at the club's monthly meetings.

FBLA Attends Many Workshops

FBLA participants attended a variety of workshops and conferences throughout the year. At the National FBLA Leadership Conference in Chicago, club president Jo Webber received an award on behalf of the club for being the Gold Seal Chapter Winner.

Other workshops and conferences included an FBLA Officers Training Workshop in June, a fall workshop at Northeast, a Southern Region workshop in Baton Rouge, La., an FBLA city leadership conference in February, a District V leadership conference in March, a State conference in April and a National Leadership conference held in Indianapolis in July.

The year's activities began at an installation meeting in May, 1981 at the Western Sizzlin'.

A candy sale was held in the fall to fund club projects and activities.

At Thanksgiving, the FBLA again sponsored the Thanksgiving baskets for Youth Home, Inc., and the Turkey-Day assembly.

Hall's FBLA chapter participated in National FBLA Week in February. Members organized activities which included a speech by Arkansas' First Lady Gay White.

For the second year, the FBLA sponsored a tour of the business department for Career and Life Planning classes in spring.

Officers were Jo Webber, president; Felicia Webster, vice-president; Sherry Williamson, secretary; Theresa Jones, treasurer; Cathy Crume, reporter; Angela Payne, historian; and Kim Files, parliamentarian.

Sponsors were Mrs. Wondrue Johnson, Mrs. Gladystine Watson, Mrs. Jane Arthurs, Mrs. Joyce Harms, Miss Anne Looney, and Mrs. Julie Rocker.

Math and Sciences Join Forces

Mu Alpha Theta, the math club, and the Science Club joined forces this year to become the Math-Science Club.

The major function of the Math-Science Club was to show its members practical applications of the math and science material they were learning in school.

To accomplish this goal, various speakers were selected by the program committee to come to Hall and speak during the club meetings. One speaker, Dr. David Peterson, from the University of Central Arkansas, explained about sine wave graphs that develop when music is analyzed through sound equipment.

A contest was held by the Math-Science Club to see who could write a program for the PET computer, which would find the first 200 prime numbers. Mark Botner, a junior, won the contest for the fastest program.

Mr. Mike Norton, one of the club's sponsors, said that by combining the two groups more students were attracted to the club, and previous attendance conflicts were eliminated.

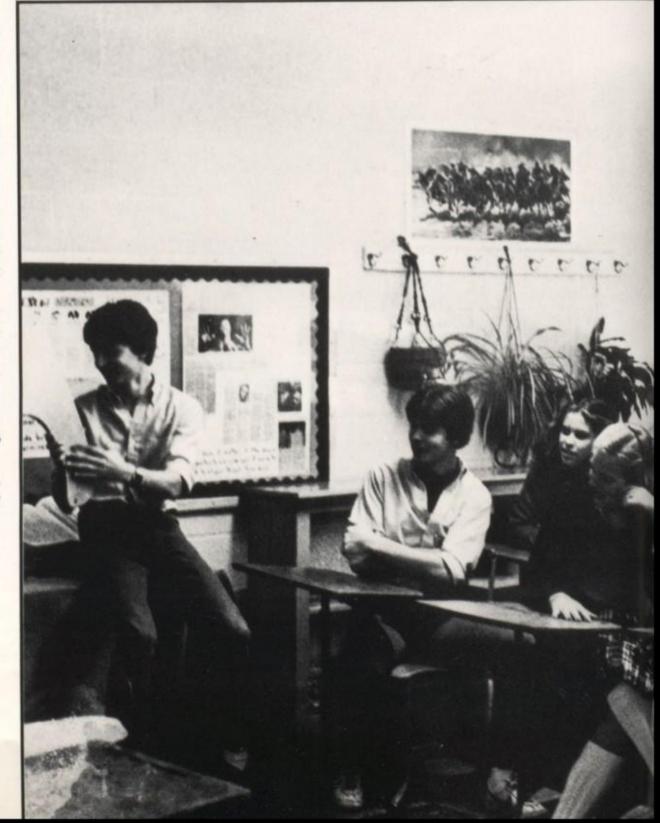

Membership into the club was open to all students of Hall High School. The large number of members showed tremendous enthusiasm and functioned well as a group. Evidence of this unity shone through during Homecoming Week when the Math-Science Club won first place in the float contest.

Hank Bates was chosen as president. Other club officers included Anita Heil, vice-president; Carol Foster, secretary; and Laura Lecky, treasurer.

"Maybe some day." Margaret Roy, junior, views projects completed by math-science students.

Harlequins Is Hall's Largest Club

Baking bread. Linda Blackburn takes something out of an oven during "Our Town" rehearsal.

The Harlequin Club was the largest of all clubs in the school this year with approximately 110 members. Each member was necessary because there were many activities in which the club became involved.

During Homecoming Week, the Harlequins made a float to enter in the annual parade. For a money raising project, the club sold note pads. Proceeds from the sale were used to produce the 1982 Harlequin play "Our Town," and proceeds from "Our Town" went to the fund for next year's play.

"Our Town" had a cast of 30 and a stage crew of 11. This play was a change of pace from the usual musicals of the past years because musicals are bigger and more expensive than small plays like "Our Town."

The play was directed by Mrs. Judy Trice and stage manager was Gordon Ward. Principal characters were Kathryn Rosenbaum, John Campbell, Chuck Workman, Linda Blackburn and Rebecca White.

"Mrs. Trice plans to alternate musicals and small plays each year from now on because of the high cost of a musical every year," Linda Blackburn, vice president of the club, said.

The stage crew, led by Gordon Ward, was also a part of Harlequins. The crew worked back stage for every assembly. They also worked back stage for the Daedalus Productions of New York, and helped with their production of "Pippin," which was held in the fall.

Other officers of Harlequins were Missy Kaufman, president; Claudette Bush, secretary; and Robin Gordon, treasurer. The club was sponsored by Mrs. Trice.

Hall Band Keeps Busy Schedule

Hall's band not only performed during halftime at football games, but also kept a hectic schedule playing special concerts and attending contests.

During football season, the band practiced Monday through Friday preparing for halftime performances. The entire membership of the band participated in these performances. Drum Major Keith Dooley led the band while it was on the field.

Mr. Merel Boyce, director, directed the band in classroom practice and in concerts and performances.

After football season, Mr. Boyce held tryouts for band members to determine the division of first, second, and stage bands.

The first band served as the concert band. They went to regional contests to compete in playing and marching with other regional bands. They also presented several concerts for the public.

This was the first year for Hall to have a stage band. They presented a program as part of the Christmas concert, given by the band and choir for the student body.

Band members competed in January in All-Region Tryouts. This was an opportunity for each band member to show his or her own skill and talent. Members who made the All-Region First Band were eligible to trytout for All-State Band.

Mr. Randy Erwin served as assistant band director.

Concert Choir Has Performances

Concert Choir kept busy during the year by performing in assemblies, concerts, and district and state competitions. They also gave local performances for the general public.

The Concert Choir spent much of the fall practicing for concerts presented to parents and gave a fall concert for parents and a Christmas concert for students and parents. Some members of the choir tried out for All-Region Choir on November 14. The next contest they attended was on December 17, where the Choir as a group, received all one's. This was on a scale of one to five with one being the top score. The final contest which the choir attended was the Spring Festival where they competed with all schools in the region.

The choir presented a Spring Concert during March. This was followed by a special music review or Pops Concert given in April. This was a special assembly presented to the student body.

During the year, the choir performed various special concerts for civic clubs and nursing homes. They also presented a Christmas Concert at the Capitol on December 10.

Mr. Randy Erwin was choir director this year.

Madrigals Act As Support Group

Madrigals: Rick Kinley, Patti McQueen, Lane Burnett, Allyson Carter, Stuart Peacock, Leslie Douglas, Chuck Workman, Julie Gaylor, Wes McHan, Mary Ann Miller, Will Webster, Carla Frost, and Danny Moore.

Madrigals, which acted as a support group for the Concert Choir, continued for its second year.

The Madrigals was a small ensemble consisting of a few choir members who auditioned for their position in the group. The members performed no concerts on their own, but did support and sing along with the Concert Choir. They did, however, present a short melody of 50's songs at the 50's Day Assembly.

The Madrigals did have one special project during the year in which the Concert Choir was not involved. They sold singing Valentines to teachers and students during the month of February. These singing Valentines were performed in a barber shop quartet style and were presented to recipients on Valentine's Day. This was the club's money raising project of the year. The Valentines sold for $1.50 for in-school messages and $5 for out-of-school valentines.

Money from the valentines was used to help pay for the choir trip taken later in the year.

The Madrigal's sponsor was Mr. Randy Erwin. He had Madrigals meet Tuesdays at lunch and on a few week nights to rehearse.

Industrial Arts Club Enters Fair

Each spring the Industrial Arts Club competes with other industrial arts clubs throughout Arkansas in the state annual Industrial Arts Fair. This year Hall's chapter members entered approximately 20 projects in the fair, which was held in Pine Bluff.

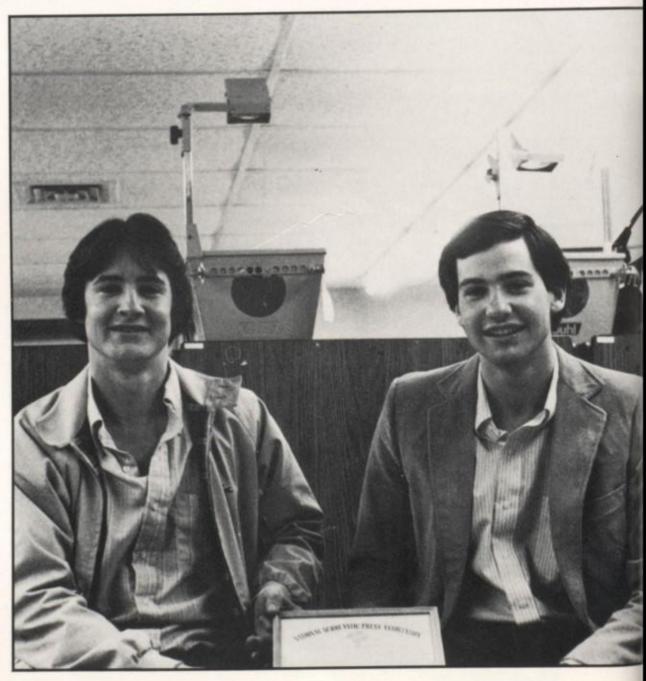

They competed in two categories — mechanical drawing and engineering drafting. Mr. Jim Mathews, club sponsor, helped each student individually with his project for the fair.

Jeff McNeil won first place in the state mechanical drawing contest and Mark Grimes won first place in the state engineering drafting contest, both with perfect scores. Mark Boswell and Fred Blackwell won second place awards in the fair.

"Our students did pretty well this year. We had four winners," said Mr. Mathews.

This year's Art Club affected Hall and its appearance in a positive way. This was remarkable since there hadn't been an active Art Club since 1980.

Beautifying the school and promoting school spirit were the main objectives adopted by the club for the year. Art Club members took their free time to work on painting assignments around the school.

At Christmas, members painted holiday scenes on the windows and trophy cases around the office area.

"We wanted the school to look less boring for the holidays," Kristi White, club vice-president, said. "Painting the windows certainly made a difference."

To promote school spirit, the Art Club also painted a "Warriors Are Superstars" mural, above the lockers by the Student Council room, to replace the banner which had been up all year.

Other Art Club activities included examining different art classes at an all-day field trip to Henderson State University, visiting a commercial artist's studio, visiting Channel 7, and attending the club Christmas party.

In addition to Kristi, Art Club officers for the year were Kent Potts, president; and Karen Wilson, secretary.

Mrs. Sarah Miller and Miss Gail King served as the Art Club sponsors for this year.

VICA Participates In Conference

In October, the Hall High ICT-VICA officers participated in the state leadership conference held in Hot Springs. Three members of Hall's club won awards.

Tim Davidson won first place in club business, Scott Rushin won second place in club business, and Steve Leeks won third place in opening and closing ceremonies. Other members who attended the event at Hot Springs and the categories in which they competed were Kenneth Walton, Speech; Regina Hampton, Opening and Closing Session; Sheree Walters and Michael Brasser in Parliamentary Procedure.

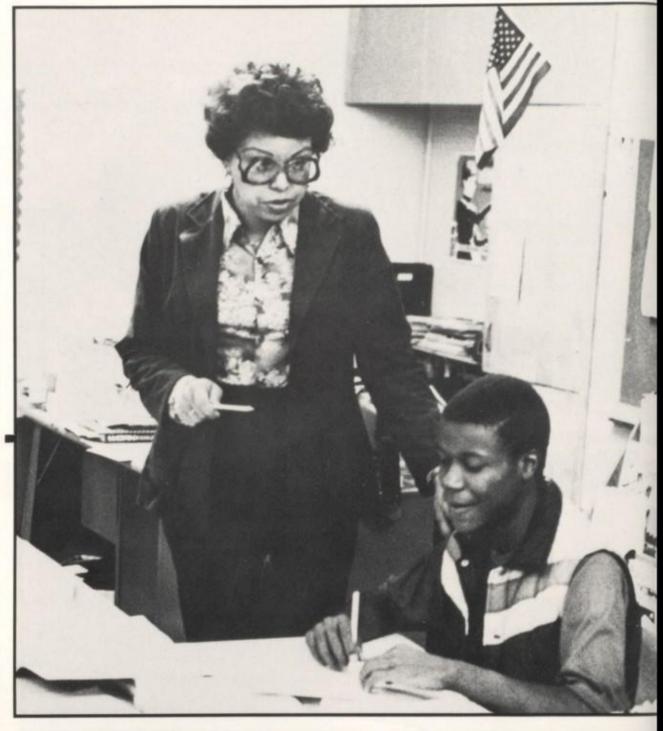

Other fall activities also included filling Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets for the needy. Later in the year, VICA members planned and held an appreciation banquet for their employers who had given the students opportunities to work and learn on-the-job skills in various Little Rock businesses.

"In VICA students are working together, putting ideas to work to better themselves, the school, community, and nation," Mrs. Marylee R. Watson, sponsor of ICT-VICA I and II, said. "VICA offers co-curricular activities that make education and training more meaningful."

Mr. Pat Aydelott also sponsored an ICT-VICA I club.

HOE Club Helps In Blood Drive

Health Occupations Education club (HOE) members helped the Red Cross Club with the blood drive. Since the members worked in nursing homes and other health related atmospheres, they understood the need for a successful one. They also helped with blood pressure screenings at the Mall.

In the regular club meetings, HOE members and officers discussed plans for activities and projects. In January, the club sold candy as a fund-raising project. The club also sponsored the HOE teacher of the year. This was an event in which an outstanding teacher was honored at the end of the year.

HOE Club officers were Lavaran Lewis, president; Cathy Butler, vice-president; Emily Heard, secretary; and Rhonda Regnier, parliamentarian. Mrs. Charlotte Yates was the club sponsor.

"Since most of us are very busy with our health occupation, we really enjoy having a club for relaxing," Rhonda Regnier said.

DECA Sells Candy For Project

Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) sold Christmas tree ornaments and M&M's as fundraising projects to support their other club activities.

In December DECA participated in the annual Toys for Tots Drive in conjunction with the Marine Corps. Members collected toys and distributed them to the children of needy families.

A requirement of membership in the club was that the members be enrolled in Distributive Education class. Officers and members attended some specific leadership conferences. On October 8, a state-wide conference was held at University of Central Arkansas in Conway, and at the end of February, a two-day state career development conference was held which most DECA members attended.

Officers of the club were Ken Stocker, president; Pat Hays, vice-president; Carla Bloodworth, secretary; Kirsten Bryles, treasurer; Beverly Coleman, reporter; and John Scott, historian. Mrs. Brenda Curtis served as sponsor for the club.

CCECA Active Throughout Year

Members of the Coordinated Career Education Chapter of Arkansas (CCECA) attended the State Leadership Training Conference on the campus of the University of Central Arkansas (UCA) in Conway. The conference held in October was a workshop for the club's officers.

Other activities which kept the CCECA club busy this year included filling Thanksgiving baskets to present to the school's annual Thanksgiving assembly in November, competing at different job skill areas at the State CCECA Contest, planning club fund raisers prior to the Christmas holidays, and holding a club banquet in March.

CCECA, a vocational club teaching skills in job finding and community involvement, also promotes good citizenship and leadership abilities, and attitude development.

"The club provides students with various work experience that will lead to future career skills," Mr. Emanuel Brooks, club sponsor, said.

This year's CCECA club officers were Larry Shelman, president; Diannah Henry, vice-president; Lisa Williams, secretary; Linda Sims, treasurer; Kempner Jones, parliamentarian; and John Mayernick, club reporter.

The CCECA sponsors, in addition to Mr. Brooks, were Mrs. Elna Hasberry, Miss Glenda Thessing, and Miss Lydia Kidd.

Keyettes also made a Thanksgiving basket and gave it to the Salvation Army.

"It's fun helping others," secretary Cindy Buzbee said. "I feel good when I know that I have helped another person."

In May Keyettes sold tickets to and served at the Kiwanis Club Pancake Breakfast. The money from the tickets sold by the Keyettes went to the Keyette treasury.

"The Kiwanis Club is very generous and helpful to the Keyettes," junior member Susan Henson said.

In addition to Cindy other officers for this year were Johnita Norman, vice president; and Kim Sanders, treasurer.

Mrs. Joan Gage and Mrs. Carolyn Teeter sponsored the Keyettes.

Y-Teens Play In Football Game

Warrior Y-Teens donned their football jerseys to meet the tough Central Y-Teens in the city-wide Powder Puff football tournament held in November. The girls practiced nights and weekends to prepare for this event.

Despite vigorous preparation, the Hall Y-Teens lost to the Tigers at Pulaski Academy's football field.

Members of the boys' football team coached the girls. Coaches included Ivan Wilson, Charles Johnson, Todd Adkins and Wes Williams. Junior and senior boys put on cheerleading outfits and cheered for the Y-Teens.

In September a membership swimming party was held at Sylvia Schwander's house. A garage sale was held in December at Carolyn Landfair's house to raise money for future events.

Hall Y-Teens joined other Y-Teens from high schools and junior highs throughout Little Rock and North Little Rock for city-wide events. In addition to Powder Puff football, these included the Mother-Daughter Tea, Sadie Hawkins Dance, Father-Daughter Night, Christmas Brunch, World Mutual and Super Teens.

A city planning session was held in September to prepare for city-wide events. Members of Hall's Y-Teens served as chairpersons. Sandra Sherrod was chairman of Powder Puff. Sylvia Schwander was co-chairman of Super Teens, Fara Westbrook was co-chairman of World Mutual and Dana Wright was co-chairman of Father-Daughter Night.

Hall's officers attended an officer training session at the YWCA in August. This year's officers were Sandra Sherrod, president; Laura Halford, vice president; Sylvia Schwander, treasurer; Carolyn Landfair, secretary; Fara Westbrook, social chairman; Kim Brewer, Inter Club Council; and Dana Wright, chaplain.

Mrs. Marcia Lecky sponsored the Y-Teens for the 1981-82 year.

FHA Serves Children's Hospital

This year's Future Homemakers of America's community service project was sponsoring Halloween activities for the children in Arkansas Children's Hospital. Baskets, coloring books and stickers were given to all children.

The annual city-wide meeting was held Saturday, October 10, at Sylvan Hills High School. Several of Hall's FHA members attended the state convention held at Robinson Auditorium in March. Four of Hall's members attended the state youth camp at Camp Couchdale near Hot Springs.

Selling popsicles at lunch during the spring was this year's fund raising project.

The club motto was "Toward New Horizons." Club officers were Phyllis Fisher, president; and Angela Thomasson, secretary. The office of vice-president was omitted this year. Mrs. L. P. Mason and Mrs. Lenora Dyer were club sponsors.

FHA was an organization of boys and girls studying Home Economics. The main goal was helping individuals improve personal, family, and community living.

Hall's exchange students this year were Ragheidur Armansdottir from Iceland, Warren Chamberlain from Australia, Pierre Larsen from Denmark and Maria Mendes from Portugal. The exchange students lived with Hall students and their families.

Rageidur Armansdottir lived with the Wold family, while Warren Chamberlain resided with Wes McHan. Pierre Larsen resided with Mary Ann and Laura Miller, and Maria Mendes resided with Robert Haywood and his parents.

The exchange students participated in the Interstate Exchange which allowed them to visit a different state for a week to live with another family.

The state-wide AFS convention was held in Little Rock this year. Little Rock families were able to house visiting AFS students for a weekend. During the convention students held group discussions, viewed filmstrips and listened to speakers. The convention ended with a dinner and a dance.

Hall's AFS chapter took time out for a weekend canoeing trip on the Buffalo River this fall. Other events sponsored by the AFS were a float in the annual Homecoming parade, and dances and a booth in the Student Council Carnival.

Club officers were Mary Ann Miller, president; Patti McQueen, vicepresident; Karen Ronnel, secretary; and Susan Henson, treasurer. Sponsor was Mr. Doug Pilcher.

New Club Started For St. Jude

Hall students started a new club this year for those interested in helping the children of Saint Jude Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. Hall's Chapter was founded by Mr. Sam Kent.

Members participated in a citywide fund raising event to raise money for the hospital. They collected aluminum cans and newspapers. In conjunction with other chapters they helped with the National St. Jude telethon which aired in the spring.

The members collected aluminum cans for a second time throughout the month of April. Proceeds went to finance a picnic for club members.

In the spring members distributed the familiar St. Jude Research Hospital cans to every class in the building for donations.

"The members of the club feel there's a need for aiding the children of St. Jude Hospital that's not being met by the public," Trina Bickerstaff, president, said.

Serving with Trina were Julie Kaplan, vice president; and Barbara Millard, secretary. The other club sponsors were Miss Mary K. Sanders and Mr. Doug Pilcher.

Three clubs which were small in size remained active this year and contributed service to the school. They were the Inter-Club Council, Intervention Team, and Paperback Swap.

The Inter-Club Council was made up of the vice-presidents of all the school's clubs. Jeff McNeil was the president and Miss Mary K. Sanders was the sponsor.

The Intervention Team conducted the peer-tutoring program again this year. In the program, students with "B" averages or above helped other students who were having difficulty with courses. Membership in the club consisted of students and faculty who worked on ways to improve studentfaculty relationships. Sponsors were Miss Mary K. Sanders, Mrs. Louise Rollefson, Mrs. Charlene Carpenter, and Miss Lucy Towbin.

The Paperback Swap Club was formed for students who enjoyed reading. Students met once a month to swap paperback books. Lisa Blackwell was the president and Mrs. Gail Strange and Mrs. Sue Maddison were the sponsors.

Pep Club Full of Warrior Spirit

Pep Club members attended football and basketball games to assist the cheerleaders and Cheer-o-kees in creating spirit. Members made banners for games and pep assemblies.

Club members had to have 100 points accumulated at the end of the year in order to be eligible to try-out for cheerleader, Cheer-o-kee, or squaw. Demerits were given for misconduct as well as for tardiness to games and meetings.

Merits were given for making banners and five points were given for attendance at games. Ten points were given for every out-of-town game attended and also for every conference game attended at Barton Coliseum.

Records concerning points, absences, and eligibility were kept by the president and vice-president of the Pep club. At each game, members were given a certain time to be present so roll-call could be taken before the game started.

Pep Club members and officers got new uniforms. Officers wore white skirts and sweaters, and members wore orange skirts and white sweaters.

Officers for the 1981-82 Pep Club were Sandy Baskin, president; Jackie Wise, vice-president; Beverly Cole, secretary; Toni Lane, sergeant-at-arms, and Kim Brown, Inter-Club Council representative. Mrs. Carolyn Dokes was the sponsor.

Cheer-o-kee Club Remains Active

Cheer-o-kee Club members devoted time and money to projects for their secret pals. Members consisted of cheerleaders, Cheer-o-kees, and the squaw.

Each member of the Cheer-o-kee Club donated time to paint wooden teepees containing the players' numbers. Every football and basketball player received a teepee to display at his home. Lockers of football players were decorated by the members during football season.

Before important conference games, caravans were organized to show school support and spirit.

Members of the Cheer-o-kee Club nominated guys for the Homecoming Chief's Court. David Briggs, Homecoming Chief, headed the float which was entered in the annual Homecoming Day parade.

The 1981-82 Cheer-o-kee Club officers were Mary Ann Miller, president; Jane Zachritz, vice-president; Binky Martin, secretary/historian; and Lisa Robinson, treasurer.

Sponsors were Mrs. Sharon Baugh and Mrs. Cathy Fakouri.

Cheerleaders Make Improvements

"Better pep assemblies and greater student body participation were our main objectives this year," Sarah Wallace, varsity cheerleader captain, said.

More planning went into cheerleader sponsored activities to accomplish this goal. Not only did the cheerleaders provide more humorous skits during pep assemblies, but more students were called on to participate in these skits, contributing to the spirit and excitement of Hall's games.

To keep school spirit at a high all year, the cheerleaders held pep breakfasts, sold orange and white pom-pons, had a "Roast Parkview" bonfire, organized caravans, worked on pep assembly backdrops and game run-throughs, and the varsity cheerleaders sold "Super Senior" T-shirts.

The cheerleaders were assigned "Secret Pal" football and basketball players and each made teepee's and tomahawks for their guys. The cheerleaders also decorated the locker room several times during the year before games and bought watermelon for the football team during summer practice.

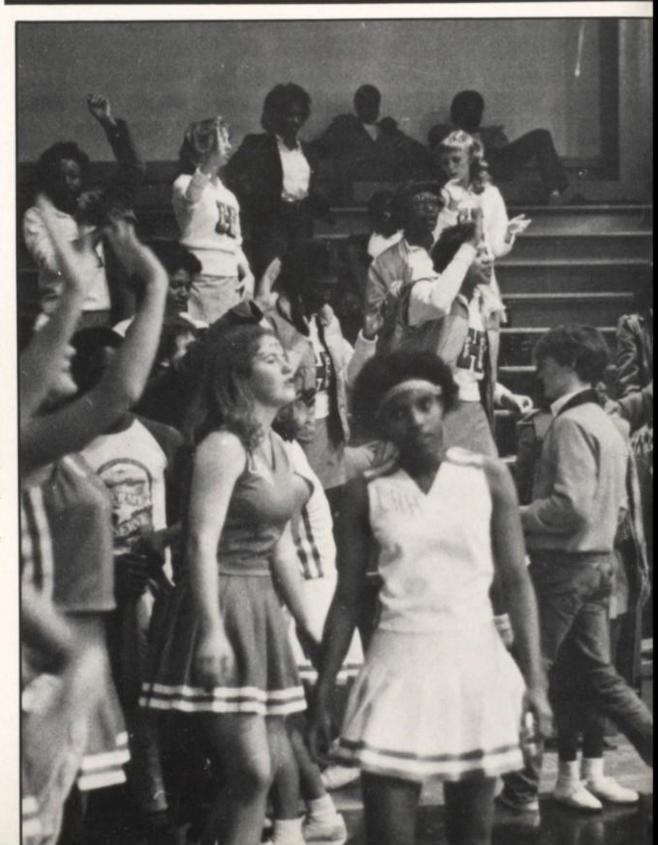

The cheerleaders sponsored "Spirit Week" in the week preceding the Parkview/Hall game and held several dances during the year.

In addition to Sarah, other cheerleader officers were Melanie Summerlin, co-captain; and the junior varsity officers were Janey Pearson, captain; and Suzanne Woods, cocaptain.

In June of 1981 22 girls were selected as the 1981-82 Cheer-o-kees. The girls started their practice sessions two weeks before school. As a result of their hard work the Cheer-o-kees were allowed to buy one new uniform of the three they wear throughout the year.

Marching in parades seemed to be the Warrior drill team's specialty this year. The Little Rock Christmas parade, a parade celebrating the 100th Birthday of Little Rock, and the Hall High Homecoming parade were the major events that the Cheer-o-kees participated in. In addition to the parades the Cheer-o-kees marched at several Warrior football and basketball games and performed at every pep assembly.

To raise money this year, the Cheer-o-kees sold Rubik's cubes and Hall High Warrior tumblers. This money went to the Cheer-o-kee club which helps sponsor the drill team.

Mrs. Cathy Fakouri, a new addition to the Drama department, was sponsor for the 1981-82 year. This year's captain was Stephanie Bonnick, co-captain was Paula Turner, senior sergeant-at-arms was Karen Ronnel, and Carolyn Landfair served as junior sergeant-at-arms.

Chee.-o-kee drummers were John Adkins and Reggie Baker.

"What basketball game?" Sharon Armstrong prepares her squad for their halftime march.

The athletes from Hall displayed an unusual amount of spirit and endurance throughout their seasons. Although they might not have always come out on top, they continued to show the true spirit of sportsmanship.

The football team had a fairly good season, ending up with a record of seven and four, and finishing ninth in rank. Aside from the upsets, there were joys, such as the thrill of beating Parkview for the second year in a row after the Warriors' six-year losing streak against the Patriots.

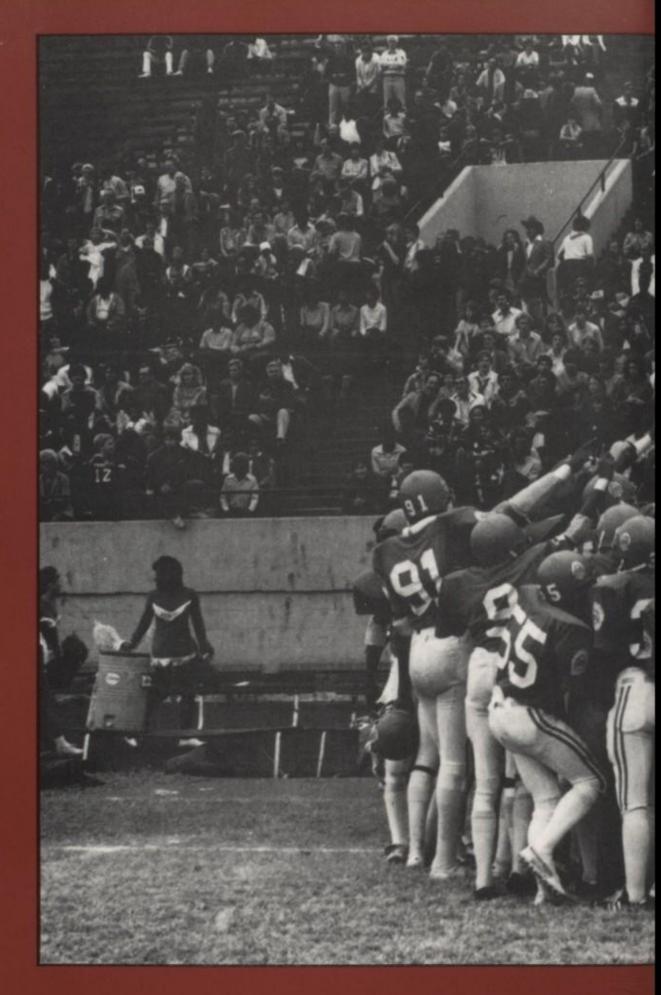

Basketball games were not only well played but well attended by Warrior fans. The team exhibited their talents in both conference and non-conference games throughout the season.

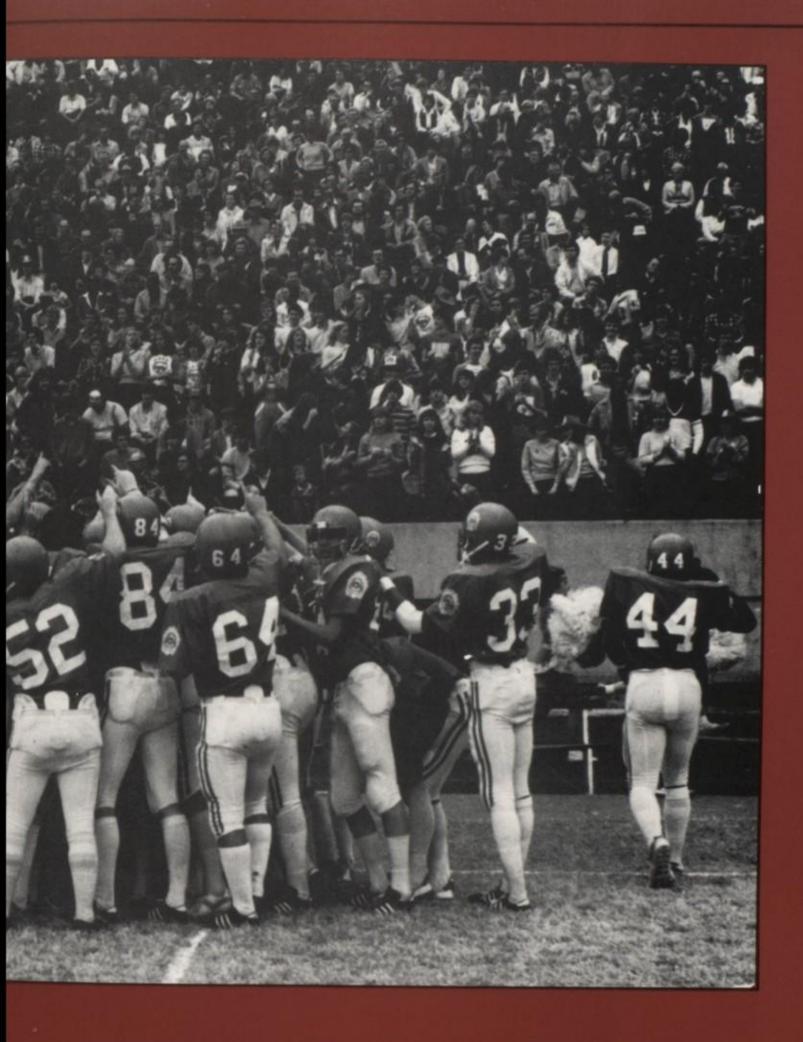

The volleyball team had a trying, but successful year. The girls placed first in the district and third in the state.

As usual, the track team had a good year. The Warriors placed high in most of their meets and other events.

Athletes participating in other sports such as golf, swimming, tennis, and gymnastics helped support Hall's athletic program with their talent and good sportsmanship.

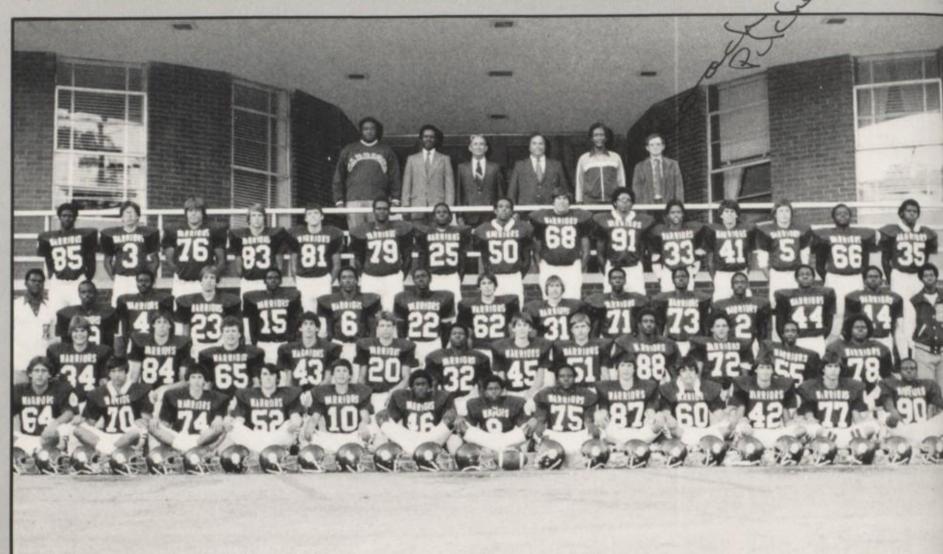

No matter what the event, the Warrior athletes, with the support of Warrior fans and devoted coaches, proved their skills through their games and exhibitions.

Warriors Have Potential For 1981 Football Season

The Warriors began the 1981 football season at the number three position in the state. With eleven returning lettermen the prospects for a winning season looked hopeful.

The Warriors used their preconference games to prepare them for conference play. Jacksonville and Mills, both with excellent teams, slipped past the Warriors early in the year, but Hall kept coming back and started their conference play by defeating the Parkview Patriots for the second year in a row.

After a close shave against Pine Bluff, the Warriors went into their Homecoming game against NLR Northeast with a 4-2 record. Unfortunately, the Chargers proved too much for the Warriors, and with three games to go, they sported a 4-3 record. The Warriors romped on both the McCleilan Lions and the NLR Ole Main Wildcats, so once again, the conference title was on the line for the Thanksgiving Day game. But Central, with their best team in three years, capitalized on the Tribe's mistakes and took the AAAAA conference title under their belt for the second year in a row.

The Warriors got their winning season with a 6-4 record and came out in third place in the AAAAA conference and ranked ninth in the state.

Warriors Meet In August For Two-A-Day Practices

Early Monday morning August 17th, the Warrior football team assembled in the locker room for the first two-a-day practice of the year.

The morning practice ran from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. There was an hour long "chalk talk" at 2 p.m. and then the team reassembled on the field for the evening practice, which lasted until 6 p.m.

Except for the first two days, twoa-day practices were in full pads. This was a drastic change from the year before, but the heat wasn't quite as bad, so the Warriors suffered through.

Practices consisted of exercises, agilities, Callaway's Corner, going over offense and defense, and finally, the dreaded running.

The coaches and players seemed to be pleased with the workouts and both were anxious for the season opener with Mills.

Football practice for the 1981-82 school year actually started early in the spring with weight lifiting in the locker room. As the weather got warmer, practice moved outside where the team ran over plays and prepared for summer practice.

B-Team Benefits Through Learning And Experience

Even though the B-team didn't have the most successful year recorded, they did benefit. The fundamentals learned through B-team, not to mention the game experience, proved to be very useful to the players as they move up toward the varsity ranks.

In B-team games, the players got a chance to work on the techniques of different positions and then the coaches decided where the athletes were best suited to play. After playing for the B-team, the little Warriors got ready in off season to take their places on the varsity team.

Coach Mike Peterson seemed most pleased with the defensive unit this year.

"Scott Patton should be an outstanding linebacker and Jason Bonnick and Mark Bullocks should be the bright spots in next year's secondary. On the line, John Sims and Chris Walls should be a strong point on the defensive ends," he said.

Coach Peterson went on to say that Tony Miller, Chris Moore, and James Bona should be great assets on the offensive line next year.

Non-Conference Contests Prove Brutal For Tribe

Hall started off the 1981 season with three tough games. September 4 marked the beginning of the Warriors' football year when they met the Comets at Mills' home field.

Mills immediately attacked and on the second play of the game threw a 69 yard pass for a touchdown. Following the missed point after, Hall took the kickoff and promptly marched 71 yards to tie the score at 6 apiece.

Mills then ran for two more quick touchdowns and completed one conversion before the half. The Warriors came out looking good in the second half and put 7 points on the board after Marcus Ellis recovered a fumble in Mills' territory. Unfortunately, this third quarter effort was not enough to catch the Comets and the game ended with a score of 19-13 in Mills' favor.

The Warriors turned around the following week and went to work on the Fort Smith Northside Grizzlies. The awesome Warrior defense led by "The Franchise," Leslie O'Neal and Keith Hill, gave the offense two shots at six points in the final five minutes. Finally, Gary Flowers made a six-yard run for the winning score. Keith McFadden had two interceptions and a fumble recovery. These turnovers, along with Guy Vines' fumble recovery and Otis Evans' interceptions, kept the ball in the Warriors' hands and eventually led to the only score of the night and Hall's first victory.

The Warriors went up against the Jacksonville Red Devils in the third of their four non-conference games. After a scoreless first quarter, the Red Devils decided to remedy the situation by forcing a quick punt which landed one yard behind the original line of scrimmage at Hall's 40. Jacksonville took advantage of the situation and put the score on the board. In the second half the Devils recovered a Hall fumble that set up their second and final score from the Warriors' 41. The game ended with Jacksonville on top, 14-0.

"Hut!" Guy Vines lines up with the awesome Warrior defense.

"Super Toe" Jim Wheeler awaits his call to put some points on the scoreboard.

Warriors Winning Streak Begins With The Trojans

During the Trojan-Warrior football game played October 2, senior Gary Flowers displayed fantastic running ability as well as balance to achieve a record breaking 243 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns. Ivan Wilson completed a 33 yard scoring pass to Fred Medley to round out the trips into the end zone for the evening. The only Hot Springs score came with 1:28 left to go in the third quarter when Ricardo Squires scored from one yard out. Jim Wheeler, the PAT specialist, was three for three on the night.

For the second year in a row, the Warrior football team succeeded in defeating the Parkview Patriots. Coach C. W. Keopple could not have been happier with the conference opener.

"I was tickled with our defense," he

Will Timmons gained 81 yards on the evening and had to leave the game with a sprained ankle. The defense exhibited an awesome display of unity in the second half. The squad, led by seniors Leslie O'Neal and Keith Hill, held Parkview to nine yards rushing and no first downs. Only four first downs were gained during the game for Parkview, completing a total of 76 yards offense, while the defense allowed Hall 240 total yards.

October 16 proved to be a game that took place in the trenches, with neither Pine Bluff nor Hall yielding many yards. But in the end yardage gained and passes caught proved truly irrelevant. With five seconds left, Wheeler, one of four three year lettermen for Hall, kicked the ball from the 33 yard line and watched as his kick cleared the goalpost with little room to spare. That moment must surely have been Wheeler's greatest accomplishment and maybe the most exciting victory of the year. 1981 fans of the Warrior team will plot this game as one to remember, and so will Zebra coach Donzell Young.

Huddle! The Zebras get their huddle confused with the Warriors'.

"Let's do it!" The offense huddles up to call the big play against Northeast.

Homecoming Plans Foiled, McClellan Falls To Tribe

After defeating three teams in a row, Hall went into its Homecoming game with North Little Rock Northeast a little on the over-confident side.

The Chargers drove 67 yards in the second quarter to put the first points on the scoreboard. The Warriors immediately answered with a long drive ending in a 32 yard field goal by Jim Wheeler to make the score 7 to 3 at the half.

In the third quarter, the game turned into a defensive struggle, but finally, in the fourth, following a partially blocked punt by Leslie O'Neal, the Warriors went ahead with seven minutes and eleven seconds left in the game. Northeast took the kickoff and began a time consuming scoring strike, which left only one minute and 15 seconds on the clock. Time ran out before the Warriors could rally with another score and the game ended, 14-10, with the Chargers on top.

The Warriors came out aggressive and ready for a win as they met the Crimson Lions on the McClellan home field.

With Gary Flowers and Grea

Cummins both out with injuries, starting fullback Will Timmons was forced to move to tailback in the second half. The Warrior offense wrapped up 374 yards in total offense and the defense allowed negative yards on the ground from McClellan.

Hall scored on its first drive of the game, a twelve play, 77 yarder with Flowers and Cummins doing most of the damage. McClellan made it 7-3 on a 32 yard field goal with four minutes and thirteen seconds left in the half. Before heading to the locker room, the Warriors casually racked up another seven points on a quick seventy yard march, the big play being a 37-yard pass from Ivan Wilson to Clermon Acklin. With two minutes and three seconds left, the Lions went for the bomb and connected for a 35-yard score.

McClellan went for two, following an off-sides penalty, but the pass was slapped away. Will Timmons put the game away with seven carries for 56 yards and the final score. The Hall defense held, and the Warriors won the game, 21 to 9.

"I didn't call that." Coach Keopple looks on as the offensive unit gets a big gain. "Shmine!" Ivan Wilson decides whether or not to give the ball to Will Timmons.

Tribe Defeats Ole Main But Central Squeezes By

The odds were against the Warriors as they went into their game with the 0-10 Wildcats. Coach Norman Callaway said in practice that "They were bound to win one game, and since this was their last, the Warriors should look out." But with some hard running by Will Timmons and a good effort from the entire team, the Warriors beat the odds.

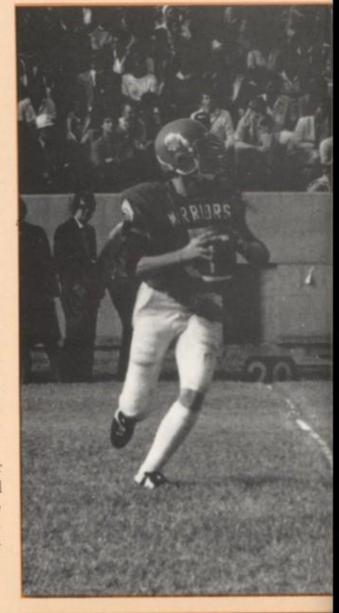

Jim Wheeler put the first three points on the board with a 37 yard field goal, following a 20 yard punt returned by Keith McFadden to the Ole Main 26. The other Hall scores came on a one yard dive by Greg Cummins, following a fumble recovery by Mark Smith and on a 37 yard pass from Ivan Wilson to Willie Davis.

The second touchdown consisted of a 23-yard scamper by Gary Flowers, 18 yards from Timmon's and Wilson's plunge over the goal line. The Warrior defense played awesomely and succeeded in shutting out the Wildcats by winning, 16 to 0.

It was the big one and it was a heartbreaker as Little Rock Central capitalized on three Hall first half turnovers and the arm of Will Allen to defeat the Warriors on Turkey Day at Ouigley Stadium.

The Tigers played great defense, holding the Warriors to 97 yards total offense, while split end Ken Richardson caught two long passes behind the Warrior secondary. Hall finally got a drive going in the third quarter when they drove 67 yards to the Tiger's 14, but Jim Wheeler's field goal attempt was blown off course by a 21 m.p.h. south wind.

The Warriors ended an erratic year with a loss, but it was basically a well played game and despite what the score would tend to show, the Warriors gave the Tigers some of their stiffest competition all year.

Warriors Finish Second In State; Win 5A League

Not only did the Warriors capture the 5A State Championship for the second year in a row, but for the first time in 20 years they were 5A Conference Champions.

All conference championship games were played in the Trojan Fieldhouse on the UALR campus. Hall went on to represent the 5A conference in the Over-all Boys State Championships which were held at UCA in Conway. Hall was defeated by one point in the final game by the Gurdon Go-Devils.

This was twice that the Warriors have come up short for the Over-all title. The Warriors finished the year with a 28-3 record. The Warriors started off the season by eliminating all opponents and remained undefeated until Malvern beat Hall by one point in the Henderson State Tournament.

Starters for this year's squad were Tim Scott, Anthony Walton, Melvin Woodbury, Alfie Griffin, Darrell Watson, Allie Freeman, and Kelton Scott.

Tim Scott provided an unlimited arsenal of outside shooting for the Tribe while Anthony Walton rebounded all missed shots within his area. Melvin Woodbury drove inside or shot his delicate jumpshot, depending on the needs of the team. Alfie Griffin maintained his reputation for making action happen. Darrell Watson often conducted shooting and rebounding clinics whenever the game began to slip away, and Allie Freeman drove the baseline frequently which was very effective.

B-Team Basketball Games Played Preceding Varsity

Preceding most varsity basketball games this year, a B-team game was played. Not only were next year's star players previewed, but an excellent game of basketball was also exhibited.

"Basically our main objective was to win, but we like to give the guys experience to prepare them for varsity play," Coach Micheal Peterson said.

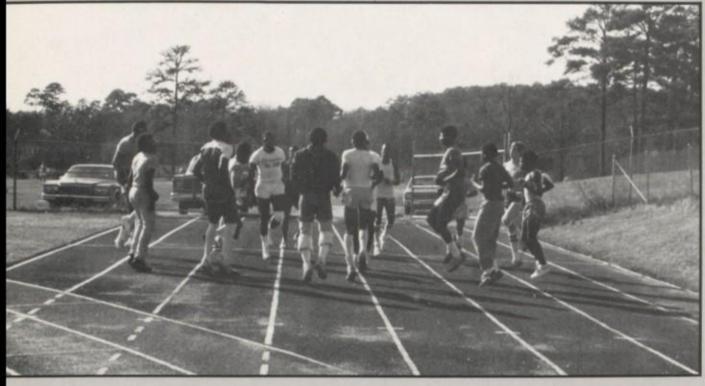

He went on to say that B-team participation "helps the young man to mature as a player in a game situation."

The main strong point of the B-team this year was overall height, which of course is a great advantage in basketball. The weak points consisted mainly of inexperience and the adjustment from junior high ball to high school ball. Patience was also a problem which Coach Peterson said he experienced with his young athletes.

The usual starters and alternates of the B-team were Jimbo Carter, and Greg Matthews at guards, Allie Freeman, David Daniels, Art Kinnaman, Dwain Butcher, and Eric Hall at the forwards and high posts; and Otis Evans, Keith Collins, and Alfred Tolbert, a 9th grader, at center and low post.

The team was dominated by sophomores since so many juniors were playing for the varisty. Many of the B-teams were allowed to dress out for the varsity games and some were good enough to play in varsity games on several occasions.

'82 Warrior Track Team Gains 16 New Members

Sixteen new members joined the Warrior track team to compete in the 1981-1982 track season.

These new members were Clermon Acklin, James Shearins, Terry Wright, Willie Davis, Abraham Johnson, James Murray, Arthur Joyner, Ray Floyd, Bob Bodenhamer, Reginald Baker, Charles Roberson, Kenneth Harrell, Gaylend Sheppard, Danny Brown, Art Kinnaman, and Robert Milton.

Returning lettermen were Clinton Bell, Marcus Ellis, Kenneth Stocker, Jerod Jewell, Todd Adkins, Kevin Singleton, Corinthians Johnson, and Lavon Johnson.

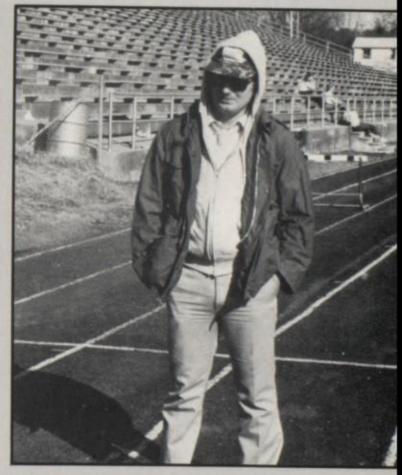

The team held practices each afternoon during sixth period in either the gym, cafeteria, or at Scott Field, depending on the weather. Since most of the practices were during the winter and early spring months, more were held inside than outside because of the cold weather. Each practice consisted of warm up exercises, sprints, hurdles, long jumps, relays, high jumps, and the shot-put.

The Warriors competed in their first meet of the season on January 23 at an indoor meet at Barton Coliseum. Clinton Bell placed third in the shotput, Lavon Johnson jumped 20 ft. 2 in. to win the long jump, Kenneth Stocker placed third in the long jump, and the Warrior relay team finished third in the 440 and 800-relays. The Warriors did equally well in each of the following meets of the season.

Coaches for the team were Roy Wade, head track coach, and Doug Pilcher. This was Coach Pilcher's first year to coach track as well as being a faculty member of Hall.

At meets the team participated in the 100-, 220 mile, 440 relay, mile relay, 880 relay, 440 dash, long jump, high jump, discus, and shotput.

Practice was held during fifth period each day and after school. Throughout the year the team was in conditioning, where they got in shape and were evaluated on how well they could run each event. Coach Mike Peterson decided which girl got to run each event by how well she did in practice.

Team members were Carla Vault.

Laurine Taylor, Theresa Mount, Gladine Taylor, Jackie Wise, Beverly Cole, Deveta Yarbrough, Tijuana McKnight, Tammie Warmington, Tammy Williams, Kim Brown, Lisa Stubbs, Karen Springs, Patricia Smith, Erlinda Jones, Charlotte Phillips. Angelta Thomasson, Maria Mendes, Donna Burns, Alencia Lewis, Catherine Johnson, Evelyn Harris, and Lisa Pearce.

Regional and state meets, held in the first week in May at Henderson State University, concluded the year for the team.

Coach Peterson also was the coach for the Girls' Cross-Country team.

Warrior Volleyball Team Is Conference Champion

Hall's 1981 Volleyball Team members were the AAAAA Conference Champions. Their record was 8 and 2 in the season play.

This record enabled them to go to the District Tournament. They placed third in the tournament and did not qualify to go to the State Tournament.

The team had two All-District players. They were Veronica Amos and Karen Springs.

The Warriors practiced after school until 5:30 p.m. during the season play. The practices were held two and three times a week and the season lasted from September through November.

The team had 13 members. They were Karen Springs, captain; Veronica Amos, Valerie Clemmons, Wanda Hairston, Nilla Hede, Genia Hood, Catherine Johnson, Erlinda Jones, Julanne Lea, Maidie Nichols, Paula Salley, Joyce Scott, and Tammy Williams. The managers for the team were Theresa Mount and Marilyn Lucas.

Hall's X-Country Team Places Thirteenth In State

The Cross Country team placed 13th in the State Championship Meet at Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia. The highest ranked member of the team was Abraham Johnson, who placed 12th out of 200 runners.

Other meets this year were the Harding Invitational, the UA Invitational, the Parkview Invitational, and the AAAAA State Meet.

During the season, the Cross Country team ran six days a week. Each day, they ran approximately three to five miles on different courses.

"The team should be in the position to challenge the others next year," Coach Roy Wade said.

The team has already made progress since last year, moving up three positions in the state tournament ranking. Team members besides Abraham Johnson were James Murray, Greg Eberdt, Corinthians Johnson, Lavon Johnson, Beneral Smith, Gaylend Sheppard, Arthur Joyner, and J. D. McCay.

Swim Team Competes In State And District Meets

Swim team competed in two major meets this year, the District Meet and the State Meet. They also competed in dual meets twice a month.

The District Meet was held on March 6 at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. This was an all day meet where all the teams in the district competed. The district teams included Hall, Parkview, Central, Catholic High, St. Mary's, and Jefferson Prep.

The state meet was held on March 17 at Hendrix College in Conway. The team performed well in the dual meets and worked hard to prepare to win the state meet.

"We're small, but strong, We've done well so far and hope to win the state meet," Ginger Golladay, a team member, said.

There were no set practices for the team. Most members practiced with the Dolphins at the Little Rock Racquet Club.

Team members included Ginger Golladay, Anita Heil, Keith McAfee, Misty Eiseman, Eric Heil, Matthew Harbison, and Beth Lavey, team captain.

Eric Heil and Matthew Harbison who attended Booker Junior High School, were eligible to swim for Hall in high school swim meets. The team sponsor was Dr. Florene Phipps. This was her first year to serve as sponsor of the swim team.

Tennis Team Participates In Weekly Tournaments

Tournament play began March 11 for both the girls' and boys' tennis teams and ended with the state tournament held in May.

The tennis team played seven tournaments during the months of March and April. Participation in these tournaments gave the players experience and helped them to prepare for the state tournament. Hall's home tournaments were played at Rebsamen Tennis Center. Each tournament consisted of three singles matches and two doubles matches.

Donna Reynolds was captain of the girls' team. Other members of the team were Paige Beavers, Theba Lolley, Erin Fergusson, Karen Ronnel, Julie Kaplan, Laura Miller, Roberta Chitwood, Janet Payne, and Cupie Henriksen. The team had five returning lettermen and three new additions. Lynn Hanson and Muffin Campbell, transfer students from Mount St. Mary's this year, practiced with the team, but were ineligible for match play.

Scott Luneau served as captain of the boys' team. Team members were Scott Tanner, Russ McDonough, Mike Kelly, Burke Clark, and Johan Rudin. The Boys' team had four returning lettermen with two new additions to the team.

Coach Norman Callaway sponsored the team for the second consecutive year.

Gymnastic Season Begins February 14th At Central

Hall's Gymnastics Team began their year with a district meet at Central on February 14. The six team members practiced during 5th period every day to prepare for their nine meets. The season ended with the state meet held April 30.

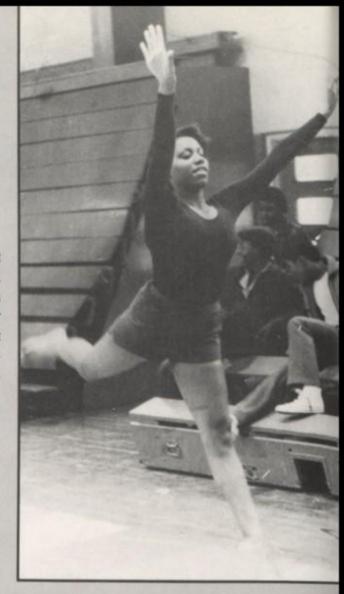

Team members were divided into classifications A and B. Classification A competed with teams for gymnastic centers as well as teams from other schools. Some competing centers were Tumble Jungle and Little Rock Gymnastics. Those in classification B competed with other schools only.

Events which the team participated in were beam, bar, floor and vault.

At the meet held February 11 at Heber Springs, Lisa Altoff of class A placed second on beam, third on floor and second all-around. Sally Pearlstein, also of class A, captured a first place on bars and beam. In classification B, Alencia Lewis won second place on bars and vault.

"Hall's district was the largest," said Mrs. Carolyn Slater, coach, "and had the stiffest competition of all the districts in the state."

Team members were Lisa Altoff, Sally Pearlstein, Becky Cashman, Lori Carter, Lisa Coates, Alencia Lewis, and Ventice Mayo.

'82 Season Begins With Burns Park Tournament

Hall's Golf Team stroked off to a good year with a tournament held March 3 at Burns Park Golf Course. The golf season continued through March, April, and was concluded with the state tournament held May 7 at Rebsamen Park Golf Course.

No tryouts were needed to make the team. Interested students with a suitable grade point average were permitted to play. Coach C. W. Keopple sponsored the team.

Team members were Mark

Grimes, Jeff McNeil, Jeff Pryor, John Lloyd, John Campbell, Keith Hardin, and Todd Thompson.

Hall golfers competed with seven teams throughout the state. These teams were Catholic, Ole Main, Parkview, McClellan, Central, Northeast, and El Dorado. In all, the team participated in nine tournaments, held either at Hindman Park, Burns Park Golf Course, or Rebsamen Park Golf Course.

Warrior Soccer Begins Third Season In League

Practice for Hall's soccer team began in early February in preparation for the season which opened in mid March.

They practiced on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursday from 4:45 p.m. to 6 p.m. under the coaching of Mr. Mike Thomas, a teacher at Forest Heights Junior High School. During the spring season Hall, Parkview and Central's soccer teams competed twice and had three open games to play other teams throughout the state.

Members for the team were Jim Adamson, Roby Brock, Jeff Caplinger, Eric Cave, Mark Hamer, Steve Laster, Wes McAfee, Stuart Perry, Steve Perry, Eddie Ray, Charles Stiles, Rodney Toles, Will

The Little Rock School Board tried to improve the league before the season began. Among the proposals to improve the city league containing Central, Catholic, Hall and Parkview were a post-season tournament and trophies for the league champions.

"We hope to win the league if possible," Coach Thomas said. "We have good players and expect to have a successful season."

"This year was one of Hall's best years yet," Junior Peter Ware said.

"The plan is . . . " Coach Mike Thomas and soccer team members observe a successful scrimmage.

Students Become Involved With Intramural Activities

"Intramural sports activities gave students who did not participate in school sports the chance to compete in athletic events," Coach Oliver Elders, director of the Intramural sports program, said.

Every month there were different sports for competition. Among the most popular sports were basketball, softball and football. Student participation in football declined during the fall. Most students waited for the basketball season to start in mid-February. Students formed teams, chose names for them, and competed against each other.

The intramural sports program was held on Tuesdays and Thursdays during lunch. Fridays were considered to be free days, allowing the students to get involved in whatever sports they desired.

"I liked the intramural sports program, because I did not participate in school basketball, but this way I could still compete with other students," Junior Tracey Patterson said.

A new class schedule was used this year at Hall. All students started the day at 8:30 in the morning and attended various classes until 3:30 in the afternoon. A study hall was assigned to students for every period that wasn't taken by an academic course.

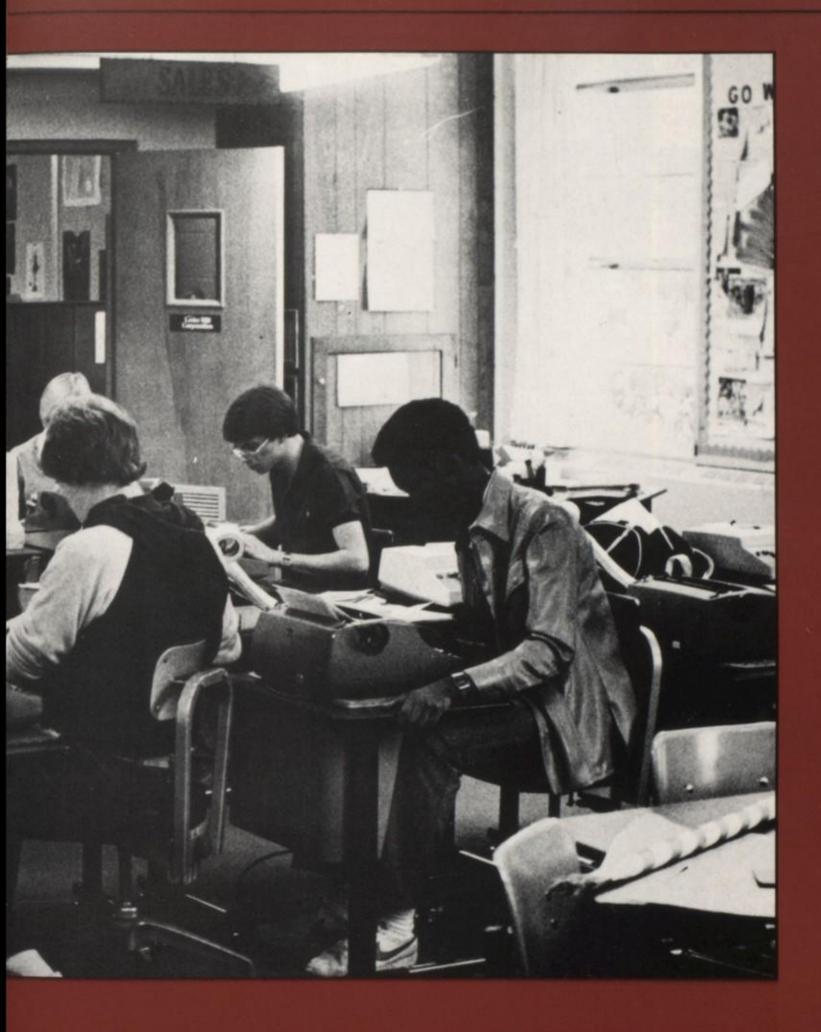

All students remained until 3:30 unless they acquired a work permit or special permission to leave early. This was brought about by the new closed campus policy that came into effect in the fall of 1981.

Throughout the year, tests including the SAT, ACT, SRA, and others were taken by students in order to further their academic skills and training.

Hail's total of nine National Merit Semitinalists tied with Fayetteville High School for the second highest total in the state. Students from Hall also showed a significant increase in their scores on other tests.

Ten faculty members were added to various departments, including a new administrative assistant. Mrs Mary Louise Williams who replaced Mr. Lenel Vaughn. These additions had a definite impact on the improvement of the academic program.

Masem Closes Last Year As Superintendent

Mr. Paul W. Masem completed his fourth and final year as Little Rock School District superintendent in July when his contract, which the School Board voted not to renew, expired.

Masem will be replaced by Dr. Edward Kelly of Loves Park, Ill.

Masem implemented many new programs during his years as superintendent including reading programs and the Career and Life planning program at Hall. His innovation provided quality education for almost 20,000 students and jobs for over 2100 people. He was also responsible for salary raises for the School District staff.

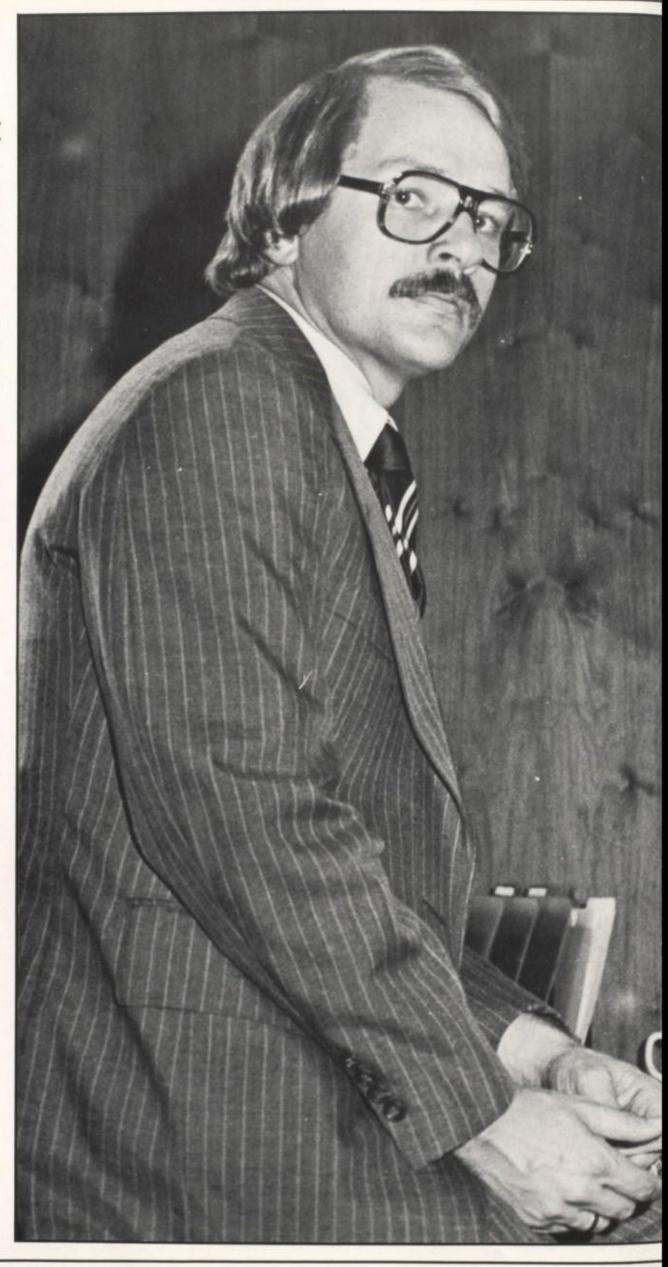

The division of the School Board and Masem was partially caused by the problems which plagued the Little Rock School District.

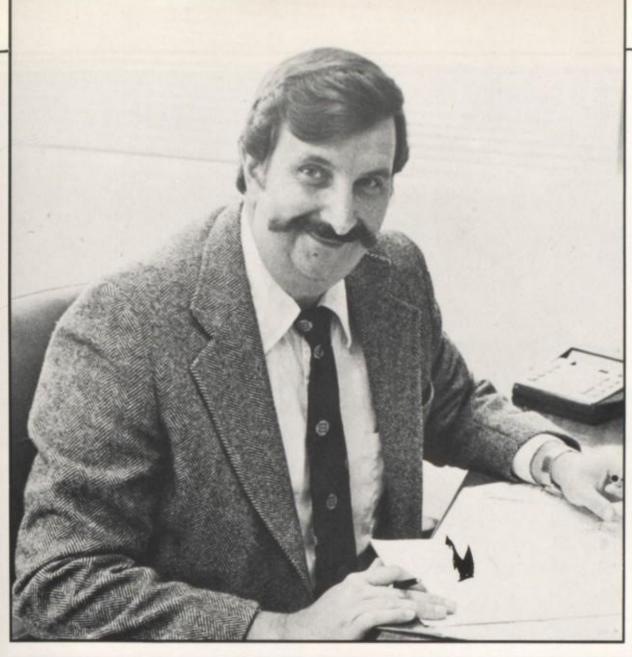

"I believe that when serious problems without short-term solutions, such as racial imbalance and fiscal difficulties, arise, morale suffers, frustrations increase and there is a tendency to blame someone. The superintendent is the usual victim; my situation is no exception, I think," Mr. Masem said.

Although the split between the Board and Masem caused considerable discord, Masem said, "we are working together, as much as possible, for the good of the children. They are foremost in all of our minds."

Mr. Masem believed that even with the problems that the District faced, cooperative efforts among teachers and administrators, the business and educational communities, and continuing community concern for public education might save the District from the decline which other urban school districts have suffered.

Board Elects Kelly As New Superintendent

Despite a lawsuit and the efforts of a coalition of four groups to delay hiring of a new superintendent, Dr. Edward Kelly was selected from 102 applicants by the School Board February 11 to succeed Paul Masem as Little Rock School District superintendent.

The "super-search" for a new superintendent was led by Mr. Robert Cabe, a lawyer who is chairman of the Board of Hendrix College. The search, which was the School Board's main project this year, was implemented September 30 when a nine person committee was elected by the Board to review all applicants.

Other concerns of the School Board included budget limitations, reorganization, and the passage of a millage tax to increase local funding.

The Board encountered an overall unstable financial situation with large cuts having been made in federal and local educational funding. To deal with the decreased revenues for the District, the Board was forced to curtail programs, limit services, and reduce staff.

Interdistrict reorganization plans were considered by the Board to help remedy the problems of racial imbalance and "white flight." Board member Fay Southern said she could give "no guarantees on what we are going to do."

The failure of a millage tax request in March 1981 caused the Board to again ask the voters for a 3-mill tax increase for more local funds in March 1982. The failure of the 1981 millage was one cause of the 1982 budget limitations.

Tribe's Chief Comments On Closed Policy

Mr. Weldon K. Faulk, principal, enforced the new policy of closed campus this year. The experimental program of open campus was eliminated after six years.

Closing campus was something that the students profited by.

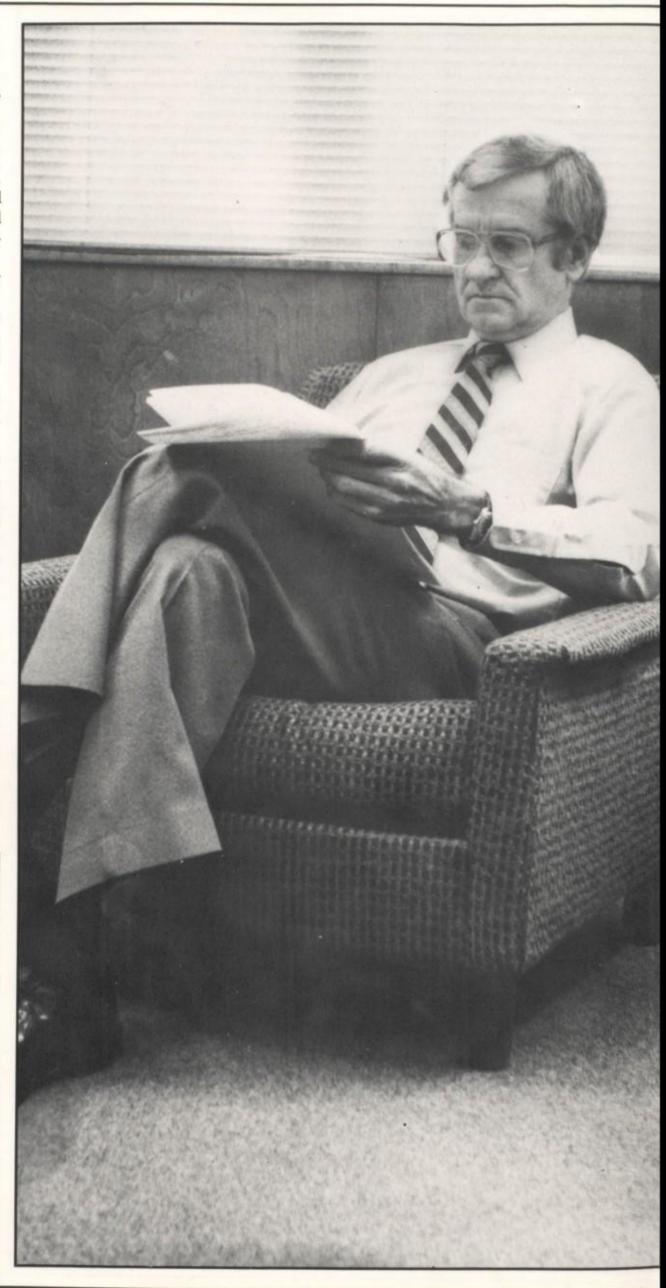

"Closed campus has brought the student body closer together," Mr. Faulk said. "Students have improved in academics and in school spirit."

Mr. Faulk was extremely pleased with the attitudes of parents and students towards this new policy.

This was Mr. Faulk's 12th year to serve as principal. He held various positions at six other schools in the Little Rock School District. He said he believed that the past six years have been a good learning experience for everyone, but he was more satisfied with the present closed system.

Mr. Faulk was formerly principal of Jefferson and Rightsell Elementary Schools, and of West Side Junior High School. He said he preferred leading senior high students and believed it to be an extremely rewarding experience.

Cabinet Links Students With Administration

The Principal's Cabinet acted as an intermediary between the administration and the students by establishing a direct mutual link.

The Cabinet consisted of the principal, the two assistant principals, and the officers and sponsors of the student council.

"The Cabinet gave me a chance to talk directly to the student representatives," said Mr. Faulk, principal. "I could tell them my personal views on the student body activities."

The Cabinet met monthly in Mr. Faulk's office. Felicia Webster, junior representative, said, "I think the meetings were helpful, because we could sit down and talk directly to Mr. Faulk without having to go through anyone else."

Suggestions and new ideas were presented at the meetings.

Assistants Aid Principal With Administration

The assistants to Mr. Weldon K. Faulk, principal, aided him in maintaining order during Hall's first year of closed campus in six years.

The two vice principals, Mr. Lovell Moore and Mrs. Selma Wooley, acted as disciplinarians of students and supervisors to both students and staff members.

The administrative assistants, Mrs. Angela Sewall and Mrs. Mary Louise Williams, who replaced Mr. Lenel Vaughn, worked with the vice principals and Mr. Faulk.

Mr. Moore and Mrs. Wooley walked the halls each day, making sure students were in class. Mr. Moore said he believed that the new closed system was, "working well," and that, "you find some people skipping, but there were no major problems."

Both Mr. Moore and Mrs. Wooley agreed that the new policy was beneficial to both students and staff members.

The vice principals also worked with Mr. Faulk on the teacher evaluation. This was the second year that this program was in effect at Hall. Mr. Moore, Mrs. Wooley, and Mr. Faulk sat in on different classes each week. This assisted the administration in evaluating the effectiveness of the normal classroom performance of teachers.

Mrs. Cathy Fakouri and Mr. Tom McDonald were two of the new teachers. Mrs. Fakouri taught speech and drama, and also sponsored the Cheer-o-kee club. Mr. McDonald, who was a member of the Arkansas Symphony, was the new orchestra director.

Additions to the 600's Zone were Mr. Doug Pilcher, Dr. Florene Phipps, and Mrs. Louise Rollefson. Mr. Pilcher, who coached, also taught American history and sponsored the American Field Service Club. Mrs. Rollefson taught Algebra 1, general math, and sponsored the Intervention Team. Dr. Phipps returned to Hall after a year's absence for advanced study at Texas A&M. She taught intermediate algebra, consumer mathematics, Statistics, and sponsored the swim team.

Also new to Hall this year was Mrs. Carolyn Dokes. Mrs. Dokes taught the hearing impaired and sponsored the Pep Club. Mrs. Elna Hasberry, who formerly taught at Hall, returned as a special education teacher.

Miss Adrienne Brown, a 1977 graduate of Hall, returned as the new speech therapist.

A 1970 graduate of Hall, Miss Lucy Towbin, was employed as a permanent substitute.

New in the administration this year was Mrs. Mary Louise Williams, who replaced Mr. Lenel Vaughn as Administrative Assistant.

Dept. Stresses Annual Tests For Students

One of the English Department's main goals this year was to better acquaint students with the Science Research Associates (SRA) tests given annually in the spring.

"Last year," Department Head Miss Nancy Popperfuss said, "Hall did very well on the tests. This year we hope to do as well or better."

Several materials were used to prepare students for SRA tests. Exercises in usage, punctuation, and spelling were interspersed among daily assignments throughout the year. Juniors particularly studied vocabulary for the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT).

The second goal of the English Department was placing added emphasis on writing. Students worked hard to improve their writing ability.

Several productions were attended by English classes this year. Many were made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and were presented at all three Little Rock high schools.

On October 6 the Arkansas Repertory Theater presented its "Starting Here, Starting Now" in Hall's auditorium for selected classes. Also in October, English students attended a performance of the "Rachel Lampert Dancers," from New York, who were based at UALR this year.

In December, several English classes attended an ART in-house production entitled "Scapino."

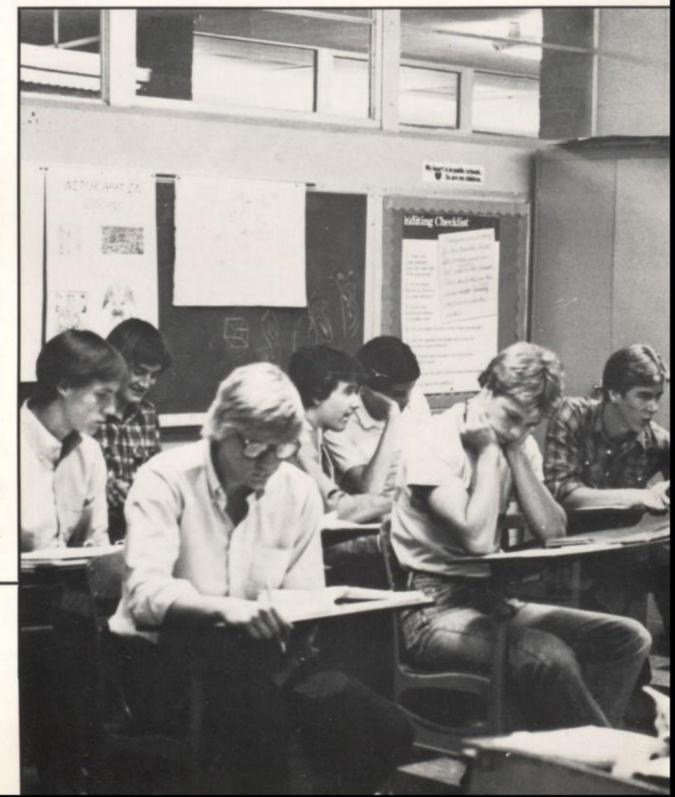

There were nine national merit semi-finalists this year; Hall tied with Fayetteville High for having the second highest number of semi-finalists. The majority of finalists were in honors English classes.

Dept. Offers A New Class In 1981 Year

Statistics, a new course, was added to the math department's curriculum this year. It was taught by Mrs. Florene Phipps, who returned this year from Texas A&M where she received her doctorate.

"Statistics is the process of interpreting and analyzing data for the purpose of making decisions," Mrs. Phipps said. "It is necessary for people choosing a career in economics, business, education, medicine, or sociology."

Seven hundred seventy-seven students, 74 per cent of the student body, were enrolled in math classes this year. Mrs. Louise Rollefson was also new in Hall's math department this year. She taught Algebra I, Part II and general math.

There were nine math courses offered this year, including the new statistics class. They were functional math, general math, Statistics, Mathematics II, Algebra I and II, advanced algebra, trigonometry, and calculus.

Mr. Michael Norton headed the Math Department. Other teachers in the department in addition to Dr. Phipps and Mrs. Rollefson were Mr. Charles Moseley, Mrs. Carol Barnhouse, Mr. Don Baltz, and Mrs. Mary Catherine Hodge.

The Arkansas Council of Teachers of Mathematics sponsored their annual state and regional math exams in the spring and Hall students participated.

"There they go again!" Mr. Charles Moseley sighs as his students repeat a mistake.

CPR Courses Benefit Almost Every Student

Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), was introduced this year in the Science Department, and both the biology and chemistry classes participated.

Early in the year, the Red Cross sent qualified instructors to teach CPR to a group of science students. The students were given the opportunity to participate and had a good time learning the procedures.

"This was the first year that the program was held, and it was well received by the participants," Mrs. Catherine Hamilton, department chairman, said.

Budgets were reduced this year which limited the amount of money available for the Science Department. The funding cuts also eliminated the traditional biology trip that the sophomores have taken in the past.

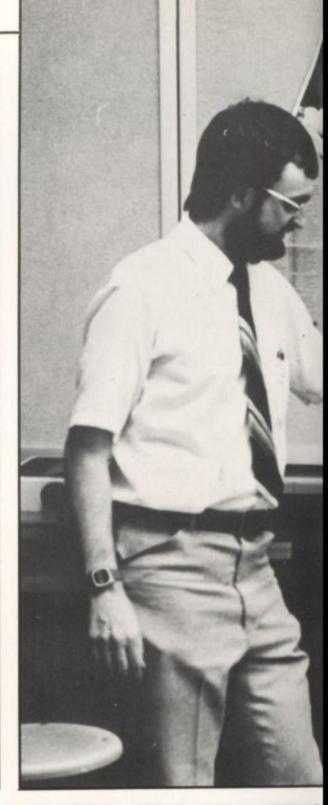

Mr. A. T. Bell, who taught Physics, introduced his classes to the computer and used the "Apple" as a supplemental teaching aid. The computer was used to simulate results and calculate tables and charts which allowed more time for students to spend on experiments.

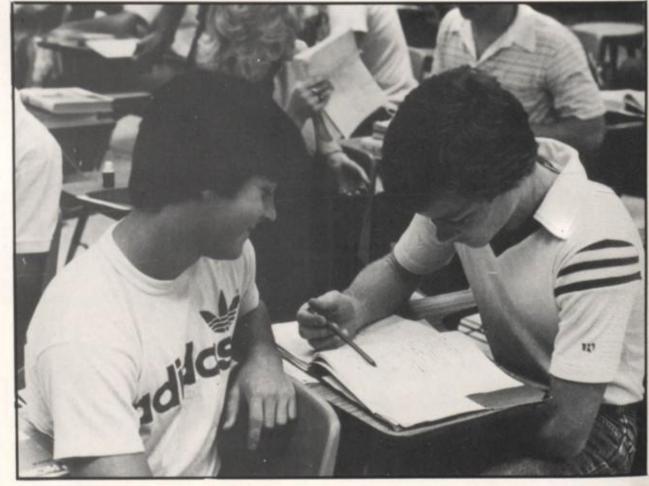

Concern about the cutting back of the woods behind Hall was shown by Mrs. Leola Norman, who taught Advanced Biology. The excessive mowing by the school department completely eliminiated the new tree growth and underbrush which had been growing for several years. Advanced Biology students spent time gathering plants and made classroom observations, despite the clearing around the stately pines.

S.S. Students Receive Calls From Bethune

Students in the Social Studies Department had an opportunity to speak with one of Arkansas' congressional representatives by phone at different times during the year. Congressman Ed Bethune called at a prearranged time when an important issue came up. The students had an opportunity to ask him questions during this time.

Total enrollment in the department reached 588 this year. Students were enrolled in a variety of classes including sociology, psychology, American history, American government, and world history.

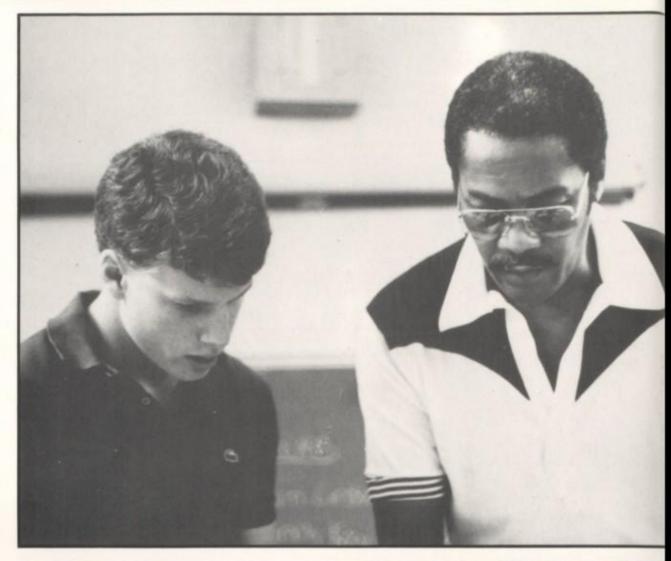

Mr. Sam Kent, the department head, said "The main goal of the year was to make all students more interested in the history of the world and of the United States."

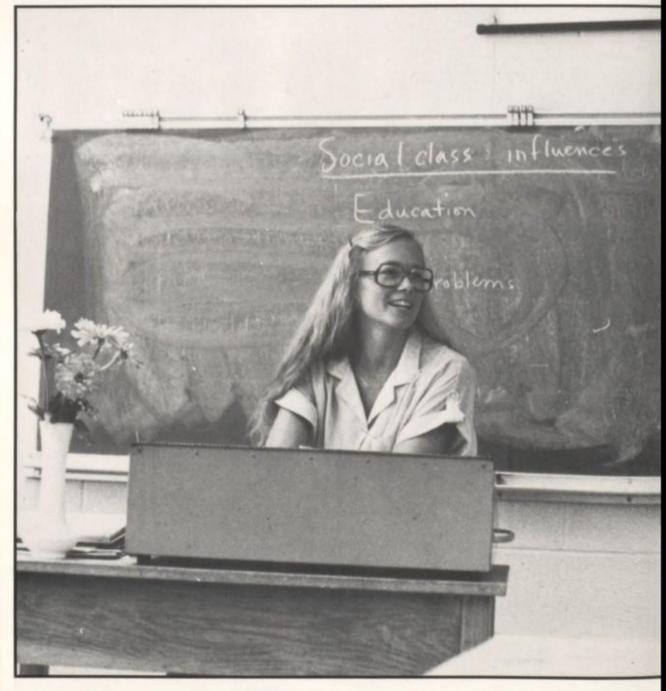

Mrs. Marcia Lecky, Miss Mary K. Sanders, Mr. Charles Thompson, Mr. Doug Pilcher and Mrs. Martha Crosby made up the rest of the Social Studies staff. Mrs. Marjorie O'Cain substituted for the first semester for Mrs. Crosby who had surgery.

Mr. Christopher Puplick, an exmember of the Australian Parliament, visited history classes in October. Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) in cooperation with the State Department brought Mr. Puplick from his hometown, Sidney, to Little Rock.

Festivals Add Excitement To Lang. Classes

Language festivals were among the most popular activities that the Latin, Spanish, German and French classes attended this year. Activities such as these helped to stimulate interest in the Foreign Language classes.

The Latin classes which include first, second, and third year students were busy this year with speakers, films, a banquet and outings to popular Italian restaurants. Another point of interest came up earlier in the year when a local coin collector came and exhibited Roman coins.

A full year of activities kept the Spanish classes busy from the Ballet Folklorico de Mexico in early November to the AATSP National Spanish Test in March. Other Spanish class activities included Christmas caroling, guest speakers, and a Spanish party with all the Mexican trimmings.

German students enjoyed an exciting year beginning with the Oktoberfest and continuing with the national German exam, German films and speakers and finishing with German projects which included meals, costumes and various other cultural items. Mrs. Olivia Griggs also took her classes on a Wandertag or hiking day where the classes had a picnic and played games.

Class activities for French students included preparing French cuisine in class, taking the National French Exam, viewing cultural movies and dining at local French restaurants. French students were also visited by guest speakers who explained about French cultures and traditions.

Not only were the classes taught their respective languages but they also were able to experience some of the traditions and cultures that pertained to their language.

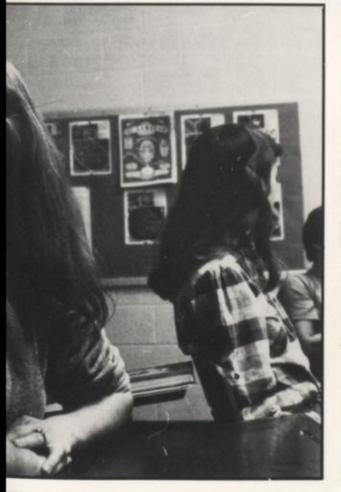

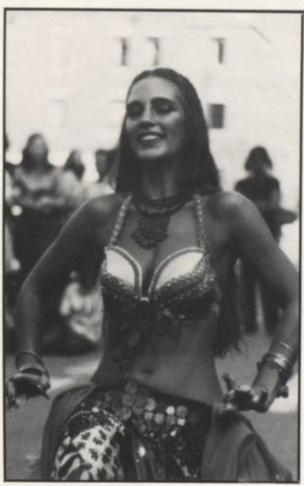

"Now hear this." Mrs. Olivia Griggs instructs her German class in the Language lab.

"We're the top!" The wild and crazy Latin II class scales a scaffolding in the Media Center.

"Five more minutes?" Mrs. Deborah Short patiently awaits the end of the period.

Shake it! Students watch a Greek dancer at the Metro Center Mall International Fest.

Enrollment Up In Journalism & Photography

Enrollment increased again this year in the Journalism Department, partially due to the return to closed campus.

"Students would rather take an elective than stay in study halls all day," Mrs. Tom Christie said. "Thus, we profited by the closed campus system."

Journalism I students contributed more than ever to the publication of the War Whoop this year. They received points toward their grades by performing such extra tasks as typing, selling ads, covering beats, writing news stories, conducting polls, driving to the print shop, and running errands necessary to the publication of the newspaper.

Photography classes were extremely high in enrollment during the '81-'82 school year. Students were responsible for taking, developing, and printing pictures.

The War Whoop staff continued to be one of the few high school staffs in the nation to publish a weekly newspaper, despite the fact it was the only school in the city which did not have a photo typesetting system.

In the spring War Whoop staff members attended the Arkansas High School Press Association Convention where they, as usual, won Superior Awards for the material printed in the newspaper during the year.

Members of the Warrior Staff published a 288-page yearbook which was presented to the student body at an assembly in May. This was the first year that the Hurley Company was the publisher.

Hall's Journalism Department participated for the second year in the two week Urban Minority Journalism Workshop held in August at UALR. Senior Pamela Zeigler was one of 15 black students from 12 Arkansas high schools to attend the session.

Attendance At Workshops Is Aid For Dept.

Drama department classes, consisting of 150 students, participated in workshops, field trips, and tournaments throughout the year.

Mrs. Judy Trice, who has headed the division for six years, said the main goal of the department was "To help students learn to successfully communicate and correctly use standard verbal English, which I feel are necessary skills for success."

Speech classes attended workshops at Parkview and McClellan high schools, and both drama and speech students attended district and state competitions. Field trips were taken by all classes in the department.

Mrs. Trice taught drama, stage management, and communications. A new teacher, Mrs. Cathy Fakouri, taught dance and communications.

Drama and speech classes saw the production of "Scapino" by the Arkansas Reperatory Theater in December and they saw the Dance Theater of Harlem and the Rachel Lampert Dance Company of New York perform.

Gordon Ward, a stage management student, was the stage manager. He represented Arkansas speech students at the Governor's office when National High School Activities Week was proclaimed in October.

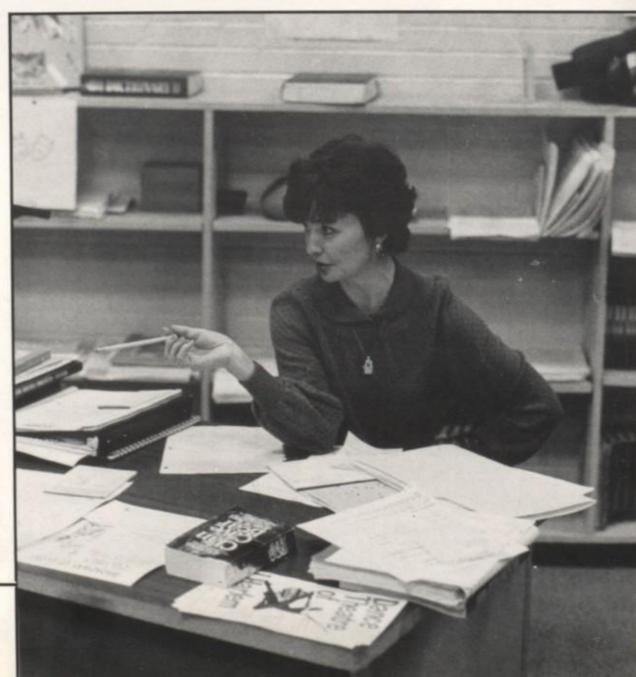

Mrs. Trice and Mrs. Fakouri attended the Southern Speech and Communications Association's National Convention at Hot Springs in April. This was a workshop to demonstrate new ways of teaching for all drama, speech and dance teachers.

Artists Exhibit Original Work During Spring

Hall's art students entered their work in exhibits and art contests during the spring semester, including the Little Rock School Board Contest and the Young Arkansas Artists Competition at the Arkansas Arts Center.

Introduction to Art was a course which taught the basics of art, such as weaving, working at the potter's wheel, making linoleum prints, and molding clay. The commercial art field was studied by the Graphic Design class.

In Introduction to Painting, the basics of painting were taught. An accelerated class for serious art students was Advanced Painting, in which students worked with water-colors and tempera paint.

Miss Gail King and Mrs. Sarah Miller taught the art classes.

"The Art Department has progressed and I had many outstanding and talented students to work with," Miss King said.

Musical Dept. Comprised Of Active Groups

Hall's Music Department was composed of three active organizations — the band, choir and orchestra.

Mr. Merel Boyce, assisted by Mr. Randy Erwin, directed the marching band which performed at home football games to generate spirit in the crowd.

Keith Dooley, senior drum major, led the 85-member band on the field. The band marched in the Arkansas Livestock Parade in October and presented a Christmas Concert along with the choir on December 17 in the auditorium. In the spring, the band participated in a festival contest and gave a concert for the student body.

Hall's choir program was divided into three sections. They were the concert choir, male chorus, and female chorus. Mr. Erwin, choir director, conducted the choirs in their fall, Christmas, spring and musical review concerts. Mr. Erwin said, "I had many exceptional students this year and the choir program is not only growing in quantity but in quality."

Hall's orchestra gained a new director, Mr. Tom McDonald, a member of the Arkansas, Memphis, and Northeast Arkansas symphonies. Although the group was small, the new director said that its small size allowed more time for individual instruction.

The Music Department offered a variety of courses to the students. These were 1st band, 2nd band, stage band, orchestra, concert choir, male chorus and female chorus.

Girl Students Dominate Men In Enrollment

Ninety-nine students, mainly girls, participated in the Home Economics program this past year. Student participation declined due to a decrease in enrollment of boys in the department.

"The main idea of Home Economics this past year was to help the students learn skills through laboratory experiences in food, clothing, housing tidiness, consumerism, and management," Mrs. L. P. Mason, director of Home Economics, said.

Home Economic goals were to improve personal and family relationships becoming better family members and to learn to plan and prepare and serve meals effectively. Other major goals included helping students develop more skills in human relationships with emphasis on child development.

Housing Management was offered for one semester. That course revolved around selecting finances, designing, building, furnishings, decorating, managing and maintaining homes.

Home Economics I and II gave students the opportunity to gain skills in five areas of home making. Other courses offered in the department were Human Growth Development, Adult Living, and Child Development. The latter course was taught by Mrs. Lenora Dyer.

"Overall, the year went quite well in the Home Economics Department. Students both male and female seemed very interested in all parts of the Home Economics programs," Mrs. Mason said.

PE Programs Present Goals For Activities

"Physical Education's main goal was to develop character, knowledge of lifetime sports, a stronger body mentally and physically and deal with adversity," Physical Education instructor Mike Peterson said.

This past year was the fourth straight year Hall offered co-ed PE programs.

"Some courses were more challenging than others but all courses were equal in competition," senior Anthony Williams said.

In order to participate in extra curricular activities each student had to receive a Physical Fitness Examination at the beginning of the year, and maintain a grade point of 1.6 with no more than two 2's and no 3's or 4's.

Mrs. Carolyn Slater was the only female gym teacher.

All coaches taught Physical Education except Hall's newest coach, Doug Pilcher. The coaching staff consisted of Norman Callaway, Oliver Elders, C. W. Keopple, Mike Peterson and Roy Wade.

Each class had about 70 students, both male and female, with two or three instructors. Students were given the opportunity at the beginning of the year to choose activities, one per nine weeks or one activity per instructor. The sports available were frisbee, golf, soccer, flag football, weight training, archery, square dancing, deck tennis, basketball, football and volleyball.

1981 Indicates Ten Years Of Work Studies

This year marked the tenth year that Hall has had six different work programs. They are Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT), Distributive Education (DE), Cooperative Office Education (COE), Coordinated Career Education (CCE), Health Occupations Education (HOE), and Career Advancement Program (CAP).

"In each of the work programs, students enrolled in regular class schedules and took a related course geared toward the world of work," Mrs. Marylee Watson, chairman of the Vocational Education Department, said. The students were employed in local businesses and industries for 15 or more hours per week.

Students spent half the day at school and then went to their specific job where they received on-the-job training for the development of knowledge and skills necessary for the career world.

All students enrolled in work programs participated in youth organizations geared for the development of leadership. They attended state and national leadership conferences. The organizations were Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA), Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), and Coordinated Career Education Clubs of America (CCECA).

Two hundred fifty students were enrolled in work programs this year. Instructors for the programs included: Mr. Emanuel Brooks (CCE), Mrs. Brenda Curtis (DE), Mr. M. P. Aydelott (ICT), Mrs. Charlotte Yates (HOE), Miss Anne Looney (COE), (CAP), and Mrs. Marylee Watson, Department chairman.

Over the past ten years, the department has added two new instructors and two new programs.

Business Unit Introduced In Type II Class

A new unit called Word Processing was introduced to the Typewriting II classes this year. Word Processing was one of the various courses taken by the 522 students who were enrolled in the Business Department.

Word Processing introduced students to basic machine-operating techniques, techniques for generating documents, keyboarding, editing, and document distribution and retention. The class was taught by Mrs. Julie Rocker.

In addition to the new equipment added to the department for the Word Processing class, five new micro-computers were received for use in Introduction to Data Processing.

To aid the department, participation in the Business Education Advisory Committee was continued. The Advisory Committee was composed of members representing the business community and the education system. The committee was established to advise and assist the Business Education Department in such areas as obtaining speakers and planning field trips. The committee was chaired by Lynn Gardner, Vice-president of First National Bank.

Other courses offered by the department were Office Machines, Simulated Office Practice, Typing I, Personal Typing, accounting, Business Law, Consumer Law, and COE Related.

The department's curriculum remained the same as in previous years except for the addition of Word Processing and the deletion of Shorthand.

The Business Department chairman was Mrs. Jane Arthurs.

Hall Ind. Arts Donates Work To Community

Students, teachers and the Little Rock community as well, benefited greatly from Hall's Industrial Arts Department this year.

Pupils participated in the carpentry and building classes taught by Mr. David Patterson and completed such projects as constructing furniture, shelving, model houses, and making storage buildings for those in the Hall area who needed them.

In spite of funds for the Industrial Arts projects being low, students could still participate in the carpentry classes.

"This was thanks to the greatly appreciated contributions made by individuals and other various organizations in Little Rock," Mr. Patterson said.

Mr. Jim Mathews taught mechanical and architectural drawing, engineering, landscaping, machine drafting, and interior design.

Early in October, Mr. Mathews attended the five-day National Business Convention in Chicago, Ill. While there he observed 530 innovative new business exhibits covering such subjects as solar energy and interior design.

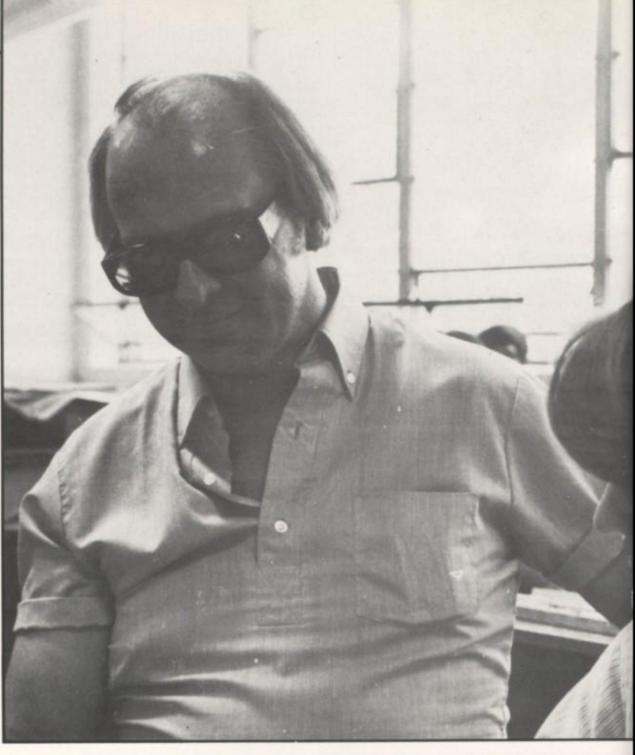

Although student enrollment in the department did not increase much this year, the number of female students dramatically soared over that of previous years.

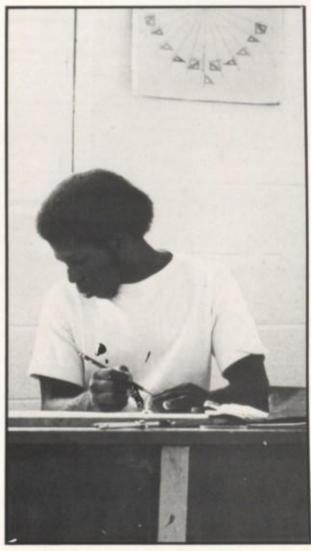

"Quantity has not increased, but quality has," Mr. Mathews said.

"Till spank you, Liz," Mr. Jim Mathews prepares to whip out his T-square for Liz Olsen.

"Mr. Mathews?" Marcus Ellis shows concern when Mr. Jim Mathews is found under his desk.

Metropolitan's Courses Offer Various Skills

Metropolitan Vocational Technical Education Center offered 20 different courses in the 1981-82 school year. Some of these were appliance repair, auto mechanics, bricklaying, electronics, food services, health, and word processing.

Approximately 40 students from Hall attended Metropolitan daily, a decline in enrollment from last year. Students could attend Metropolitan either in the morning or the afternoon. They would spend half the day at Metropolitan and the other half at Hall.

Metropolitan was open to students in grades nine through 12. Many students in the Little Rock schools took advantage of the training offered at the Center.

Cindy Torres, a word processing student at Metropolitan, said, "I really enjoy Metro because I get the experience and training I need to get a job."

Students from Metropolitan operated the radio station, KLRE-FM. Its purpose was to aid teachers by broadcasting programs which were helpful in classrooms. The school print shop, located at Metropolitan, did all of the printing for the Little Rock School District, including the weekly printing of Hall's newspaper the War Whoop.

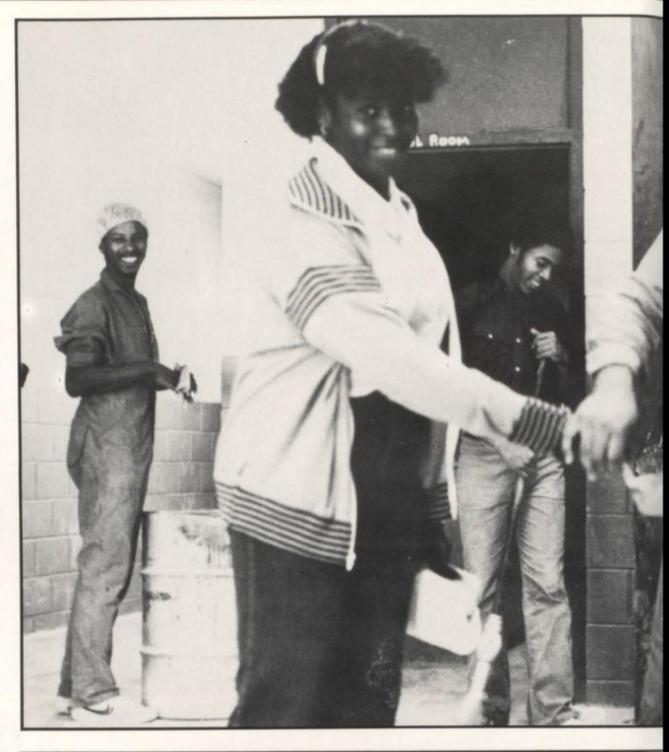

"From their courses students will learn skills of interest and have future job opportunities," Mr. Raymond Dow, who completed his tenth year as Metropolitan's principal, said.

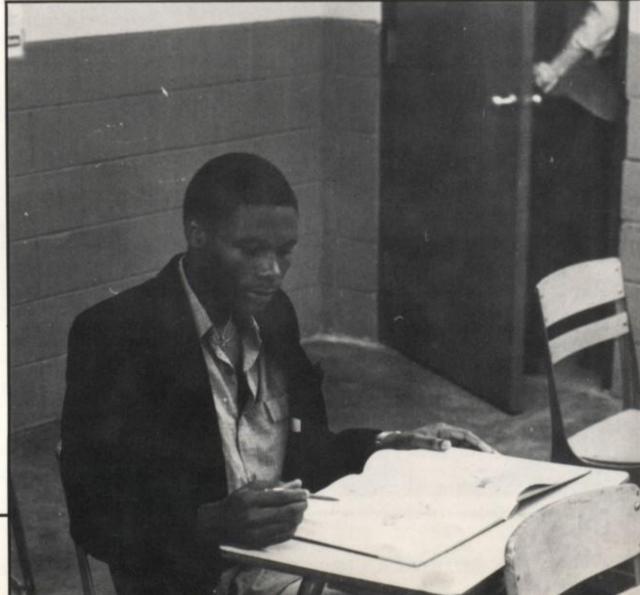

Metropolitan is located at Scott Hamilton Drive and I-30 in the industrial section of the city.

A total of 1087 students were enrolled at Hall. The senior class proved to be the smallest with 340. The junior class was slightly larger with 369. The sophomores led in number with 378.

Seniors were busy the whole year through with various activities. Choosing colleges, finding jobs, and taking tests were just a few of the tedious responsibilities.

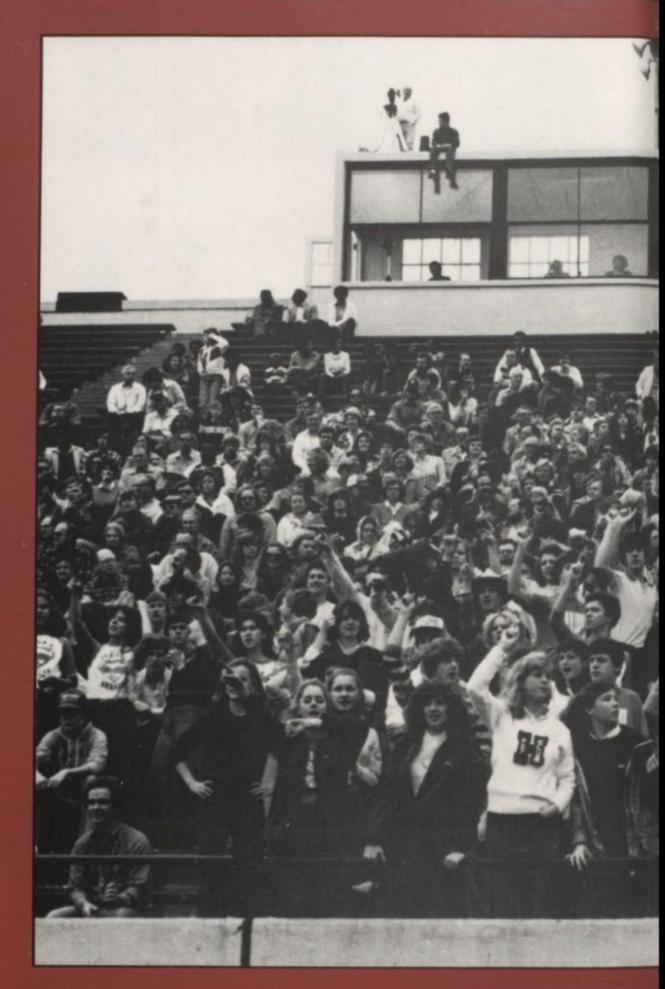

Other activities for the seniors included planning the senior banquet, prom, baccalaureate, and finally graduation. Fund raisers, such as the senior movie, were also important towards the purchase of the senior gift.

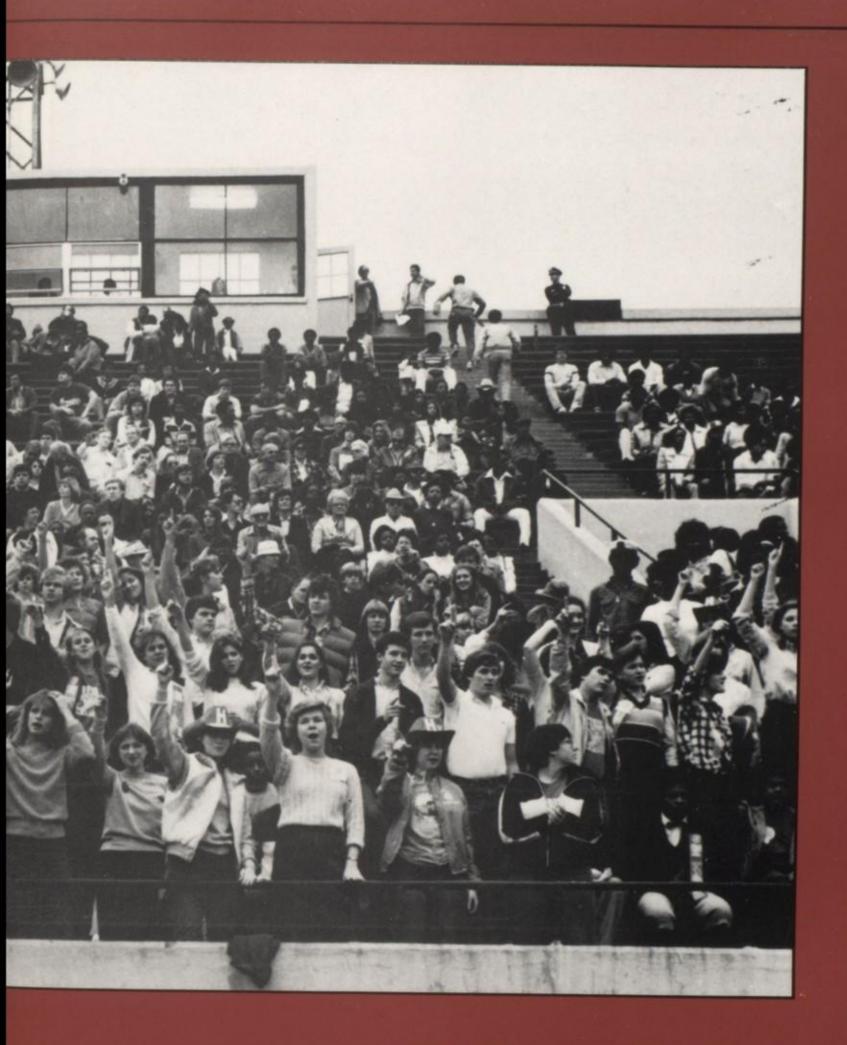

The junior class was, as usual, stuck in the middle between the relief of not being classified as sophomores and the anticipation of being classified as seniors.

Most juniors found they had to study and work harder than in previous years. The arrival of senior rings was a highlight of the year and made their senior year seem even closer.

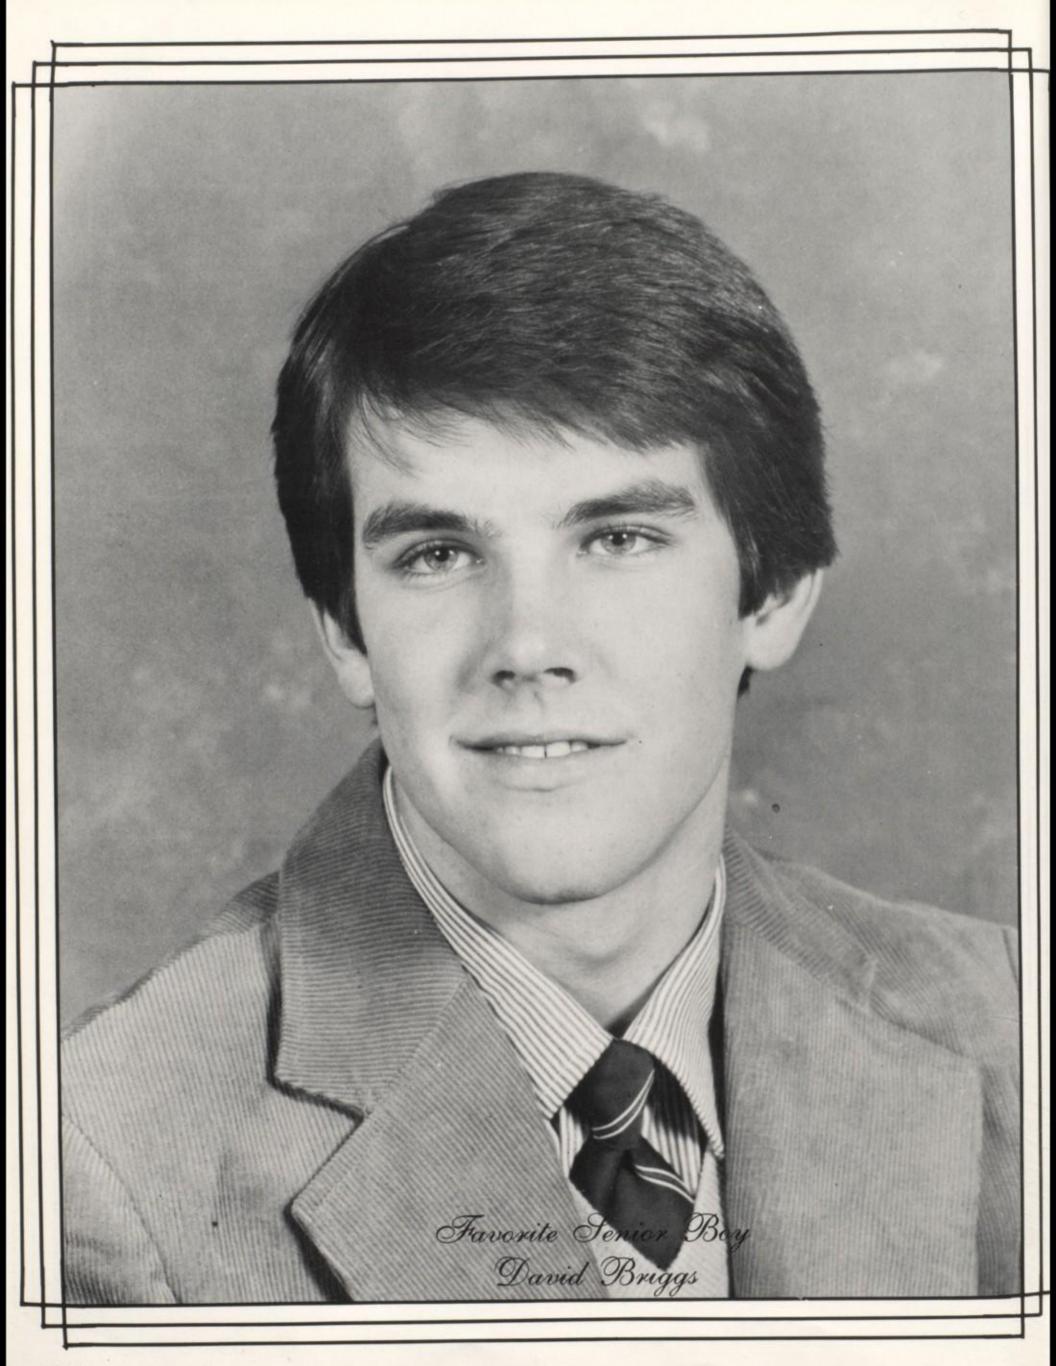

Sophomores learned many new things as they entered into high school, such as their place in the balcony at all assemblies. Learning the techniques of driving and dating were characteristic of most sophomores.

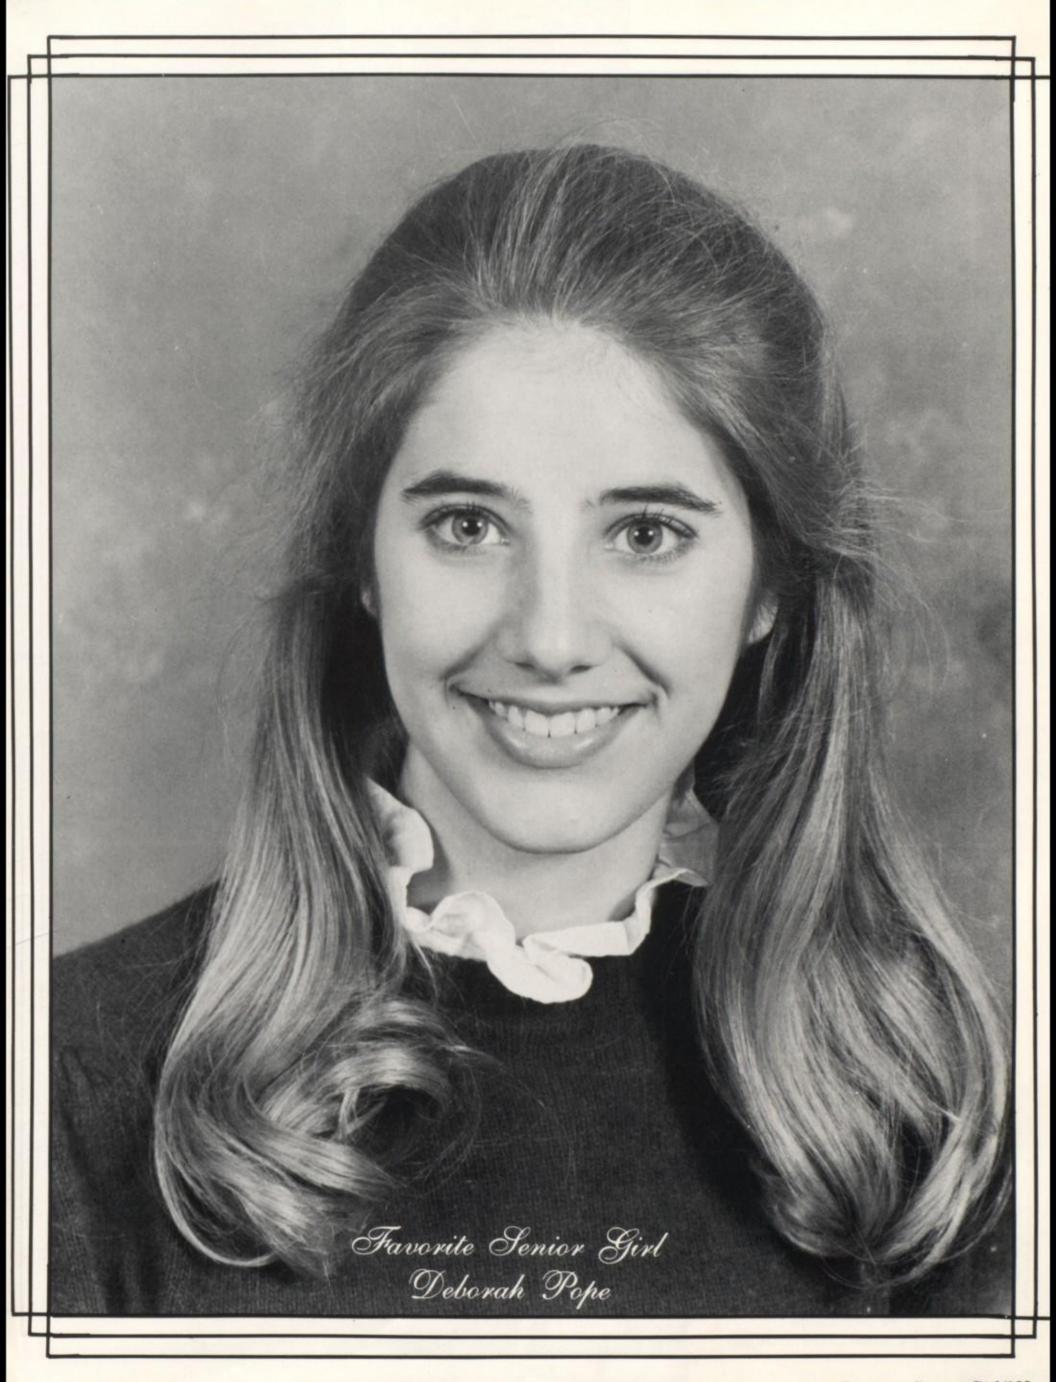

Sophomores once again had to take the class "Career and Life Planning." This aided them in future decisions on their careers and plans for the future.

Mascots Chosen For '81-82 Year

Tim Christopher and Pam Zeigler served as the Hall High mascots for the 1981-1982 school year.

The two tried out in the spring of their junior year. Pam tried for the position against three other girls and Tim tried out against two other boys. All those trying out were graded on an original routine to the Cherokee music.

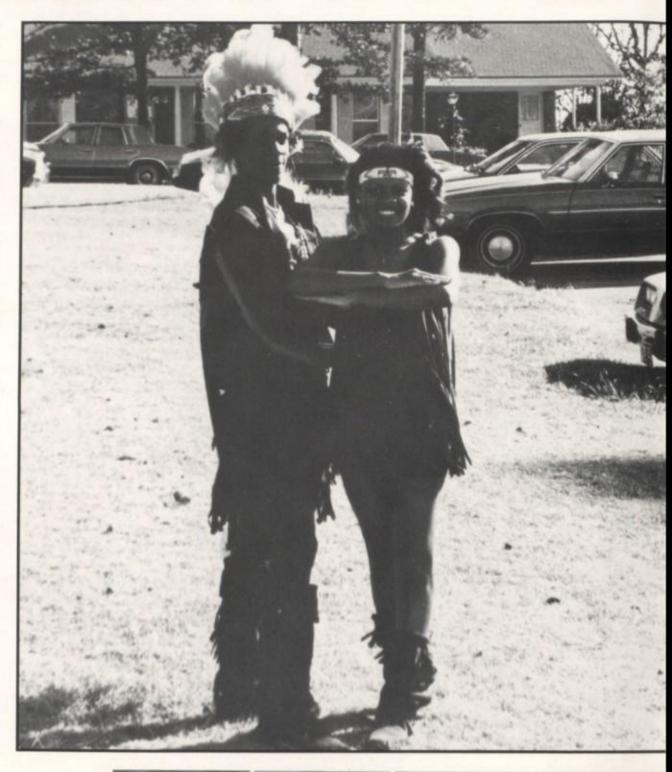

The chief and squaw were expected to attend every football game and dance at all pep assemblies. Their main purpose was to generate spirit for the Warriors.

Pam had all new uniforms while Tim had some new and some which last year's chief had used. In addition, the chief also had a flowing headdress made of orange and white feathers.

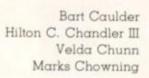

Both seemed to enjoy their job of showing spirit.

"Being chosen as squaw during the past year has been a great and fun experience," Pam said. "I enjoyed showing spirit for the Warriors."

Officers Conduct Senior Projects

The senior class officers conducted money-raising projects and senior activities for their class.

Mike Muench was elected senior class president, Theresa Mount, vice president, and Kathryn Rosenbaum was secretary/treasurer.

Senior class officers and their committees met regularly to determine choices for the entire class to vote on. An election was held on December 16 and the Prom theme, Prom band, senior gift and Baccalaureate speaker were elected.

The results of this election were "Mardi Gras in New Orleans" for the Prom theme, which will be held at Teamster's Hall on May 28. The band for the Prom will be Joker's Wild.

Baccalaureate Speaker will be Bill Clinton, and the senior gift includes courtyard repairs, a new framed stained glass Warrior for the office, and repairs on the "Home of the Warriors" sign in the front of the school.

The Senior Banquet will be held at Murray's Dinner Playhouse on May 31

Finally, what all the seniors had been anticipating, Graduation, will be held in Barton Coliseum on June 2.

To make money for all activities, the movie "Greased Lightning" with Richard Pryor was shown in December, and a dance was planned for April.

Senior class sponsors included Miss Alita Mantels, overall sponsor; Mr. Charles Thompson, Miss Nancy Popperfuss, Mrs. Gail Strange, and Mrs. Ann Teeter.

Super Senior Is '82 Class Emblem

This year at Hall, a big "S" on a t-shirt did not mean Superman, but Super Seniors. This became the sign of the Class of '82.

The varsity cheerleaders sold the shirts at the beginning of the year and generated a lot of class spirit.

During football season, caravans could be seen going to most every game. The seniors could also be seen waving the class flag throughout the game. "Seniors should have school spirit because it pulls them togethe. and it's fun," Senior Robin Gordon said.

At every game a group of senior boys tried to form a pyramid, and they usually ended up in a pile in the middle of the field. The 'Savage Squaws,' a group of spirited senior girls, attended every game in their orange and white t-shirts.

At pep assemblies, the front of the auditorium was always full of seniors chanting "We're the best, you know it's true, we're the class '82!"

Senior Class Faces Big Decision

As the seniors' high school days came to a close, they had to decide what they would do after graduation.

One of the biggest decisions was whether one would stay in state or travel across the country to obtain an education. To make the right choice, seniors sought help from their respective counselors. Also they visited with various college representatives who came to Hall periodically throughout the year. The opportunity to visit with the representatives gave each student the feeling that the colleges and universities had a personal interest in them. Representatives from such institutions of learning as Harvard, Columbia, Duke, University of Arkansas, and Grambling University were among those who visited Hall during the year.

Junior Participation Not "Middle"

With an enrollment of 369, the junior class was the middle class in position and in total enrollment. However, the juniors took such an active part in school activities that they could hardly be termed "middle."

Juniors participated in a variety of school organizations and were elected to many officer positions. This experience guided them in preparing for higher leadership roles in their senior year.

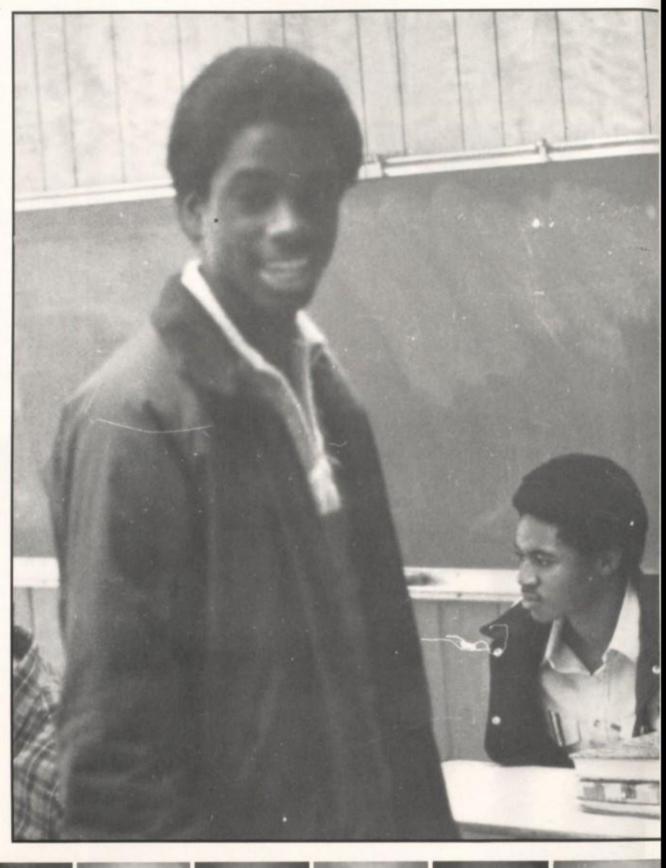

Spirit in the junior class was evident, especially during assemblies. The junior class yell, "We're the best there'll ever be, we're the class of '83" served as the unifying element for juniors during pep assemblies. Eleven junior girls functioned as the junior varsity cheerleaders.

The arrival of senior rings was a high point for many juniors. In October, the juniors participated in the PSAT test. The junior class had no officers, but was represented in the Student Council by Felicia Webster.

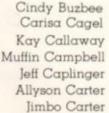

Ten other juniors also served on Student Council, which sponsored many school activities during the year.

Juniors received numerous honors in a variety of areas. Awards were earned by juniors at language festivals, speech contests, tournaments, and conventions. During the summer, junior girls and boys participated in the Governor's School, and in Girls' State and Boys' State.

Are you serious? Fred Blackwell listens in math to Mrs. Carol Barnhouse.

Juniors Show Spirit Consecutively

The junior class faithfully and enthusiastically maintained a high level of spirit throughout the year.

The juniors' devotion was tremendous during pep assemblies when the junior class yell, "We're the best there'll ever be, we're the class of '83" was chanted.

The juniors promoted Hall by loyally attending games during football and basketball season.

The class of '83 had no trouble matching the precedents of high spirit set by previous junior classes. Their dedication was evident not only during assemblies and games, but also in clubs and various school-sponsored activities.

Juniors held offices and chaired committees in a number of clubs.

Junior spirit mounted near the end of the year as the class anticipated their long-awaited senior year. As incoming seniors, a tremendous amount of junior spirit was sparked by the arrival of senior rings, and during the last few weeks of school, class meetings.

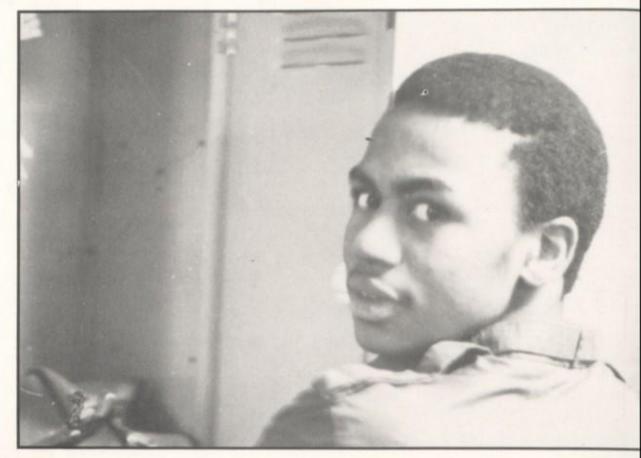

"This year has been fun and exciting for me," junior Tracy Hollingsworth said, "especially during the football season."

Many juniors participated in spirit-promoting activities such as sports and junior varsity cheerleading. The traditional orange and white colors adorned a large number of juniors on game days.

Juniors also showed their support for their school by purchasing many spirit ribbons, buttons and hats.

Juniors Take Standardized Tests

After years of standardized testing, the juniors were introduced to precollegiate testing. In October, the Preliminary Scholastic Achievement Test (PSAT) was administered to the juniors. The PSAT is the qualifying test for the National Merit Semifinalists. It also prepared the juniors for the Scholastic Achievement Test (SAT), which is a large factor for college acceptance. The SAT is reguired for admission to most American colleges and universities. The first chance for the juniors to take the SAT will be this summer at the beginning of their senior year.

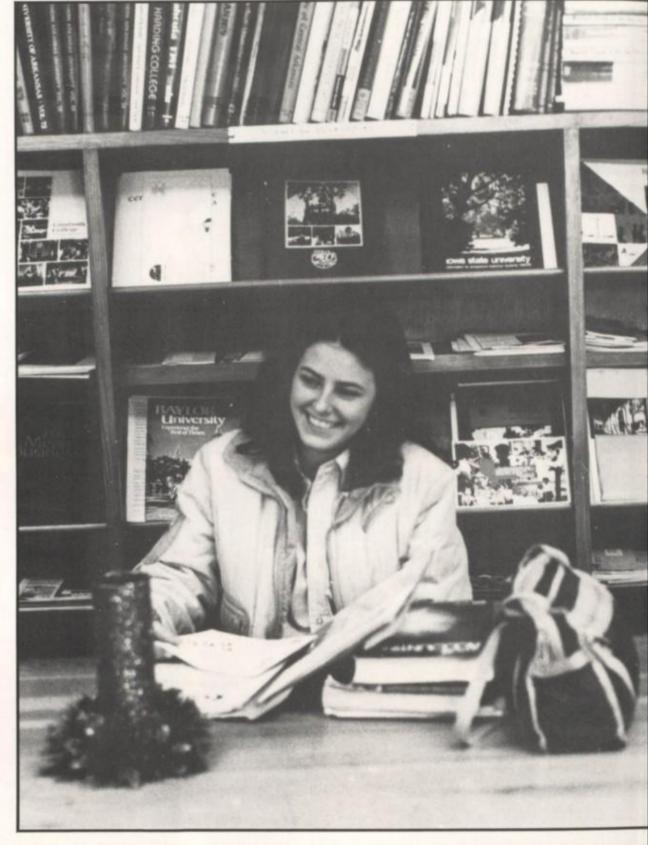

The junior year was also the time to register for the American College Test (ACT). Like the SAT, the ACT is a requirement for some colleges and universities. A few juniors took the ACT in April, but the majority will be administered the test their senior year.

For juniors who had not previously taken it, the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) was given March 1. ASVAB measures the students' aptitude in five career field areas and provides an indication of their academic ability. ASVAB is a means of stimulating interest in military occupations.

The PSAT, ASVAB, and ACT were national tests administered to high school students throughout the country.

"The PSAT test was fairly difficult and rather long," junior Susan Henson said, "but it helped me get ready for the SAT next year."

Harvard or Yale? Jennifer Jackson considers colleges after receiving her PSAT scores.

Class Rings Ordered By Juniors

One of the high points of the year for juniors was the ordering of their senior rings. The rings were ordered in September from a representative of the Balfour Jewelry Company who came to Hall.

Although Balfour was the school's official jeweler many students chose to order their rings from local jewelers such as J. B. Sanders and Stephen Cook and Company.

Students had the choice of various styles, prices, and metals. Yellow gold, white gold, and silver were available with a choice of birth stones or simulated stones.

The traditional Hall ring had the totem pole on one side and the Warrior on the other. The rings from Balfour arrived on December 16.

The prices this year were lower due to the lower prices for precious metals such as gold and silver. There was a considerable difference between the cost of rings compared to last year.

"I was excited to get my class ring, because in later years it will remind me of my great days at Hall!," junior Kim White said.

With the arrival of the rings, juniors felt well on their way to becoming seniors.

Sophomores Experience Changes

Sophomores coming from junior high school to Hall experienced major changes. For the first time many sophomores considered grades important, and the classes chosen by the sophomores would play an important role in their future life.

The sophomores were introduced to dating, driving, and the traditional teasing by the upperclassmen. By Christmas break, however, the teasing had almost stopped and sophomores finally began to be considered part of the student body. As they began to feel more a part of Hall, sophomores became more involved in extracurricular activities.

Sophomore enrollment was high in all the clubs, perhaps because the sophomores could not drive yet and therefore, could not go out to lunch. Sophomore elections were held in September, and 11 sophomores were elected to Student Council. Vicki Shaw, as sophomore representative, concluded the representation of the sophomores in Student Council.

Eventually spring rolled around, and the sophomores began turning 16, one by one. This increased the cars in the student parking lot, and parking spaces were few and hard to come by.

Dating was another change experienced by the sophomores. In junior high school the sophomores had been forced to rely on their parents for transportation while on a date. Consequently, there were few dates in junior high school.

Slops Control The Driver's Seat

Sixteen was the magic number for sophomores. This was when they became old enough to drive alone. Other sophomores could drive, but they had to be accompanied by a licensed adult to drive legally.

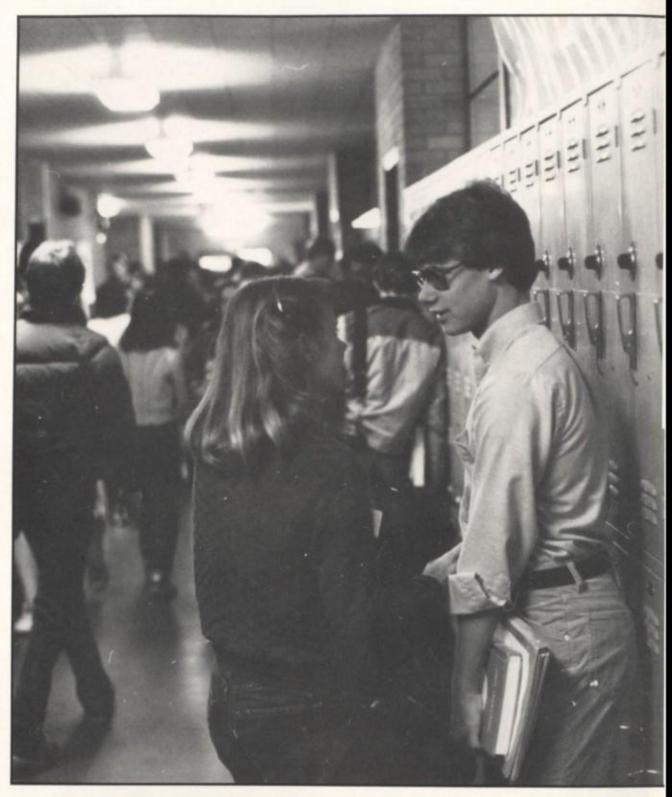

With all the new drivers parking became a problem. Juniors and seniors had to get up a few minutes earlier each day to beat the slops to school.

Driver Education was offered one semester during the school year. Sophomores who did not take it in the summer could take it for one semester. Driver Education taught students the proper driving techniques and helped to reduce their parents insurance rates.

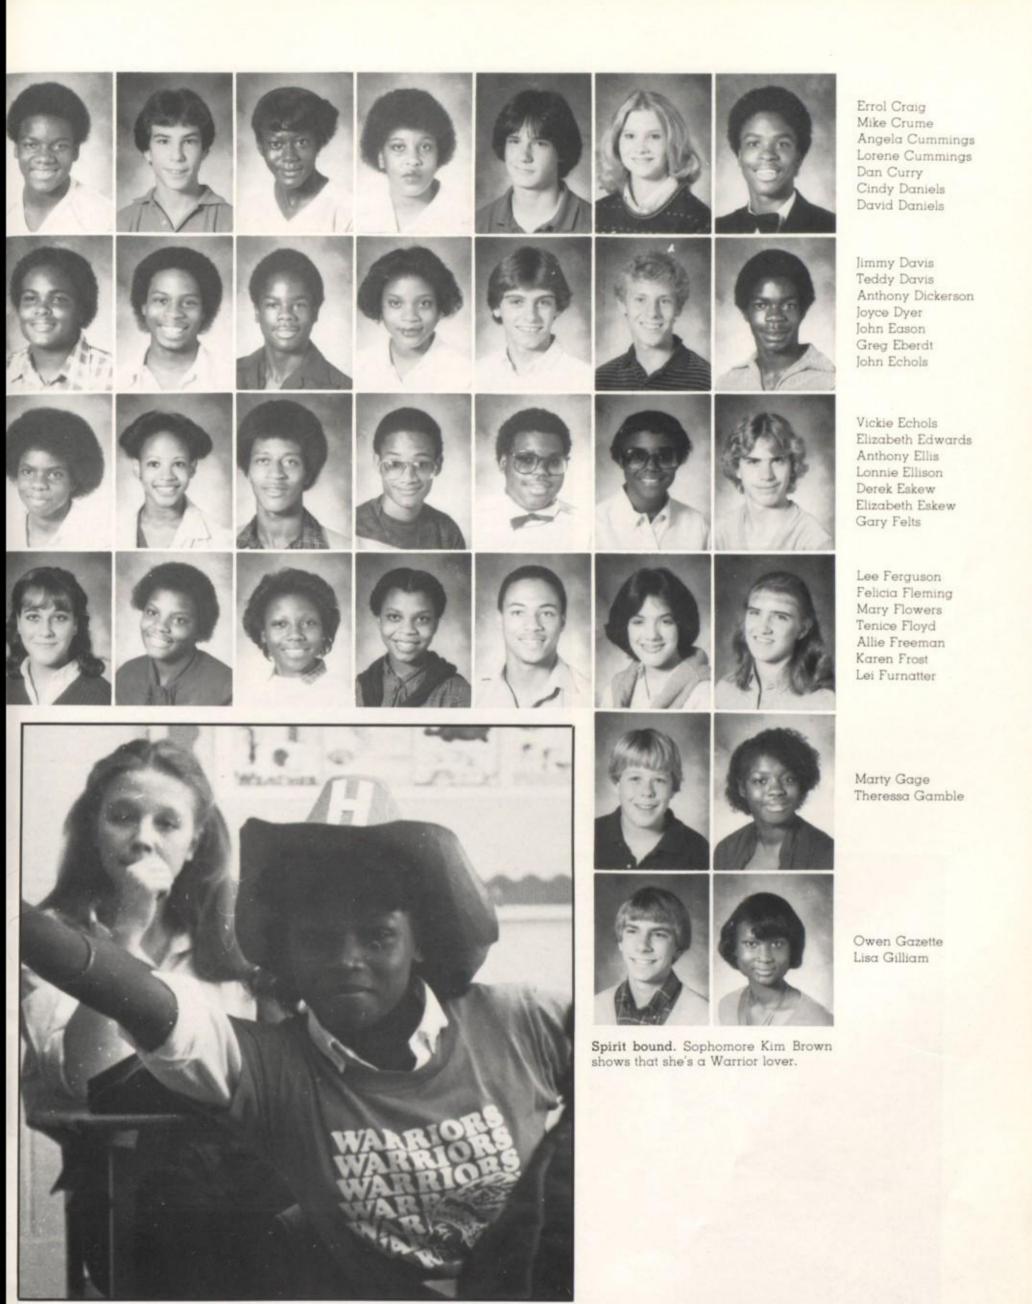

Now that the slops were able to drive, restaurants became twice as crowded during the 45 minute lunch period. So, students often sped back towards campus only to be stopped by local policemen. This resulted in a fine or attendance at a Drivers' Defensive Course for four weeks. Since most juniors and seniors knew where the police would be waiting they cautiously reduced speed when approaching those areas.

"Yes, I do." Colin Johnson explains to Stacey Burks that he likes her, but he can't drive.

Slops Continue To Be Harassed

Harassment and the traditional teasing of the sophomores continued this year.

Sophomores were encouraged during registration and the first day of school to buy pool and elevator passes. A few naive "slops" fell for this old trick, those who actually believed that there was a pool underneath the gym and an elevator in the auditorium!

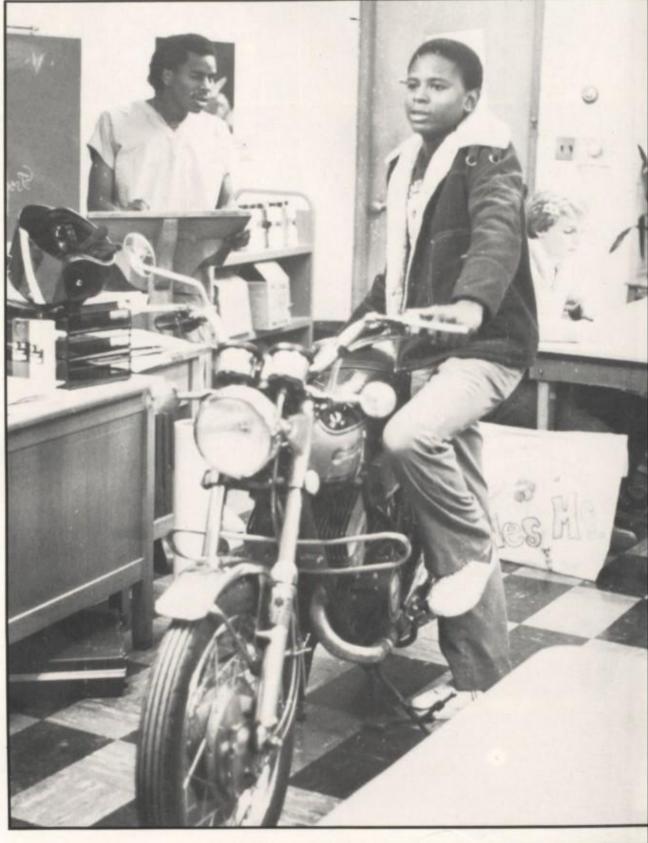

Sophomores were met the first day of school with signs asking if they had forgotten their Pampers, pacifiers, and tricycles. Kick, Trip, and Hit a Sophomore days were posted frequently on the Student Council calendar. Although not many juniors and seniors participated, these days were still a major source of harassment for the sophomores.

Sophomores were also the objects of ridicule in pep assemblies throughout the year. In the skits, organized by the cheerleaders, members of the "baby class" were forced to ride tricycles and submit to teasing about going on dates with "mommy driving."

Sophomores on this year were not allowed to rock "the Baby Cradle" as much as previous slops. Last year the administration determined rocking the balcony was a hazard. This year teachers were posted in "the Cradle" to prevent this.

Over all, this year's level of teasing by the juniors and seniors was not as high as in previous years.

Class Required For Sophomores

For the first time this year, sophomores were required to take Career and Life Planning for credit. The class was only offered as a semester course, so many sophomores chose to take driver ed for the remainder of their sophomore year.

Unlike last year when the course was taught during lunch, this year it was offered at various times during the day. Sophomores seemed to receive the program without as much criticism as last year.

"Career and Life Planning will help me get a job and train people to work at simple jobs," Owen Gazette said.

"It's not that bad," Colin Johnson added. "I might need to get a job."

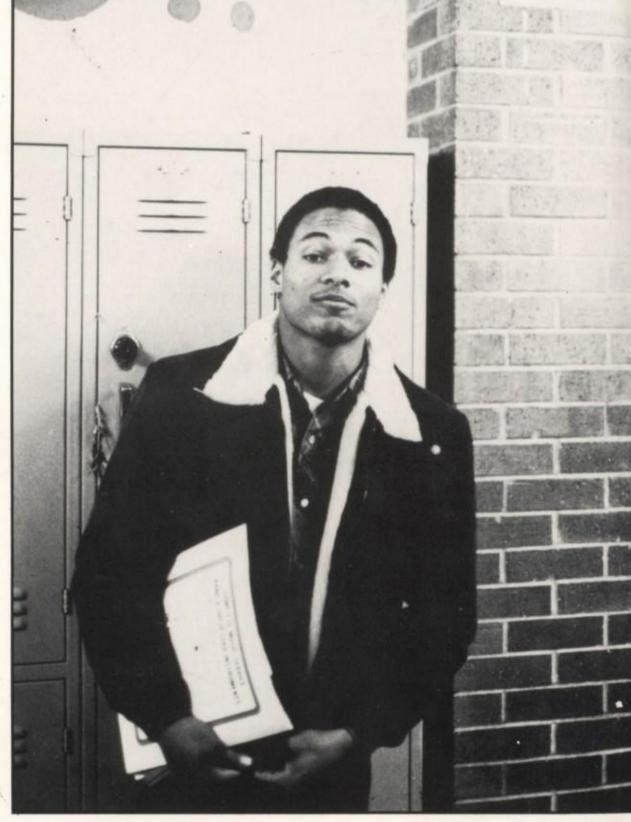

Student were taught to fill out job applications, write resumes, and prepare for job interviews. They also wrote research papers concerning their choice of careers.

One valuable and practical skill learned in the class was how to fill out both state and federal income tax forms. This enabled students to enter the work force better able to handle their business affairs.

Teachers in various subject areas taught the course. Also outside speakers and resource persons from all over the city were used to enrich the course.

Other courses which made up the sophomores' curriculum included biology, mathematics, and English, plus two elective courses. Favorite electives were languages, specifically French, Spanish, and Latin.

Group Living Is For Youngsters

Twenty-two children were enrolled in kindergarten this year.

"The basic rules for living which will later be stressed in the laws of society were introduced to the children," Mrs. Virginia Minor, the director of the child development lab, said.

Group compatability as well as the ten safety rules of the classroom were considered very important and emphasis was placed on listening to those who were speaking.

By the end of the year, children were held responsible for the phonetics of the alphabet and an understanding of basic math concepts, such as sets of numerals. A new math guide was used this year which contained a collection of goals to achieve and included a skills test for the end of the year.

For recreation the children played outdoors on the swings and slides. They went to the Media Center every Wednesday for story-time where volunteers from the drama classes read to them. Time was also allowed every week for the children to check out library books.

During the Christmas season, the class went to the Williamsburg Nursing Home and sang carols. They also performed a Christmas program for their parents on December 18.

To The Reader,

Many efforts were made throughout the school year to improve and modernize the 1982 WARRIOR. My thanks go to all those who devoted their time and effort to the publication of this book.

A special thanks goes to Brad Smithers for many hours of his time spent taking, developing, and printing pictures for the WARRIOR, and for caring enough to help me when I needed if the most.

I am grateful to Mrs. Tom Christie for all she has taught me, for her devotion and understanding, for always saying just the right thing to keep my eyes dry when things got rough, and for giving me the apportunity to be editor of this publication. It has truly been an unforgettable experience.

Manlyn Licas WARRIOR editor

In Memory Of

Reginald "Boya" Pitts

In Dedication To A Lovely Son

"To know him is to love him." Oh how adequately that expression describes Reggie, for he was loving, kind, and considerate to all, he extended a helping hand to whomever would call, and he adored all children.

Reggie, "Boya," as everyone affectionately would call him, would cheerfully greet you with a smile. He was faithful and humorous in his own loving way, but stood steadfast to whatever he would say. He had many friends and was always ready to do something for Mother, Grandmother, and other relatives.

We adored him and loved him with all our hearts. These are the words and phrases frequently spoken when one's last sleep has been taken, but to have these words echoed daily during one's lifetime is unique.

Thank you God for Reggie. Sleep on son, we love you, but God loves you best."

Love always, Family

King Of Kings

"Reginald Bernard Pitts, nicknamed "Boya." As for him who gives away for the sake of God, who fears God alone and believes in goodness. 'We will indeed make smooth for him the way to bliss.'

My beloved son paid his own way to glory, the road leads back home. Someday, someplace, and in another period in time we shall meet again. Oh my God (Allah); I know your taste is of your choice.

'O Allah, originator of the heavens and the earth, knower of the seen and unseen, Thou judgest between thy servants as to that wherein they differ.' (Holy Quran 39:46). Even though your choosing was choice and I am most hurt, I do understand that you need kings above as well as below."

Christian name — Charles Edward Pitts (also called "Boya" in my school days) Asiatic Name — Abu Bakie

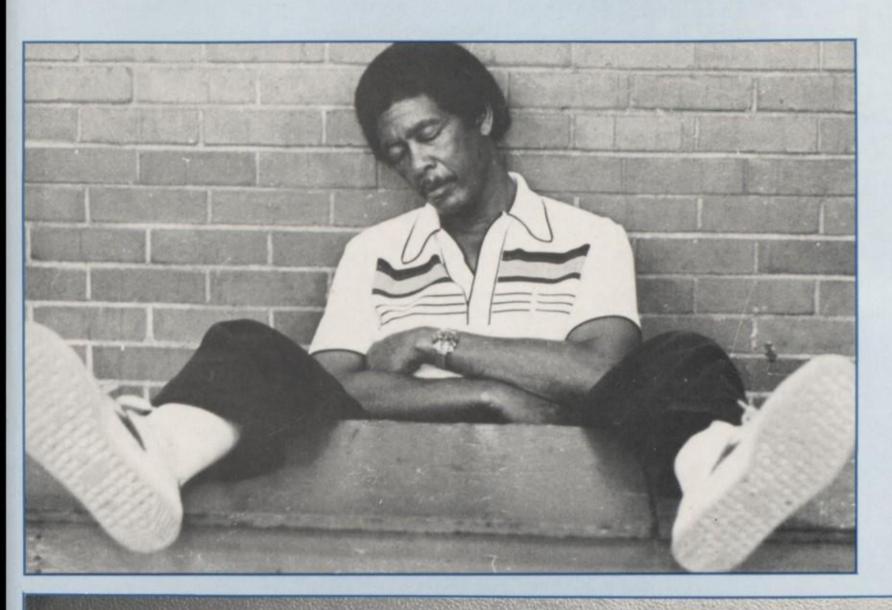

(This page was purchased by the parents of Reginald Bernard Pitts. The two selections were written by his parents, Mrs. Jean Banks and Mr. Charles E. Pitts in memory of their son who was killed in a car-train collision on November 13, 1981.)

Progression

The passing of our high school years has brought into realization the importance of our learning and growing experiences.

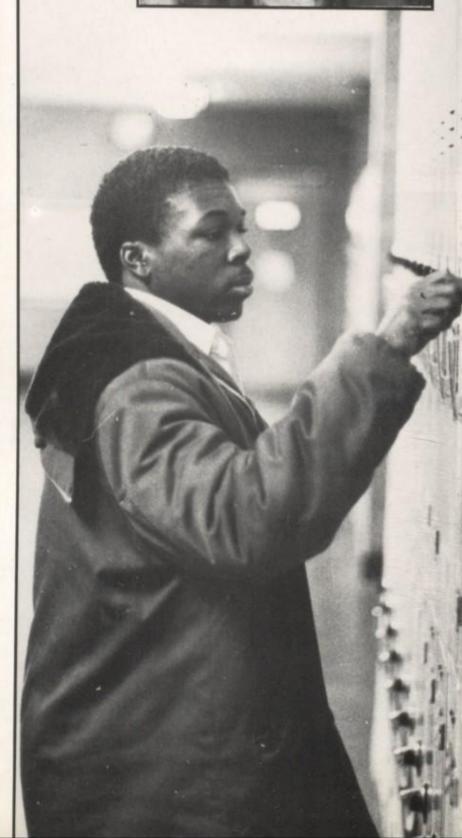

Decisions made in high school will help us use better discernment in the future. Knowledge gained in and outside of the classroom will aid us in further education and in our career choices.

Our years at Hall have helped us mature into adults and have prepared us for the best and the worst to come in life. Today's world has progressed tremendously through the past few years. We have seen changes in government, advancement in technology and discoveries in the worlds of science and medicine. These and other events have had a great impact on our lives.

In the future we will begin to reap the harvests of our educations. Until that period in our lives occurs we must strive to achieve the goals and rewards of progression which will benefit ourselves and each other.

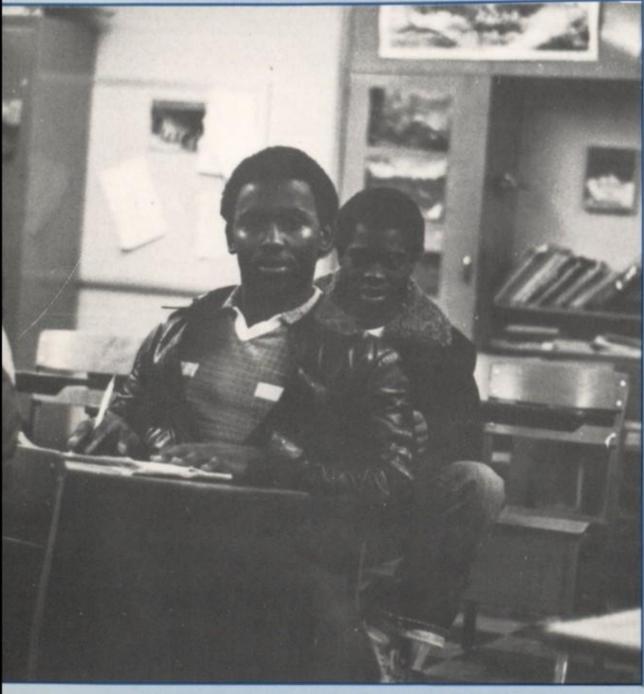

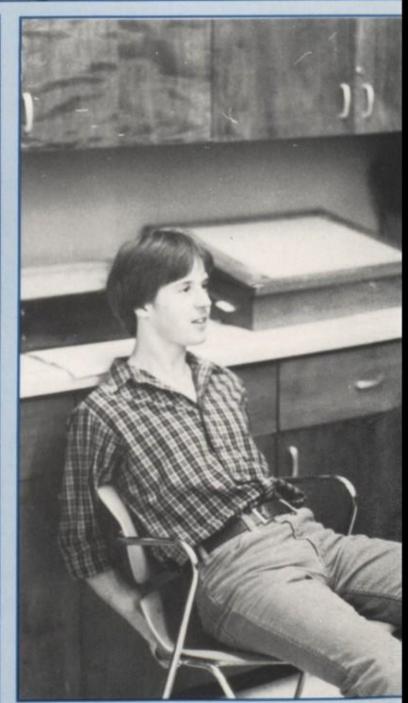

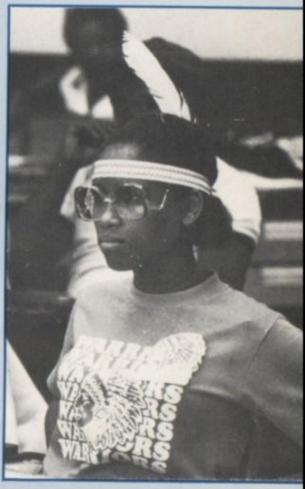

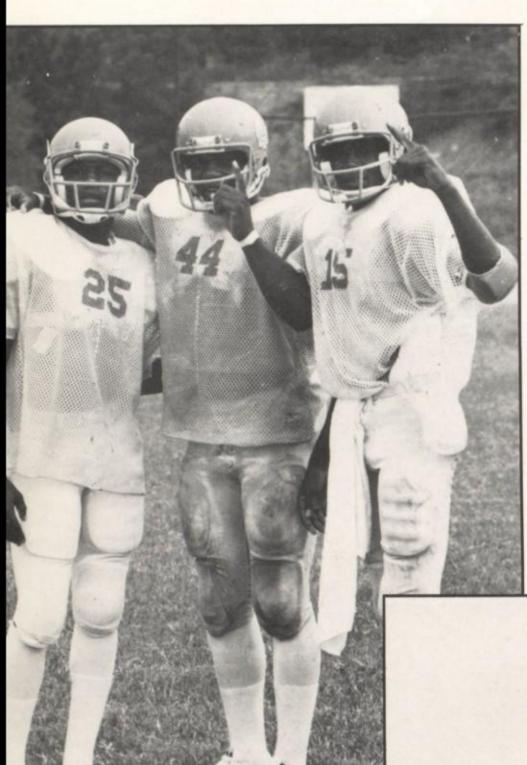

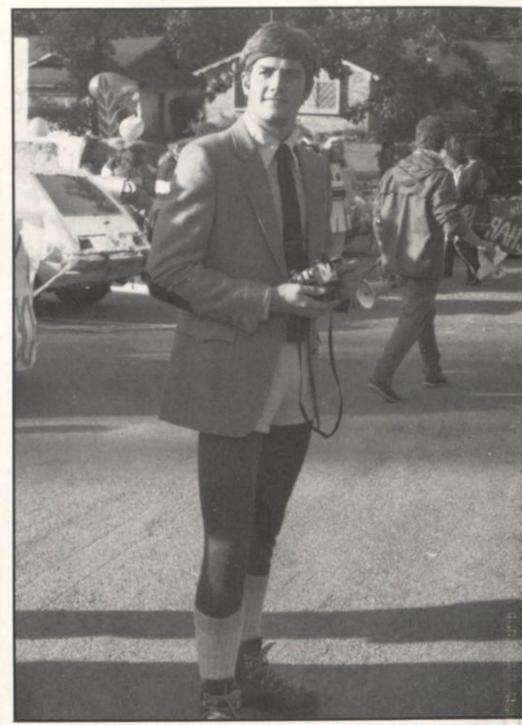

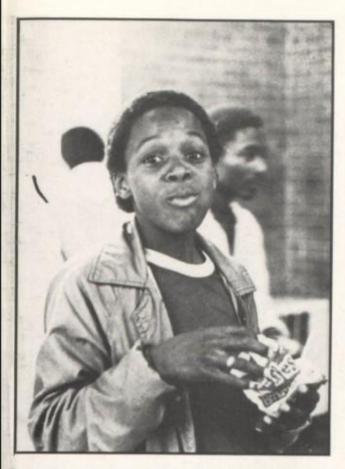

25 Years Of Excellence

Traditions

The spirit of Hall lies in the perpetuation of traditions. It is from these traditions that Hall students become more unified.

Although most traditions are characteristic to one certain class, such as the sophomores having to sit in the balcony, they are ones that most likely will eventually be practiced by all students who attend Hall.

Other Hall traditions included spirit weeks, TWIRP week, the wearing of orange and white on the day of a game, the bonfire before the Parkview game, the hanging of the spirit banner, the emphasis of the word brave when the national anthem is sung, and the newly acquired tradition of beating Parkview.

Traditions of Hall High enlighten our years by adding life, fun, and sometimes meaning to certain events. Some traditions will be broken, while others are kept and still others are added. No matter what the case, the idea and use of traditions will remain.

These traditions will be in our hearts forever and will form fond memories for us to cherish years from today.
